Truman Assails Moves to Cut Spending; White House Pushes Steel Peace Plan

Truman Tells 'Hill' to Push Unification Or He Will

Shelving of Bill To Unify Forces Further Brings Executive Threat

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

President Truman has served blunt notice on the House Armed Services Committee that unless it reverses its action shelving the military unification bill he will further unify the armed forces by reorganization order.

Committee members said yesterday that the President told Chairman Vinson (D., Ga.) of his intention at a White House conference Tuesday. The Georgian said afterwards that he would ask the group to reconsider the 13-to-12 vote sidetracking the bill, but declared it would require unanimous consent to reopen the matter.

The committee meets this morning to decide what to do. According to several members, here is what probably will happen:

Some one of the opponents of the unification bill will object to reconsidering Tuesday's vote postponing action until the committee completes its B-36 and air power investigation — probably late this year.

Legislation carrying out Title Four of the measure will then be offered.

Members of the Hoover reorganization commission have been putting the heat on House Republican leaders to reverse Tuesday's vote, and some opponents of the bill believe the former are mostly interested in passing Title Four. They say most of the expected savings under the bill will result from these budget reforms.

However, the threat of a Presidential reorganization order putting the main provisions of the unification bill into effect could upset this strategy. Supporters of the bill are expected to point out that Mr. Truman may submit a unifying order that opponents will like even less than the present bill.

And it will take 218 nay votes on the floor of the House to defeat it—an unlikely event.

Opponents of the Tydings unification bill have contended that the Government reorganization act strictly limits what can be done in further unifying the services. However, The Washington Post

Admits Stealing 'Needed' $1300

$40,000,000 Construction Sought Here

Servicemen Housed In Chicken Coops, House Group Told

Servicemen and their families are forced to live in old beer trucks and chicken coops because of crowding at some military posts, the House Armed Services Committee was told yesterday.

The report came from Army officials who said the Army will suffer "irreparable damage" unless something is done swiftly to ease the military housing shortage.

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson asked the committee to approve a 623-million-dollar military construction bill, including 7798 family housing units to cost 149 million dollars.

About 40 million dollars is included in the measure for projects in the District of Columbia, Virginia and Maryland.

"The need is acute," Johnson said. The bill also covers all types of military construction here and abroad for the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Lieut. Gen. T. B. Larkin, Army director of logistics, said the 2931 homes provided in the bill for Army families, plus all those now in existence or authorized, still would amount to only 28.5 per cent of the 152,000 units needed.

Col. W. W. Lapsley gave the report of servicemen living in beer trucks and chicken coops. "In some cases they are paying high rent for them," he said.

Among the projects, with the estimated cost of each are:

ARMY:

Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md.—Testing and research facilities, $2,930,000.

Arlington Hall, Va.—Building extensions, $94,000.

Army Chemical Center, Md.—Laboratory facilities, $2,861,000.

La Plata, Md.—Living quarters and utilities, $634,500.

District of Columbia—General construction, $1,285,500.

Fort Belvoir, Va.—Communications building, $118,000.

Pope Bans Communist Catholics

Historic Decree Automatically Excommunicates Millions of 'Reds'

Vatican City, July 13 (U.P.).—The Vatican announced tonight that all Catholics who support communism are excommunicated automatically.

The historic action was taken in a decree issued by the Holy Office of the Vatican and approved by Pope Pius XII.

It calls on Catholics to make their choice between Catholicism and communism.

It outlaws thousands of priests and perhaps millions of laymen in such strongly Catholic countries as Italy, France, Czechoslovakia and Poland who profess to be both Catholics and Communists.

Mustn't Read Red Literature

The excommunication is major. It forbids to those affected all of the seven sacraments of the church such as confirmation, confession of sins, marriage and the blessing given to the dying.

Even the reading of communistic literature is forbidden those who want to remain in the church.

Persons connected with the trials of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty in Hungary and Archbishop Aloysius Stepinac in Yugoslavia were excommunicated previously, as were supporters of the Czechoslovak government's Catholic Action organization.

Now the dire ban of the church extends to every Catholic supporter of communism. There are about two million Communists each in Italy and France, 1,700,000 in Czechoslovakia and 600,000 in Poland, many of them professing Catholicism also.

In Form of Catechism

The decree was approved June 28 by the Holy Office a body of cardinals empowered to order excommunication. Pope Pius approved it June 30.

The decree was in the form of a catechism, with four questions and the answers to them.

The questions and answers were:

1. Q. Is it proper to join or support the Communist Party? A. No. Communism is materialistic and anti-Catholic.

2. Q. Is it proper to print, spread

Local Option Part Of Rent Law Held Unconstitutional

Chicago, July 13 (U.P.).—Federal Judge Elwyn R. Shaw held today that the local option feature of the Federal rent control law is unconstitutional, but deferred until later an opinion on whether the entire act is invalid.

Court officials said Shaw's opinion was not a formal ruling, and that the issue ultimately would have to be carried to higher courts. Nevertheless, it was believed a precedent in the new Federal act.

The local option permits States to pass their own rent laws as substitutes for the Federal measure, including provisions for decontrol.

The opinion was issued in a case involving the Shoreline Cooperative Apartments, Inc., which sought to evict 18 tenants who refused to buy their apartments under the cooperative plan.

'Big 3,' Others Wired; Strike Set Saturday

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Rebuffed by the steel industry's "Big Three," President Truman last night urged more than 50 smaller companies to accept his plan for averting a nationwide strike this weekend.

At the same time, Mr. Truman called on the "Big Three"—United States Steel, Republic and Bethlehem—to reconsider their rejection of his proposal for a 60-day management-union truce to permit a fact-finding board to investigate the dispute and recommend a possible settlement.

The million-member CIO Steelworkers yesterday wired acceptance of the White House plan.

President Phil Murray, who also heads the CIO, declared that the Steelworkers would stay on the job with those companies willing to cooperate with the President's fact-finding board. Otherwise, they would walk out at 12:01 a. m. Saturday.

President Truman's second appeal to the "Big Three" was partly in the nature of a challenge.

"Surely you are not afraid to have your side of this dispute examined in the public interest," the Chief Executive declared in simultaneous telegrams to the three major steel corporations.

The President pushed aside the objections raised by the "Big Three" that the White House armistice plan by-passed the Taft-Hartley Act. This statute, bitterly opposed by President Truman and retained by the Senate recently, permits the Chief Executive to establish an 80-day cooling-off period in strikes imperiling the national health or safety, backed up by court injunction if necessary.

There is not "an immediate peril to the national health or safety," Mr. Truman declared last night. He added, however, that

2 Doctors Face U. S. Tax Liens For $200,000

Tax liens for some $200,000 in allegedly unpaid Federal taxes have been filed against two District physicians, Dr. Tomas Cajigas, 54, prominent pathologist, and Dr. Tolley B. Spriggs, 49.

Filed in Baltimore by the Internal Revenue Bureau, the liens claimed Dr. Cajigas owed $147,323.27 for the years 1943 to 1947, and Dr. Spriggs, $61,520.68 for 1943 and 1945-1947.

Internal Revenue agents have been concentrating on investigating tax delinquencies of Washington physicians, a Government source said recently. As a result, a probe of gamblers' tax returns has been temporarily slowed up, the source said.

An attorney representing Dr. Cajigas said the case was still under consideration by the Treasury Department.

Dr. Cajigas commented: "I don't know anything about taxes. I merely followed the advice of a tax lawyer and made my returns out as he told me to."

Dr. Spriggs was out of town and could not be reached, a reporter who called his home, 1028 7th st. ne., was told. He is a graduate of Howard University Medical School and was licensed to practice here in 1925.

Dr. Cajigas, born in Puerto Rico, is a graduate of George Washington University Medical School, where he formerly was professor of pathology.

He operates the Clinical Pathological Laboratory, 1801 I st. nw., and is head pathologist at Columbia and Homeopathic Hospitals and is on the staff at Doctors Hospital.

The Internal Revenue Bureau lien, notice of which was filed in District Court in Baltimore, alleged Dr. Cajigas, who lives at 4605 Charleston ter. nw., owes the following taxes:

Slayer Defies Capture From 130-Ft. Tower

Lima, Ohio, July 13 (AP).—A murderer—wildly demanding protection for his family—defied State Hospital guards today from a perch 130 feet up on a water tower.

Raymond Jutila, 35-year-old patient of Lima State Hospital for the Criminal Insane, clambered to the top of the hospital water tower this morning after a fruitless attempt to escape.

Twice during a day when the mercury hovered near 90 degrees, Jutila ventured within 30 feet of the ground. Twice he promised to come down to the ground, then scampered back up the tower ladder.

As night neared, Jutila grew defiant and shrill.

"I'll stay up here two weeks if I have to," he shouted.

"What will you eat, Raymond?" asked Dr. R. E. Bushong, hospital superintendent.

"I've still got two candy bars," the Warren, Ohio, man replied.

Hospital guards did not venture up the narrow ladder leading to the top.

"Jutila will either get tired, hungry or sleepy, and eventually he will come down," commented Dr. Bushong. "We'll wait him out."

But Jutila showed no signs of weakening. "There's a nice breeze up here," he yelled with a laugh. His long dark hair blew in all directions as he spoke.

Once today Jutila obtained a drink by cupping his hands inside the tower. Dr. Bushong immediately ordered the water level lowered 8 feet.

Constantly Jutila has asked to speak with Police Chief William Johnson of Warren, where he was convicted of first-degree murder December 24, 1935, with a mercy recommendation, in the rape-slaying of Mrs. Marie Tobin, 25.

Once he shouted: "Promise me that you'll let my family alone and I'll come down."

Paul Fitzgerald, a police reporter with the Lima News, talked Jutila to within 30 feet of the ground

Tuck to Seize A B &W Line If Men Strike

Governor Orders Virginia Operation Should Walkout on July 21 Be Called

Governor William M. Tuck of Virginia yesterday ordered State seizure and operation of the Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington Transit Co. July 21 if employes go on a strike.

In an executive order signed at the same time, Tuck designated the three members of the State Corporation Commission as his agents to take possession and operate the bus line.

Employes of AB&W—which carries 75,000 passengers a day between Washington and nearby Virginia—served notice on the Governor a month ago that they would strike July 21 at 2 a. m. unless their demands for a new contract were met.

Negotiations Fail

Both company and union officials admitted yesterday that no progress has been made toward a settlement. Another meeting is scheduled for July 19.

In his proclamation, Tuck said it was his opinion that a strike which halted operation of the company would "constitute a serious threat to the public health, safety and welfare."

He acted under provisions of the State Public Utilities Labor Relations law after receiving requests for continued operation of the lines from the District Commissioners and the Alexandria City Council. He had asked their opinions.

Union Men to Work

Cooperation from both company and union in the action seemed assured. "Any decision of the Governor within the law is all right with us," said a company spokesman last night.

The union advised the Governor several days ago it would work if the State took over.

Demands of the union—Local 1131 of the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes (AFL)—are for a 30-cent hourly increase, a pension plan and other benefits.

The company has offered to renew the present contract, which provides a maximum of $1.35 an hour for bus operators and $1.45

Newport News Hit by Twister; Damage Minor

Newport News, Va., July 13 (AP).—This city escaped with only minor damage this afternoon as a mild and apparently isolated twister ripped without warning through a business and residential section.

The twister missed the main business section, however, and centered mostly in an area made up of frame buildings, although its path was charted across Washington ave., where the major trading area is located.

One man suffered an arm laceration. There were no other injuries, city health department officials who toured the storm area said.

A filling station lost its marquee, a few roofs were torn off, porches blown away and windows smashed. A shack was blown down and a frame private garage demolished. The tops of dozens of trees were blown away.

Police said the damage would not be great. It was tentatively set at about $2000.

Clothing Sales Turn July Into Boom Month

Men's Apparel Leads; Price Cuts on Suits Are Expected in Fall

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The current wave of clothing sales has turned the usual July dog days for local business firms into a major business month.

Local merchants are unanimous in concluding that the customers will buy if the price is right and have been doing just that as a result of the sales.

These conclusions showed up in a check made yesterday of local business firms and the Merchants and Manufacturers Association. "Excellent sales," "good business" and similar phrases were used to describe the results of the return to prewar merchandising practices.

The post-Fourth of July sale used to be an annual event. It probably has become such again.

There appears to be no indication of any distress selling, although some manufacturers reportedly have cut prices at retail because of heavy inventories.

Normally furniture sales are held in August, but some already are under way this month. The bulk of the big sales, however, has been in men's clothes, especially summer suits and colored shirts. The big Palm Beach suit sale began June 28 because of premature release of news about the event, originally scheduled for July 11.

One big Washington firm reported July undoubtedly will be "a big month volume-wise, but we won't know until August whether we made any money." He added that salesmen are happy over increased commissions, however.

The local sales are part of a national pattern, according to trade journal accounts and the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Every source checked agreed yesterday that the customer will buy if the price is right. One official said that is the big difference between today's sales and those in the depression-ridden 1930s.

"In those days nobody had any

He Fears Job Losses, Weakening Of Defenses

Speech Admits 'Downward Trend,' But Insists Nation Is Not in Slump

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman last night said the United States was "not in a depression" even though some people "would like to have a depression" for political reasons. He then proceeded to excoriate those who are urging a drastic cut in Federal spending.

He said that to slash Government expenditures now would be a "great blunder," one that would reduce investment and throw more people out of work. Also, he said, it would weaken our defenses and injure our efforts for peace.

Mr. Truman's report to the Nation on the "downward trend" in economic activity, carried from the White House by radio and television, was reminiscent of his "give-'em-hell" oratory in 1948.

Target Is the Same

His target was the same that drew his fire at the whistle stops last year—the "selfish interests." He said they drove the country "into the ditch" once before, and were trying to do it again, this time by encouraging the economy bloc in Congress.

The Chief Executive appeared to have two objectives in going on the air last night—to reassure the country about the economic picture, and to build a fire under those on Capitol Hill who have been demanding a retrenchment in Federal spending.

At the outset, he acknowledged that the number of Americans out of work was "almost four million"—about a million of them young people and veterans who have become available for employment for the first time.

Both Groups Are Wrong

He said that in some fields there had been a slight decline in production, in others none at all. But in manufacturing, he continued, output in June was 13 per cent below what it was last November.

"These are the facts," Mr. Truman said. "I am not coloring them one way or the other.

"Some people are saying, and saying very loudly, that these facts mean that we are in a depression. Many of these people, for political reasons, would like to have a depression. Others are saying that

Stocks Advance To Highest Level In Seven Weeks

New York, July 13 (AP).—The stock market advanced to the highest level in nearly seven weeks today.

Key issues moved up from a few cents to around $2 a share. Public demand, according to brokers, contributed to the rise.

News that the United Steel Workers had called a strike for Friday midnight came after trading closed.

Today's advance started in mid-June after the market, at the end of a steep slide, had hit a 4½-year low on June 13.

Some leading issues which closed higher included: United States Steel at $22.25, Bethlehem Steel $25.87, Youngstown Sheet $61.62, Jones & Laughlin $23.75, Chrysler $49, United States Rubber $35.75, Caterpillar Tractor $30.87, Nickel Plate Railroad $68 (up $4.50). Kennecott Copper $47.62, Dow Chemical $46, United States Gypsum $98.50, Standard Oil (NJ) $86.50, and Twentieth Century-Fox $23.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks hit the highest level since May 27.

Now You Can Select Used Cars By Price

Look in today's Post classified pages. You'll find a new development in Used Car advertising—The Post's Automobile Selector. It makes selection quick and easy for you, because the cars are grouped by price.

Whether your top limit is $400 or $2500, you'll find this new listing convenient. The Post's Automobile Selector lists cars logically, sensibly, by price groups—under $500, $500-$999, $1000-$1499, and so on.

Uninvited Guests Rob 4 TV Fans Of $500, Watches

Four men watching a television show in a darkened uptown apartment were robbed last night by three uninvited guests, they told police.

Don Thomas, 34, a beautician, told Detective Sergt. W. L. Sparshott of the robbery squad that he and three friends had gathered in his apartment at 3616 Connecticut ave. nw. to watch a wrestling match. Hearing a knock on the door, he said, he opened it and the three intruders forced their way into the room.

The bandits, white men and two of them armed, took more than $500 in cash and postal savings checks from the four, he said. They also grabbed two wrist watches and two rings from the wrestling fans.

Thomas' guests were identified as Harry Roth, 39, of 1427 Wisconsin ave. nw., an employe of the Christ Child Society; and Alvin Friend, 22, a University of Maryland student, and William A. McGahey, 36, an Evening Star employe, both of 1010 25th st. nw.

14-Day Reprieve

Order Refusing Mercy Is Late, Gives Garners Longer to Live

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

Two condemned murderers got a 14-day reprieve yesterday because the presidential order denying them mercy arrived 30 minutes too late in District Court.

The doomed men are George A. Garner, 27, and his brother, Lawrence J. Garner, 24. They were scheduled to die Friday in the District Jail electric chair, but their execution was postponed until July 29 by Judge Jennings Bailey.

The stay was based on the belief that President Truman still was considering letters from the two men pleading for executive clemency. Actually, just an hour before Judge Bailey acted, President Truman had signed an order denying the two mercy, but the court did not know this at the time.

According to White House officials, Mr. Truman's action was at 9:30 a. m. Court proceedings in the case began at 10 o'clock and at 10:35 the Garners were told by the judge they had two more weeks of life.

Justice Department authorities said they did not get the President's order until shortly before 11 o'clock, when it was delivered by messenger. It was telephoned to the court at 11:05.

The Garners were convicted in June, 1948, of the holdup shooting of Howard Jones, 27, of 417 Irving st. nw. Police at the time said the slaying was one of the most brutal in the city's history, and charged the men with a second murder also.

Pinball and Slot Machine Operators Take 80 to 90 Per Cent of Play as Clear Profit

By Ernest E. Blanche

(This is the fifth of seven installments condensing Blanche's recent book on facts and fallacies about gambling. The author is Chief Statistician for the Logistics Division of the Army General Staff. As a hobby, he has studied gambling for 20 years. He's convinced—you can't win!—Editor's Note.)

Pinball and slot machines have been aptly termed one-armed bandits. Their daily "take" reaches staggering proportions. About 80 to 90 per cent of what the players put into them is clear profit for the operator.

Although the slot machine is supposed to be illegal in most States, it appears to be a standard fixture in a surprisingly large number of taverns, bowling alleys and clubs.

The slot machine has three wheels set in vertical position. Insert a coin, pull down a lever, and you send the three wheels whirling. When the wheels stop, three fruit or other picture symbols show up in the little glass windows of the machine.

If the device is a nickel machine of the fruit-symbol type, the cherry combinations pay from 10 to 25 cents; three oranges pay 40 cents; three plums, 60 cents; three bells, one dollar; three bars, about four dollars—the jackpot.

For a dime machine the values are approximately doubled; for a quarter machine, the values are almost quintupled.

The mechanical action is always the same, whether you pull the lever slowly or yank it down vigorously. After a second or so, a little rod slides into a notch on the sprocket of the first wheel, causing an audible click.

The same kind of movement and click occurs with each of the other two wheels. Then a fourth click is sounded when the lock-off switch stops the machine. Now and then there is a fifth click

In Kentucky Ballot Fraud Trial

Prichard Fails to Take Stand; Judge to Instruct Jury Today

Lexington, Ky., July 13 (AP).—A Federal Court jury will try Thursday to decide the guilt or innocence of two young attorneys accused of conspiracy to forge 254 ballots in the Bourbon County election last fall.

Testimony for and against E. F. Prichard, jr., 34, and A. E. Funk, jr., 27, his law partner, was completed today and counsel presented final arguments.

The defense closed its case without putting Prichard, one-time aide to ranking New Deal officials, on the stand.

Judge H. Church Ford said he would instruct the jury Thursday. His instructions, he said, would be lengthy.

The jury will consider only the guilt or innocence of the defendants. If there is a conviction, the judge will determine the penalty.

The maximum punishment is $5000 fine and 10 years imprisonment.

The final witness in the seven-day-old trial was Mrs. Lucy Prichard, wife of the codefendant.

The general pattern of defense for the portly one-time counsel for the Democratic National Committee was to establish his whereabouts for several days prior to the election. This is the time the Government charged the fraud was committed.

Funk's defense was built largely on a defense-hired handwriting expert who asserted the young attorney did not write the names of precinct officers on the bogus documents. A Government expert said comparison of known and questioned writings disclosed Funk, son of the State attorney general,

Attlee Says Idle Dockers Peril Britain

London, July 13 (NHYT).—Prime Minister Clement Attlee today warned London's idle dockers they are gravely endangering the economy of Britain "in a critical period in its history."

The Prime Minister spoke in a debate in the House of Commons on the declaration by King George VI on Monday of a state of emergency giving the Labor Government virtually dictatorial powers to deal with the spreading work stoppage in London's docks. The Commons approved the decree by a vote of 412 to 4.

The number of dockers refusing to work continued to grow. At mid-afternoon, the number was 13,964, compared to 13,296 yesterday. Six additional ships were idle, bringing the total to 132. 11,000 dockers still are working.

For the third day, approximately 2300 troops unloaded ships, mostly food cargoes. Plans were laid for using 4500 troops in the docks Thursday.

Attlee outlined the history of the stoppage, which goes back nearly two months to the arrival of two Canadian ships involved in an allegedly Communist-inspired union dispute in Canada.

London dockers refused to work the two ships because of loyalty to their fellow dockers in Canada. Two weeks ago, the London Dock Labor Board refused to let the dockers work other ships until the two Canadian ships were unloaded. The dockers charged a lockout; the board charged a strike.

"I think beyond doubt," Attlee said, "that is is clearly a strike."

Appealing to the men to go back to work, Attlee said the Canadian union fight was none of their affair. The London dockers, he charged, were being "misguided" and "unscrupulously exploited" by Communist dock leaders.

Anthony Eden, deputy leader of the Conservative Party, supported the state of emergency, but insisted the Labor Government must share some of the blame for the stoppage.

"I cannot find it a sufficient explanation merely to say that the Communists have got these men by the throats," Eden said.

Charging that the government has failed to explain the issues adequately to the dockers, Eden attacked Labor Minister George Isaacs as "an earnest and well-intentioned man panting along too many laps behind the event."

French Dockers Refuse To Unload British Ships

Paris, July 13 (U.P.).—Some 35,000 dockers of the French National Federation of Ports and Docks today refused to unload British ships in a solidarity measure with striking British dockhands.

The federation is a branch of the Communist-dominated General Confederation of Labor.

Empire Wants Dollar Talks To Continue

London, July 13 (AP). — Finance Ministers of the British Commonwealth of nations agreed today that American-British-Canadian talks should be continued in an effort to find a long-term solution of the dollar shortage.

The ministers held in secret the first session of a conference that is expected to last through next week. Sir Stafford Cripps, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, outlined the results of his talks last weekend with John Snyder, United States Secretary of the Treasury, and Douglas Abbott, Canadian Finance Minister.

The three officials announced last Sunday they hoped to hold another discussion in Washington next September after preliminary fact-finding conferences among their experts.

The Finance Ministers of Canada, Australia, New Zealand, India, Pakistan, Ceylon, South Africa and the self-governing colony of Southern Rhodesia met at Prime Minister Attlee's No. 10 Downing st. residence.

Attlee was quoted by the Treasury as telling the ministers Britain's dollar crisis is linked directly with the whole problem of world stability and peace.

The group then plunged into what was called a study of "long-term and fundamental questions of policy" at the Treasury.

On Friday the ministers will begin a study of what further belt-tightening the Commonwealth can stand.

The ministers will attend the House of Commons Thursday when Cripps speaks in the first of two days of debate on his financial policies.

Conference sources emphasized the ministers are not in London to make decisions. They will exchange views and take these views back to their governments for possible action.

Chiang Schedules Tour To Spur Sagging Morale

Canton, July 13 (U.P.).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek soon will tour the free South China provinces to boost morale there against the Communist armies, government sources said today.

Report of Chiang's impending visit came as Acting President Li Tsung-jen was reported increasingly impatient over refusal of the generalissimo to come here for scheduled conferences on China's future.

Helmstedt, Germany, July 13 (AP). Russian guards gave the green light tonight to West German trucks bound for Berlin. They permitted the vehicles to pass this zonal border checkpoint at a normal rate for the first time since last Saturday.

The sudden Soviet decision to relax restrictions was not explained. It was put into effect at about the time 60 trucks of an American Army convoy, en route to Berlin, arrived here.

Late tonight heavily laden German fish, fruit and vegetable trucks were moving through the checkpoint at the rate of one every three minutes. During the last five days the Russians had held them to four-an-hour.

The Russians still were maintaining that only Helmstedt could be used as a border-crossing point. Berlin-bound trucks normally use five additional entry points.

Talks between East and West Germans on a revival of trade came to an unsuccessful end in Berlin. Disagreement on currency was given as the main reason.

Ex-Nazi Chiefs' Letters Urge Election Boycott

Frankfurt, Germany, July 13 (U.P.).—Former Nazi leaders have circulated mimeographed letters to millions of their former followers in the American zone asking them to boycott the Aug. 14 elections, it was learned today.

The anonymous letters circulating clandestinely have been picked up by German police throughout the zone. They instructed "trustworthy persons" to stay away from the polls.

Police said the letters came from former high Nazi officials recently released from camps.

Police refused to reveal whether they had made any arrests or planned to make any.

The letters complained that former Hitlerites were being treated as second-class citizens of the new west German state because they are not alowed to run for office.

Police in Frankfurt and Hof, Bavaria, said letters called on west German state governments to readmit former Nazis to political life or to face the "consequences."

Polish Church Believed Next Target of Reds

Vatican City, July 13 (U.P.).—Vatican sources said today that a Russian campaign to wipe out the Roman Catholic church in eastern Europe would next be directed at Poland.

The sources said the first acts against the church already had started there but predicted the Communists would have great difficulties because most Poles are ardent Catholics.

"There is no doubt that all the events in eastern Europe form a carefully planned pattern, directed from Moscow and aimed at wiping out the Catholic church," the sources said.

The sources noted that church-state conflicts already had started in Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary, Yugoslavia, Albania, Czechoslovakia and the Baltic States.

Woman Killed, 19 Hurt In Lublin 'Miracle' Crush

Warsaw, Poland, July 13 (AP).—Poland's official press agency reported a woman trampled to death and 19 other persons injured today in a stampede to see a "weeping Virgin" miracle in Lublin, eastern Poland.

The agency charged the Roman Catholic hierarchy in Poland had "deliberately" encouraged a hysterical pilgrimage.

The agency said 100,000 poles, hoping for miraculous cures, were massed around the Lublin cathedral when a wooden stockade collapsed, causing the casualties. It said near chaos reigned in Lublin tonight.

The agency said church leaders finally admitted there was "no ground for thinking that a miracle had occurred."

Church leaders were not available.

23 Aussie Reds Defy Court on Strike Funds

Sydney, Australia, July 13 (U.P.). Twenty-three officials of the Communist Party today defied a court order demanding that they return party funds withdrawn to support the crippling, 18-day-old coal miners strike.

The officials automatically became liable to contempt of court charges, which are expected to be filed Thursday. Four union officials already have been jailed on similar charges.

The Communist - dominated Miners Federation again defied the Federal Arbitration Board and refused to surrender some $28,000 of union funds also withdrawn in violation of the freezing order.

Between 600,000 and 700,000 persons—about eight per cent of Australia's entire population—have been thrown out of work by the strike. Several cities are without gas and electricity for 20 hours a day.

German Plants Get Church Aid

Chichester, England, July 13 (AP). The central committee of the World Council of Churches today adopted a resolution urging that the dismantling of factories in Germany be handled so as to avoid the danger of "mass misery and unemployment."

The committee is holding a six-day conference on world church problems. It represents Protestant and orthodox church groups in 44 nations.

The resolution was adopted after Pastor Martin Niemoeller of Berlin had declared the present policy of dismantling is a "crime against humanity."

He said dismantling now is being carried out with the question uppermost "whether a plant can possibly be used for war purposes."

"My answer," he declared, "is that any plant can be. The question should rather be whether any plant can be used for peace purposes."

Truman Assures NEA Head of U. S. Aid to Education

Dr. Andrew D. Holt, newly elected president of the National Education Association, visited the White House yesterday to discuss with President Truman Federal-aid-to-education legislation now pending in Congress.

The Nashville, Tenn., educator said the President reiterated his optimism over chances of enactment by the present Congress of aid to the States.

Dr. Holt expressed the appreciation of the 825,000 NEA members for the telegram President Truman sent last week to the NEA convention in Boston expressing approval of the Federal aid program.

U. S., Soviets In Clash Over Jap Strikes

By The Associated Press

The United States and Russia swapped hot charges yesterday over strike disorders in Japan.

Frank R. McCoy, American representative on the Far Eastern Commission, said Russia is trying to take advantage of the disorders, which he said are aimed at "creating a condition favorable to the seizure of political power."

Without saying Moscow is responsible for the outbreaks, he said the Soviets are using the situation for propaganda purposes. Other American officials have blamed a recent series of strikes and demonstrations on Japanese Communists, whose ranks are being swelled by the return of Soviet-trained war prisoners from Siberia.

Brutality Charged

Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin responded with the assertion that the Japanese government and Gen. Douglas MacArthur have launched a "brutal" campaign to suppress "democratic elements." He renewed an appeal for the commission to upset Japanese laws denying the right of strike and collective bargaining to employes of Japanese railways and other government enterprises. He declared this denial conflicted with the Potsdam agreement.

The verbal punches were traded at a closed-door session of the commission, which sets over-all policies for MacArthur to carry out as occupation commander. When Panyushkin made his statement public, the State Department published a 7000-word point-by-point reply to earlier criticisms of the Soviet envoy, along with McCoy's comments yesterday.

McCoy said that cases of mob violence in Panyushkin cities were acts of a "lawless few" and were not designed to protect labor rights."

"On the contrary," he said, "it is clear to us that this is a centrally directed campaign to create fear, social unrest, confusion and disorder, which is intended to undermine the authority of the government, in the hope of creating a condition favorable to the seizure of political power."

Romulo Raps U. S. Policy

American occupation policies were criticized by Carlos P. Romulo of the Philippines, who suggested that if the United States insists on halting Japanese reparations payments it should provide compensation for Pacific nations which suffered from Japan's war acts.

Panyushkin in his attack declared that "hundreds" were injured May 30 when 2000 policemen broke up a "peaceful" demonstration in Tokyo. He said that on June 14 police "mobbed" steel workers at Hiroshima after 622 employes had been discharged."

McCoy declared the Japanese authorities have exercised care and restraint. He said lawless elements were responsible for the demonstrations.

"Police have been used only when necessary to clear public buildings so that governmental functions could go on, to protect property and maintain order," McCoy said. Arrests have been made only where demonstrators resisted or even attacked the policemen, he said.

Priests Face Treason Trial, Czechs Hear

Prague, Czechoslovakia, July 13 (U.P.).—Reliable sources said tonight the Czechoslovak Communist Party has distributed a circular disclosing plans to charge some members of the Roman Catholic hierarchy with treason.

Penalties were also threatened against many priests who have read pastoral letters of Archbishop Josef Beran in defiance of the Communist government.

The Communist circular, as quoted by informants, said 56 per cent of Catholic priests read the pastoral letter of June 19 and that 90 per cent read the second letter, of June 26, despite a police ban.

Monsignor Gennaro Verolino, charge d'affaires of the Papal Nunciate here, prepared to leave for Vatican City. His successor, one Monsignor Bertolini, already has been named and is expected here from Switzerland within a few days.

The Communist newspaper Rude Pravo denied reports, said to have been circulated in "an enemy broadcast," that Archbishop Beran was under arrest. It said not a hair of his head had been harmed.

Church experts said there are two ways an excommunicated Communist may get back into the church.

One is to ask personally that the excommunication be lifted. This would necessitate the renunciation of communism. The other is for the Holy Office to rescind its own decree.

"You're Nuts" Rates Apology in Commons

London, July 13 (U.P.).—If a member of Parliament says that another member is "nuts" he must apologize formally, it was ruled today.

Labor member Ernest Thurtle objected today because Communist member William Gallacher said "he is nuts" and the words were printed in the official record.

Thurstle threatened in retaliation to call Gallacher a liar for the record.

Gallacher rose and said, "I want to offer an apology for using the expression which has caused so much trouble."

Soviet Asked to Admit North Korea Observers

Lake Success, N. Y., July 13 (U.P.). The United Nations Korean Commission today asked Russia again to permit its observers to enter Soviet-supported northern Korea to verify the withdrawal of Red Army occupation forces."

It was at least the third request by the commission, whose previous overtures brought blunt rebuffs from the Soviet Union.

The commission had observed the withdrawal of United States occupation forces from American-backed southern Korea.

Payless Intern

Overholser Backs Turk For U. S. Stay

A bill to let a 35-year-old volunteer Turkish doctor at St. Elizabeths Hospital become a permanent resident of this country was forwarded to the House yesterday by its Judiciary Committee.

The doctor is Leon L. Konchegul. The committee approved his permanent admission to this country upon the request of Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent of St. Elizabeths, and over the opposition of the Justice Department.

Dr. Konchegul came to Washington in October, 1947, on a student's visa. He had obtained his medical degree from the University of Istanbul, his native city. He works without pay at St. Elizabeths, while studying psychiatry, and has quarters there.

The Justice Department, opposing the bill, said he is unlawfully overstaying his six-month student's visa. It said deportation proceedings were being held up pending consideration of the bill.

Dr. Overholser testified that Dr. Konchegul is a man of "excellent moral character and high professional qualifications" and that there are some 900 vacancies in psychiatrist positions in this country.

And the committee, declaring the vital need for Dr. Konchegul's services in this country had been "well established," urged the House to approve the bill.

Kremlin Fancies Dimitrov Kin As New Premier of Bulgaria

London, July 13 (U.P.).—The Kremlin has "advised" the Bulgarian Communist Party that it wants Vulko Chervenkov to succeed the late Georgi Dimitrov as Bulgarian Premier, reliable reports from Sofia said today.

The Sofia reports said the Soviet Politburo intervened directly in the intra-Bulgarian quarrel and advised the central committee of the Bulgarian Communist Party that Chervenkov would be most acceptable.

Chervenkov, described as a "brutal person with unlimited ambitions," is a brother-in-law of Dimitrov, who died in Moscow early this month after a long illness.

The Sofia reports said he probably will get the job as Premier, ending a squabble among the Bulgarian Communists as to Dimitrov's successor.

Persons who have met Chervenkov said he had no particular qualifications for the post. His opponents said he married Dimitrov's sister, 10 years older than he, solely to further his own political advancement.

It was believed in London that Soviet Premier Josef Stalin personally communicated the Kremlin's choice to the three Bulgarian Communists who went to Moscow to get the remains of Dimitrov.

Submarine Spotted Off Chinese Naval Base

Hongkong, July 13 (AP).—A Chinese Central News Agency dispatch from Kaoshiung, Formosa, today said an unidentified submarine was spotted 5200 yards off Changshun Island last Monday.

Treaty 'Declaration' To Bar Arms Asked

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A treaty "declaration" denying any obligation to supply arms to Europe yesterday was tossed into the Senate's hair-splitting debate over United States commitments under the North Atlantic Defense Pact.

Senate Republican Leader Wherry (Nebr.), a potential opponent of the pact, said he offered the amendment to serve notice on the 11 other signatory powers what our intentions are.

Wherry contended his "declaration" would not affect the basic treaty or force its renegotiation, but Senate parliamentarians labeled it a "reservation" that, if adopted, would have to be submitted to all the other signatory powers.

At Wherry's request, Vice President Barkley finally handed down a formal ruling from the chair.

Barkley said any change in the ratifying resolution would have to be communicated to other signatory nations "to determine whether they assented to the reservation or change."

"I suppose any nation could object to that and withdraw?" asked Wherry.

"Yes," said Barkley. "Or it could say, 'We do not accept that interpretation; and that statement in itself might bring on renegotiation, or it might be possible to have a meeting of minds on the matter."

Senate debate narrowed down to a reservation fight following statements by some leading proponents of the treaty that the United States was not "legally or morally" obligated to provide arms.

Wherry and outnumbered opponents of the treaty wanted to write that interpretation into the ratifying resolution, differing only in degree on how far the reservation should go.

This turn in the debate, stemming largely from a speech Tuesday by freshman Senator Dulles (R., N. Y.), a supporter of the pact, brought a quick reaction from the State Department.

Secretary of State Acheson told a press conference the proposed $1,450,000,000 arms-for-Europe program, to be submitted to Congress immediately after ratification of the treaty, is the absolute minimum necessary to strengthen western Europe against possible Communist aggression.

Acheson said he thinks the Administration can convince Congress the full amount should be approved.

"Senate Interpretation"

Under questioning, Dulles had said he reserved the right to judge the arms program on its merits, but thought the program as now proposed is excessive and could be cut down. Acheson, however, said the figure had been screened thoroughly by the Administration already and flatly opposed any further cut.

Wherry's reservation move was another repercussion from the Dulles speech. During Tuesday's debate, the Nebraskan had finally pinned Dulles down to a statement that there was no legal or moral commitments to supply arms under the treaty.

Wherry said he was merely presenting as a "Senate interpretation" what Dulles, and earlier Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) and some other proponents had conceded in debate.

Dulles and other treaty supporters took immediate issue with the Wherry "declaration."

Fears Grave Consequences

Dulles said it might have grave consequences if misinterpreted abroad to mean a change in our international position or "that we are not going into the treaty in good faith and have mental reservations.

Following a conference later with Wherry, Dulles said he objected to the resolution "in its present form." He said he could not support a reservation that would mean either renegotiation or resubmission of the treaty.

Senate Foreign Affairs Chairman Connally (D., Tex.) told newsmen: "We're against all reservations."

Later the Texan tangled with Wherry on the Senate floor during Barkley's ruling on the effect of a reservation.

Said Connally: "Any change in the resolution ratifying the treaty goes to the very heart of the thing. If such a change does not mean anything, it has no business being adopted.

"But if we were to modify the resolution which ratifies the treaty, that modification would have to be submitted to the other signatory powers, because they might not agree."

Lodge Oppose Move

Wherry told the Senate he offered the amendment in good faith with no thought of "hurting or destroying this pact."

Vandenberg withheld comment on the Wherry move but asked reporters: What do you think?" One newsman said he thought the reservation would be rejected. Vandenberg said he "showed good judgment."

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr. (R., Mass.), whose grandfather led the reservation fight on the League of Nations, minced no words in opposing the Wherry move.

"It completely ignores the realities," said Lodge, "Whatever the moral obligation, there's a common-sense obligation to supply arms where they are needed."

Lodge referred to the "moral obligation" debate as "legalistic, logic-chopping obfuscation." Then, gesturing toward the Senate chamber, he added: "There's too much law school and not enough reality in there."

The ever-lengthening debate on the arms point meanwhile made it doubtful the Senate will vote this week. Senate Democratic Leader Lucas (Ill.) today will seek unanimous consent to vote at 1 p. m. Saturday, but opponents may counter with a proposal to vote Monday.

Prior to Wherry's move for an "interpretive" amendment, Senator Watkins (R., Utah) had offered a flat reservation denying any obligation under any article of the treaty to supply arms.

Wherry's more tempered proposal was so worded to concede an obligation on our part to act once Article 5, under which signatories agree that an attack on one signatory is an attack on all, goes into operation.

Others Take Floor

Nor would Wherry's declaration preclude action meanwhile on an arms program, "if justified on its merits," or certain preparatory "mutual aid" moves under Articles 3 and 9, the Nebraskan insisted.

Meanwhile, three Republican Senators took the floor for the treaty. They were Senators Hendrickson (New Jersey), Ferguson (Michigan) and Knowland (California). Two Republicans, Senators Flanders (Vermont) and Langer (North Dakota) spoke against ratification.

CBS Claims Credit In Color Video Advance

Columbia Broadcasting System has made "significant advances and improvements" in color television, the Senate Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce was told yesterday by Frank Stanton, CBS president.

Stanton wrote to this effect to Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.), chairman of the committee, in answer to charges that he said had ben made recently before the committee that CBS is "attempting to hinder the development of color television." He said the experimentation has gone forward despite the Federal Communication Commission's denial in 1947 of a CBS application for commercial color video.

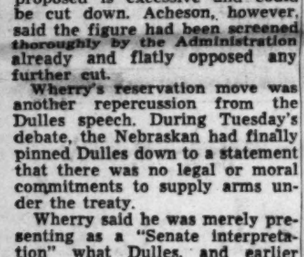
Arms Offered for Cotton

Cairo, Egypt, July 14 (AP).—An authoritative Egyptian source said today Czechoslovakia has proposed an exchange of five million pounds ($20,800,000) worth of Egyptian cotton for Czech products consisting mostly of arms. He said Egyptian authorities seemed inclined to accept the offer.

Bail-Out Safe At 555 MPH

The Air Force said last night that recent tests have shown pilots can bail out of planes safely at speeds as high as 55 miles an hour.

The tests were conducted by two volunteers with an improved version of the standard ejection seat first tested successfully at 300 miles an hour in 1946.



Capt. Mazza Sergt. James

Capt. Vincent Mazza, 32-year-old air material command officer, felt "no ill effects" after he was "shot" from a plane at 530 and 555 miles, the Air Force said.

The tests were made over San Pablo Bay near San Rafael, Calif., with the pilots strapped to their seats. The cockpit seat is ejected from the aircraft by the explosion of a 37 millimeter cartridge.

The seat, when freed from the plane, is stabilized by automatically operated flaps and a small drag parachute. The pilot then is freed automatically from the seat and his own parachute opens.

Mazza said an escaping pilot can work the manual controls "easily" to free himself if the automatic control fails.

The other volunteer, Staff Sergt. Victor A. James, bailed out successfully at 405 miles an hour.

Rep. Macy Hits Kaufman

Representative Macy (R., N. Y.) yesterday joined in congressional criticism of Judge Samuel F. Kaufman of New York, accusing the jurist of trying to "intimidate the press" during the Alger Hiss perjury trial.

Macy quoted the judge as saying reporters had no right to express their views of the trial.

"I label such unprecedented and unheard of statement by a Federal Court judge a direct threat to the freedom of the press," he told the House. "I agree with my colleagues that Judge Kaufman's conduct reflected discredit upon the bench."

Representative Smith (R., Wis.) said the Hiss trial raised the question of the "propriety" of United States Supreme Court judges testifying as character witnesses in trials. Justices Felix Frankfurter and Stanley F. Reed testified in Hiss' defense.

Smith introduced a bill providing that no Federal judge may be compelled to serve as a character witness in any judicial action.

The top officers of the Nation's military services met at the Greenbrier Hotel for a period of relaxation and better understanding on orders of Defense Secretary Johnson. They are to discard all forms of military work during the "play duty" as part of Johnson's unified plan of "cross education" for the heads of the three services learned last night that Government legal experts have concluded that the President can do by reorganization order practically everything provided in the Tydings bill but:

1. Establishment of the fiscal changes provided under Title Four—inasmuch as they affect the General Accounting Office, an agency of Congress.

2. Transformation of the departments of Army, Navy and Air Force from the status of executive departments to military departments.

This latter restriction, however, is of little importance, it is felt. For the President could by reorganization order create the proposed new Department of Defense and make the other three departments subservient to it, these authorities hold.

Military Pay Vote Postponed Week

Moreover, the President could by such order expand the powers of the Secretary of Defense, remove the three service secretaries from the National Security Council, create a chairman for the Joint Chiefs of Staff and carry out other major features of the Tydings Act, say these legal experts.

While the President is not expected to go beyond his unification proposals of last March, these went further than either the Senate or House versions of the bill. Specifically, the Administration asked greater power and prestige for the JCS chairman.

Meanwhile, the Senate Armed Services Committee put off a vote on the military pay bill until Thursday morning. The group completed its final reading of the measure yesterday and originally planned to meet today to vote.

Military Economies First

Several Senators have threatened to hold up action on the 300-million-dollar pay bill until the House committee paves the way for military economies by approving the unification bill. Chairman Tydings (D., Md.) has predicted that the pay boost will have hard sledding in the light of the House committee action on Tuesday.

Almost all top defense chiefs except Defense Secretary Louis Johnson are at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. for conferences that will run through Friday. Johnson had expected to fly there yesterday, but did not. Ostensibly, he canceled his plans because of bad weather, but more likely it was to direct the fight for the unification bill. He may not make the trip at all.

'Enemy No. 1' Sentenced

Only 1400 Negro Reds in U. S., Paul Robeson Hearing Told

Alvin W. Stokes, House investigator, said yesterday there are fewer than 1400 Negroes in the American Communist Party although Negroes are "the targets of constant and relentless Communist propaganda."

He testified before the House Committee on Un-American Activities, which opened hearings into assertions by Paul Robeson, Negro singer, American Negroes will never fight against Russia. Stokes is a Negro committee agent.

Rabbi Benjamin Schultz of New York, executive director of the American League Against Communism, testified that Robeson was taking part in a "deliberate Communist conspiracy to inflame racial and religious minorities in the United States.

He said the object of the drive is "to throw this land into confusion, paving the way for Stalinist revolution and conquest.

Representative Francis E. Walter (D., Pa.) proposed that Robeson be subpenaed to explain his affection for the Soviet Union. Chairman John S. Wood (D., Ga.) said the suggestion will be considered.

Wood also announced that Jackie Robinson, star second baseman for the Brooklyn Dodgers, will testify Monday. Robinson was unable to appear yesterday. He was to have been the lead-off man of a group of Negroes called to refute Robeson's claims.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, president of Columbia University, said in a letter to the committee read by Wood, that Negroes were as loyal as any other American soldiers during World War II.

Eisenhower, who commanded American forces in Europe, said it no more occurred to him to question the mass patriotism of Negro soldiers "than it would have occurred to me to entertain such doubts about the entire force."

He said that with more than 400,000 Negroes in the war, the "grave results" of any general unrest "could not have escaped spectacular notice and sensational reporting by the press."

Thomas E. Young, Norfolk, Va., Negro publisher, testified he had heard Robeson "declare his own personal disloyalty to the United States." He said it took place during a "smoker" given the singer in Norfolk in October, 1947, during which Robeson allegedly said:

"If this country ever went to war against Russia, and my son took up arms to fight Russia, he would be no longer my son."

Young said the Negro people consider Robeson a "false prophet," who is "unfaithful to their country and they repudiate him."

George K. Hunton, executive secretary of the Catholic Interracial Council, said he became active in 1941 in efforts to bring Negro players into major league baseball. He said the Communists had nothing to do with it, but tried "shamelessly" to get in on the publicity.

He said the Communists have tried to increase racial antagonism, but "I believe their sinister plot has failed completely."

Describing a meeting held recently to welcome Robeson back from Russia, Stokes said less than 25 per cent of the 5000 persons present were Negroes.

At the meeting, he said, Robeson reiterated his claim that it is "unthinkable" American Negroes would fight for the United States in a war with Russia.

Schultz said the majority of Negroes, Jews, Catholics and foreign-born in this country, "in common with their fellow-Americans, detest communism."

"But the Communists will not desist from their efforts until the minorities are separately won over or the Communist movement destroyed," he asserted.

He said the Communists have set up a number of "front" organizations to appeal to the Jewish people. Among them he listed:

American Birobidjan Committee; Joint Committee to Combat Anti-Semitism; American Committee of Jewish Writers, Artists and Scientists, and its magazine New Currents; Chelsea, Mass., Jewish Children's School; Defense Committee for Alexander Bittleman; Icor; Jewish People's Fraternal Order, a section of the International Workers Order; Publishing House of Ikuf; and the magazine, The Protestant.

He said The Protestant is ostensibly a Protestant publication to combat Anti-Semitism, but actually is a "very clever" device to obtain money for Communist causes.

Aid to Spain Is Opposed By Acheson

Secretary of State Acheson said yesterday he could find better use for 50 million dollars than to give it to Spain.

Acheson made the remark at a news conference in commenting on the action of the Senate Appropriations Committee in earmarking 50 million dollars of Marshall Plan money for a loan to the Franco government.

Answering questions, Acheson made it plain he is flatly opposed to lending or giving Spain any American funds until it makes certain economic reforms suggested by the United States.

Acheson emphasized that the State Department has no political objections to granting Spain an American loan. But he recalled that the Export-Import Bank in considering Spain for a loan ruled it was a bad credit risk until it took measures to put its economy in order.

He commented that Congress, the State Department and the Economic Cooperation Administration have all followed, up to this time, the policy that, if Spain is to be brought into the Marshall Plan, the decision should be made by the European countries, not the United States.

Meanwhile, a proposal to freeze some $1,500,000,000 in United States farm products into the coming year's Marshall Plan shipments aroused alarm in the ECA. The agricultural surplus rider was tucked into ECA's fiscal 1950 appropriation and approved Tuesday by the Senate Appropriations Committee. The bill provides $3,778,000,000 for second-year funds.

One ECA official privately called the amendment a "horrible straitjacket" on the agency's effort to administer the recovery program. Others predicted it might "waste" 200 million to 500 million dollars in ECA funds through shipments of goods not needed or wanted abroad.

The amendment was offered by Senator McClellan (D., Ark.). It would require ECA to put up dollars for agricultural commodity shipments in exactly the amounts given in ECA's estimate of Europe's needs, submitted in March.

In other words, England would have to take the full amounts of cotton, tobacco, wheat or other farm products then estimated as required. Otherwise these funds would be withheld; ECA would have no discretion to shift them to machinery, oil or other products for whichh Britain might report a greater need.

Marshall Plan supporters planned to put up a strong fighht to defeat the amendment in the Senate. One official argued that Britain's suddenly-developed crisis is a sample of the need for a flexible administration. The swift drop in British exports indicates she may not need as much raw cotton to process as had been anticipated.

When told that ECA officials were objecting, McClellan said: "That is all right with me. Now is as good a time as any to have a showdown on this matter. It's a good time to find out how they intend to administer this program."

Southerners Back GOP's Farm Plan

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Administration Democrats in the House came face to face with another Southern revolt yesterday.

Tuesday the Democrats decided in caucus on a new farm program. It included continued support of some farm commodities at 90 per cent of parity, plus a trial run on two or three commodities of the new farm program proposed by Agriculture Secretary Brannan.

Yesterday Representative Gore (D., Tenn.) jumped the traces. Gore said he and a group of Southern Democrats he leads will oppose the party scheme.

GOP Leaders Heartened

Instead, they will support the Republican program calling for continuing the present law—to support some farm prices at a rigid 90 per cent of parity. Or, Gore said, they may write their own program.

The Gore statement gave great cheer to Republican farm leaders. Last night they were freely predicting they would be able to put their program over in the House and block all trials of the Brannan Plan.

"Farmers are not for the Brannan Plan," Gore declared. "I think it is fuzzy, befuddled politics to think that we, the Democrats, can make political hay by force-feeding the farmer something he doesn't want."

The Brannan program would provide for parity of farm income. The present law provides for support of some farm prices at 90 per cent of parity. However, the second section of the present law, passed by the Republican Eightieth Congress, provides for a sliding scale of support prices after next January.

Compromise Being Studied

However, Senator Aiken (R., Vt.) author of that section of the law, says the law wasn't meant to reduce farm-price supports.

Under it, he said last week, prices should be supported at 90 per cent of parity the same as now. The sliding scale, he said, was put in merely to protect the farmer against supports being dropped by administrative action below a certain point.

(Parity is a price level for farm commodities equal to the price level of things farmers must buy.)

Yesterday's developments still further confused an already confused farm program. A Senate Agriculture Subcommittee is meeting this week trying to work out a compromise program between the so-called Aiken portion of the present law and the Brannan proposal.

The Senate version, however, would be so far different from the bills offered in the House that observers see little chance of agreement.

Debate to Begin Monday

The Brannan plan would bring lower prices for consumers, its proponents declare. It would allow food to find its own price level in the market place. The difference between that and a parity price would be made by the Government subsidy.

Debate on the Democratic House measure will begin in the House Monday under a rule that will permit Gore to offer a substitute.

Mercy Flight Ends in Wreck of Flying Boat . . .

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

COAST GUARDSMEN DUNKED—Nose first, a United States Coast Guard flying boat sinks 300 miles off the coast of San Francisco, July 11. The plane, on a mercy flight, was wrecked in landing near the freighter, Dona Aurora, to which it was carrying medicine for a sick woman aboard. All of the 11 Coast Guardsmen were saved. Some may be seen in liferaft (right). This picture was made minutes after the crash by a passenger aboard the freighter there is nothing to worry about, and that an increase in the number looking for work is a good thing.

Truman Hits Effort to Curtail Spending

"Both groups are wrong. We are not in a depression. But an increase in the number of people out of work is something to worry about, and is something to be cured.

"If we were in a depression, I would be the first person to tell you, and I would call upon all the resources of this Nation to stop it.

"What we face today is not a depression, and if we follow the right course, it will not become a depression."

Recalls His Warning

Mr. Truman explained that the economic change now taking place is the result of the inflationary spiral that was under way until a few months ago. He recalled he had warned against the dangers of inflation and had tried in vain to persuade Congress to give him power to curb the rise in prices.

He said he knew that if prices went too high, they would topple over and bring a decline in production and employment.

Once people had satisfied their urgent needs, he said, they refused to pay high prices. The result was, he said, a decline in production.

"Prices are now finding more reasonable levels," Mr. Truman continued, "a fact which should stimulate sales and production again."

He said, as he had said earlier in the week in his mid-year economic report to Congress, that business, labor, agriculture and Government all should join in the effort to turn the present decline into an upswing.

Breaks Down Budget

After taking a crack at "men of little vision" who say the Government is spending too much money, the President proceeded to break down the Federal budget of 42 billion dollars.

He pointed out that only 12 per cent of the budget goes to pay Federal civilian employes.

Three fourths of the budget, he explained, was connected with international events—more than 14 billion dollars for national defense, seven billion for such things as Marshall Plan aid for Europe, and 11 billion for interest on the national debt and for benefits to war veterans.

"It is expensive to keep up the forces necessary to prevent war," Mr. Truman said, "but in the long run it could be a lot more expensive not to have them."

Warns of Taking Risk

Of the Marshall Plan and allied programs, he said:

"These programs have kept western Europe out of the hands of the Communists, and are helping to restore the economic and social strength of the free nations. If we were to cut these programs, it would weaken our efforts to bring about peace. That is a risk we must not take."

Mr. Truman said that the remaining 10 billion dollars of the budget had to provide for all other functions of the Government. These, he said, included public works, farm price supports, education and housing, and payments for health and social security.

"For a country of this size, with a 200-billion-dollar economy, 10 billion dollars for such essential programs is a reasonable sum indeed.

Assails Wishful Thinking

"Today, after an increase of population and in spite of rising prices, this part of the budget is only 50 per cent greater than it was 10 years ago.

"The other part of the budget—the cost of past wars and of preventing future wars—is the part that has shown such a tremendous increase.

"This part of the budget is 900 per cent greater than it was 10 years ago.

"The size of the budget reflects the world we are living in. We have to face the facts of the world today. It does no good to retire into the world of the past and to wish that somehow the facts would just go away, so that we could have a small budget again."

The leaders of the Republican-dominated Eightieth Congress, he said, thought they could wish the facts away when they put through a tax-reduction bill over his veto.

He recalled his warning that this loss of five billion in revenue would bring about a budget deficit. He pointed out that it had produced one.

Explains Tax-Drop Request

"The economy was running at a high level when this untimely tax cut was made," Mr. Truman said. "People then could pay the taxes necessary to balance the budget and to provide a surplus for debt reduction. Today, because profits and incomes have fallen, taxes bring in less money.

"An increase in taxes now might bear too heavily on business and discourage the investment necessary to full production and employment."

That, he said, was why he had dropped his request, made to Congress last January, for a tax bill to bring in four billion dollars additional revenue.

"Selfish interests were behind the tax reduction of the Eightieth Congress," Mr. Truman said.

"They were also behind the failure to provide authority to stabilize prices. These two blunders of the selfish interests have had unfortunate economic consequences. They will continue to cause us trouble for some time.

"A Third Great Blunder"

"Now these same selfish interests are urging us to commit a third great blunder. They are now urging drastic cuts in Government expenditures — cuts which would fall hardest on those expenditures which are most important to our domestic economy.

"Making cuts of this type in the budget is just the thing you do not do if you want to help the economy expand. At a time when employment is already lower than it should be, cutting Government expenditures would cause more unemployment. At a time when more investment is needed, it would be foolish to cut down productive Government investment in national resources and public works. To slash Government expenditures now, would add to the downward trend."

If the three billion dollars he has recommended for public works were eliminated from the budget, Mr. Truman said, it would throw a million persons out of work.

"They Are Just Against Them"

He continued:

"The people who unwisely urge that Government expenditures be slashed, are for the most part the very same people who have long been opposing our social programs and our resources development programs.

"They have resisted such things as social security, housing, the minimum wage law and public power development, from the very beginning.

"During an inflationary period, they are against these programs because they say they are inflationary. During a deflationary period, they are against them because they say they are deflationary.

"Rain or shine, they are just against them.

"It was programs like these, for the benefit of the people, that saved business in the 30's, that are supporting purchasing power now, and that are laying a foundation for increased prosperity in the future. Most of the people know this, if the selfish interests don't."

Departs from Text

Mr. Truman recalled that he had achieved a budget surplus before the Eightieth Congress passed the 1948 tax reduction bill, and he said he intended to achieve a surplus again.

He said that when income exceeded outgo his Administration applied the difference to the national debt.

"We have already paid off more of the debt than the total size of the national debt after the first world war," he said.

Then, departing from his text, Mr. Truman said his Administration had paid off more of the national debt than the Administrations of all the other Presidents together.

Wherry Hits Truman on 'Ditch' Charge

Republican Senator Wherry (Nebr.) struck back last night at President Truman's charge that "selfish interests" are advocating measures which would land the country in the ditch.

"The Truman Administration is the crowd that is leading us into the ditch," he said. "The Administration is taking us right down the avenue of deficit spending, and I don't know how we could go into the ditch any faster or deeper."

Wherry said "the Truman social welfare program can't possibly be paid for without driving the country into insolvency."

Senator Donnell (R., Mo.) said "I know of no one who desires a depression for political reasons. It would be reprehensible for anyone to do so."

Senator Flanders (R., Vt.), who has acknowledged previously he thinks it was a mistake for the GOP-controlled last Congress to cut income taxes, had this to say of Mr. Truman's charge the reduction was a blunder:

"He's got us there all right. The tax reduction was a mistake—one of the very few the Eightieth Congress made. I voted for it, knew I was doing wrong at the time, and have regretted it ever since."

As for the President's remark that many people would like to have a depression for political reasons, Flanders said:

"Apparently I travel in the wrong circles. I don't want a depression for political reasons, or any other reason, and I don't know anyone who does."

Bill Providing Better Rural Phone Service Passes House

The House yesterday passed legislation designed to provide better rural telephone service. The vote was 282 to 110. The bill now goes to the Senate.

The measure allows the Rural Electrification Administration to make long-term loans to private companies or cooperatives to build and extend telephone facilities in rural areas.

The interest rate would be 2 per cent, the same amount now charged on REA loans for electric lines. Representatives Allen (R., Ill.) and Brown (R., Ohio), tried to hike the rate but failed. Allen proposed 2.5 per cent, Brown 3 per cent.

An amendment to prohibit loans in areas which already have service, unless the existing companies fail to provide adequate facilities, was offered by Representative McMillan (D., S. C.). It lost by a vote of 92 to 34.

House members from big cities and from farm districts joined to pass the bill.

Clothing Sales Bring Boom

money to buy no matter how much you cut prices," he said. "But today there is plenty of consumer money and people are definitely in the market if the price is right. They want to shop around until they feel they've found the right price."

The BLS Consumers' Price Index is divided into six major categories; food, apparel, rent, house furnishings, fuel-electricity-refrigeration and miscellaneous. The latest figures show apparel and house furnishings have gone down about 4½ per cent since last December, with smaller declines for food and fuels. Rent and miscellaneous items have inched upwards.

Reports on fall price prospects in the clothing line indicate customers will get more for less than they did last fall. But how much more for how much less is still unclear, since some major manufacturers have not yet announced prices.

One local spokesman estimated men's suits, for example, will be about 5 or 6 per cent under a year ago, with better quality in material and workmenship as well.

But another merchant reported a big shirt firm that recently cut prices on colored shirts from $3.65 to $1.99 has priced its fall line at the original $3.65.

Complete Control Of Auto Workers Won by Reuther

Milwaukee, July 13 (AP).—Complete control of the CIO United Auto Workers was won today by red-haired Walter P. Reuther whose men swept into every one of the million-member union's regional directorships.

The triumphs assured Reuther, himself reelected to a third term by a smashing majority, of absolute power on the 23-man executive board. In addition to the 19 regional directors, the board includes Reuther and the other three top international officers.

The three newcomers are Harvey Kitzman, Racine Wis., in the newly created Region 10; Ray Ross, Springfield, Ohio, succeeding Paul Miley in Region 2-A, and Pat O'Malley, Cleveland, who replaces Richard Reisinger in Region 2.

Neither Miley nor Reisinger, by agreement, sought reelection. Other union jobs reportedly await both.

Scholarship Won To Cornell U. By Richard Drew

Richard Albert Drew, June graduate from Armstrong Technical High School, has been awarded a Cornell University National Scholarship worth $6000, Cornelis W. de Kiewet, acting president of the university, announced yesterday.

Drew, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Drew, of 2505 1st st. S., Arlington, plans to study civil engineering.

In high school he was president of his junior and senior classes, cadet corps adjutant and a member of the baseball squad. He was on the honor roll each of his three years at Armstrong and in 1947 won first prize at the Washington Science Fair.

'Monopoly' Is Seen In Coal Pit Order

By The Associated Press

One of President Truman's economic advisers hinted yesterday that a House committee investigating monopolistic practices would do well to look into such developments as John L. Lewis' order for a three-day work week in the coal mines.

John D. Clark, a member of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said that if coal mine operators got together and decided on a three-day mining week they would violate the antitrust laws. But because unions are exempt from those laws, he said, Lewis and his United Mine Workers were able to put such a week into effect.

"I need not describe the opportunity for future production control, with management being complacent but carefully avoiding any open collaboration, if this pioneer experiment becomes a practice in the great industries which deal with single unions," he said.

Testifying before a House Judiciary subcommittee, Clark said that failure to check the growth of monopoly poses the alternative of direct Government control over big business. Free and fair competition must be preserved as "the economic justification for our system of free private enterprise."

But, he said, since the first World War there have been an increasing number of "Legal Detours" around the antitrust laws and a softening of competitive conditions.

In business and in Congress, he asserted, "the mood of the day favors what the Council of Economic Advisers has called 'soft competition.'"

If competition cannot be made to work effectively, Clark said, "the remedy must be found by attacking the structure of industry." If that fails—then, he said, the alternative is Government control over great monopolistic business combinations.

"This may, indeed," he told the committee,, "be the only alternative to the policy of the Sherman Act.

"It is because I am deeply reluctant to contemplate such a shift of base that I place such great hope in the success of your effort to bring forth proposals for the strengthening of the Sherman Act which will make it unnecessary for the Nation to turn to another policy."

Rains in Slow, Easy Fall Prove Crop Savers

By The Associated Press

Rains in a slow, easy fall—"just the type the fields needed"—refreshed the parched Northeastern States yesterday, and in some sections brought an end to a 50-day dry spell.

Forecasters promised more relief.

However, agricultural authorities believed that the rainfall came too late to avert multimillion dollar crop losses.

'Peace or Strike . . .

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

MURRAY SPEAKS—Philip Murray (center), president of the CIO United Steelworkers, tells reporters in Pittsburgh he will call a strike—effective midnight Friday—against all steel companies who fail to accept President Truman's delay-strike proposal

Truman Renews Steel Appeal

"an interruption in steel production would have serious consequences to the whole Nation.

"It is obviously more sensible to attempt to prevent such an interruption before it starts, than to wait and have the Government step in after a prolonged interruption has reached the point where it does imperil the national health or safety," Mr. Truman said.

Therefore, the President asserted, his plan was both "proper and accepted" in dealing with critical labor disputes.

Plan Proposed Tuesday.

The President's truce plan was first proposed Tuesday in telegram to six of the leading companies, out of 60 steel producers whose wage agreements with the CIO Steelworkers expire this weekend. The White House action came in the wake of a declaration by Cyrus S. Ching, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, that the dispute was hopelessly deadlocked over the question of wage increases, health insurance and pensions.

U. S. Steel, Republic Steel and Bethlehem quickly rejected the plan, charging that the recommendations of the fact-finding board would in effect set the pattern for a fourth round of postwar wage increases. Jones & Laughlin, Wheeling Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co. agreed to cooperate with the fact-finders, provided they would not be bound by the board's recommendations.

Official close to the White House said yesterday there never was any question of the fact finding board's recommendations being binding, but that they would serve rather as a basis for settlement.

Plea to Smaller Firms

Mediation Director Ching made this point precisely clear in the telegrams he sent out last night to the 50-odd smaller steel companies on behalf of the President. He said:

"It is understood, of course, that you are not being requested to be bound in advance by any recommendation which the board might make. It is hoped, however, that that recommendations might form the basis for an agreement between the disputing parties."

Even before the telegrams were under way, an acceptance was received from Copperweld Co., at Glassport, Pa., which employs 1000 steelworkers. High Washington labor officials were confident last night that the bulk of the smaller companies would accept the President's plan.

Strike or Armistice

There also was a feeling that the "Big Three" might also fall in line, especially if the rest of the industry preferred an armistice to a strike.

To Strike 'Big Steel'

Should United States Steel, Republic and Bethlehem refuse to alter their position, the steelworkers will call out some 315,000 union men and women employed by the "Big Three" and their subsidiaries. Only a skeleton crew of maintenance men would be permitted to enter the struck plants, according to Murray.

There were unofficial reports last night that the United Mine Workers would walk out of the coal mines — "captive pits" — operated by the "Big Three" steel companies if the steelworkers struck. The miners' contract expired June 30, but they have been working three days a week while John L. Lewis is negotiating a new contract. The miners, it was pointed out, would be weakening their own bargaining position if they let the "Big Three" pile up a coal reserve while the steel strike was in progress.

'Thank You' Wires

President Truman sent out four other telegrams last night. One was to the steelworkers chief, Phil Murray—who agreed to the President's plan "in the national interest"—thanking him for the acceptance.

The othe three wires went to the presidents of Jones & Laughlin, Wheeling Steel, and Youngstown Sheet and Tube. In these telegrams the President said he interpreted the companies' replies to his original truce plea as being acceptances, and thanked them for their willingness "to cooperate in the public interest."

"I hope and believe final agreement can be reached within the 60-day period," the President said.

for mechanics. It contends that any one of the union demands would put the company into the red.

"The pension plan alone," said a company spokesman last night, "would either propel the company toward bankruptcy or necessitate a substantial fare increase."

The union membership was scheduled to hold its regular monthly meeting before last midnight, at which time Fred Dominy, president of the local, said members would be brought up to date on the negotiations.

Harry Bridges Asks Congress to Hear His 'Monopoly' Charge

By the United Press

Harry Bridges, president of the CIO Longshoremen's Union, yesterday asked Congress to hear his charges that Hawaii's "big five" companies are trying to break his union and "maintain monopolistic control" of the islands' economy.

He requested a hearing next Monday before the House Judiciary Committee. Chairman Celler (D., N. Y.) said Bridges can't testify Monday because Cabinet members and other Administration officials are first on the schedule of a subcommittee's anti-monopoly hearings.

Bridges is expected here Monday to give the Senate Labor Committee his views on emergency legislation designed to end the strike of CIO longshoremen in Hawaii.

Chairman Elbert Thomas (D., Utah) of the Labor Committee, yesterday said he believes the Hawaiian government had "adequate powers" to deal with the strike and that "those powers should be used."

Hawaii Starts Drafting 'Little Taft-Hartley Act'

Honolulu, July 13 (AP).—The Hawaii Legislature, through its holdover committee, today started drafting work on a "little Taft-Hartley" program to end the islands' 73-day dock strike.

Gov. Ingram M. Stainback, just back from Washington, told committeemen he would call a special session as soon as the committee prepared an emergency strike bill. He asked for the program by next Tuesday.

Stainback said Washington leaders think the Legislature should act on the strike issue before Congress can be expected to intervene.

The strike by 2000 CIO stevedores demanding a 32-cent-an-hour wage increase to $1.72 is blockading all Hawaii sugar and pineapple exports and all except Government-arranged food relief imports.

The holdover committee has before it five bills drafted by the Hawaii Bar Association. The key measure would give the Public Utilities Commission jurisdiction over dock operations. It also would grant Stainback injunctive powers and authority to seize and operate the docks.

Senator William H. Heen, committee chairman, said this bill was modeled after the national Taft-Hartley Act. Seizure powers were added, he said, at the Governor's suggestion.

Idbisoipodd Is Dead—Truman Killed It

The IDBISOIPODD is dead.

President Truman killed it. He revoked yesterday a 1916 executive order establishing an "Inter-Departmental Board on International Service of Ice Observation, Ice Patrol, and Ocean Derelict Destruction."

No reason was given for the revocation.

Offered Senate Seat To Quit, Arnold Says

In Virginia Fight

Board Denies It's Agency Of Politics

Richmond, Va., July 13 (AP).—The three members of the State Compensation Board today issued a statement taking issue with "many misrepresentations" they said have been made against them recently.

They denied charges made in the campaign for the Democratic nomination for Governor that the board holds a political club over various officials who are paid in part by the State and in part by localities. They did not mention charges that Chairman E. R. Combs has made a political agency of the board. The latest blast came last night from Horace H. Edwards, a candidate, who charged Combs had "perverted" the board into a "political agency, pure and simple."

Combs himself had nothing to say on Edwards' charges and assertion that he would oust Combs if he is elected Governor.

The compensation board fixes the salaries and allowances, within limits prescribed by law, for sheriffs, sergeants, treasurers and other State-local officers.

Attacks on Combs and the board have been made also by candidate Francis Pickens Miller. Combs, who also is clerk of the Senate, is supporting candidate John S. Battle.

The board's statement emphasized that its powers are limited and are subject to review by the courts.

The board comprises Combs, State Auditor J. Gordon Bennett and State Tax Commissioner C. H. Morrissett.

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

Fredericksburg, Va., July 13.—Remmie L. Arnold, Petersburg manufacturer, said tonight that "the pressure is so great to get me out of the race for Governor of Virginia that I have even been offered Harry Byrd's seat in the Senate."

One of four aspirants for the Democratic nomination, Arnold told a reporter that Senator Byrd himself "invited me to his home before I announced my candidacy and pleaded with me not to run."

A week ago, Arnold continued, his State campaign manager, was approached by "eight influential Byrd supporters who told him I could have the Senator's seat in 1952 if I would withdraw from the race."

Won't Reveal Names

Byrd has said he will not seek reelection after his current term expires.

Arnold declined to disclose the names of those who made the proposal, but said he believes they are "influential enough to make good such a promise."

Arnold said that he is "staying in until the finish." He feels that the "terrific pressure" that has been exerted by the "Byrd machine" to eject him from the contest is an indication of "how worried they really are."

Arnold said that State Treasurer Jesse Dillon and two Democratic organization members of the House of Delegates have approached him in the past few weeks with a plea "to be a hero and withdraw from the race so that State Senator John S. Battle could be elected."

Speaks With 2 Rivals

Arnold spoke here with candidates Horace H. Edwards and Francis Pickens Miller on a program sponsored by the Fredericksburg Junior Chamber of Commerce. His remarks about political pressure were made to reporters before his talk. Gordon B. Ambler, former mayor of Richmond, spoke to the 25 persons at James Monroe High School in behalf of Senator Battle, indorsed by the State Democratic organization.

Edwards, also a former mayor of Richmond, who calls himself the "middle-of-the-road candidate," defended his proposed 2 per cent sales tax for school improvements as "a little paid by many to work no hardship on any."

He challenged other aspirants to the governorship to "tell the people frankly where they will get the money to raise teachers' salaries and finance school construction without raising taxes."

If there is sufficient money in surplus funds, he said, "I will certainly not propose a sales tax."

His opponents will not be able to improve school conditions without imposing a sales tax or raising the taxes of localities, he added.

Ambler Defends Battle

Ambler held a different view in his defense of Battle, whom he described as a man who "has walked with kings and still retains the common touch."

No one in Virginia knows more about finances than Senator Battle, because of his 20 years in the General Assembly and his present job as chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, Ambler said.

"We can accomplish these worthy objectives without a penny's increase in compensation to the State," Ambler said, referring to Battle's proposals for better schools and improved welfare and health facilities.

He cited Battle's proposal to use some 30 million dollars a year from unexpended surplus funds in the State treasury for these purposes. Battle opposes a sales tax because it "penalizes the poor when they are most unable to pay," Ambler added.

Miller repeated his earlier stand that "the real issue of the campaign is what will happen to the leadership of the Democratic Party in Virginia."

He said that under the "Byrd machine" it is "the most powerful and ruthless organization in the United States."

In his public address, Arnold repeated his statement that he had been offered Byrd's seat in the Senate to withdraw from the race. He said that he had also been offered the post of Governor if he would withdraw and support Battle. He did not elaborate further in his speech.

Republican Leader Gets on Battle Wagon

Charlottesville, Va., July 13 (AP). A Republican leader, Henry A. Wise, today called for the Democratic nomination of John S. Battle for Governor.

Wise said in a statement that Virginians, regardless of past party affiliations, should vote overwhelmingly for Battle to meet an "unholy invasion by aliens into our domestic affairs."

The former Republican National Committeeman for Virginia mentioned no name other than Battle, but he apparently referred to the candidacy of Francis Pickens Miller when he said:

"Today we witness a Democratic primary contest in the State of Virginia in which one of the candidates—a New Dealer—seeks the nomination for Governor and has the support of CIO-PAC, and of the National Democratic Committee."

Wise said neither of these organizations is interested in the internal affairs of the State.

"And neither of these has any moral or legal right to interfere with or project themselves into our internal affairs," he added.

Stewardess Denies Fight Caused Crash

Chatsworth, Calif., July 13 (U.P.). Stewardess Charlotte Grenander, speaking from a hospital bed, tonight said the midair fight on a nonscheduled airliner yesterday was a one-punch affair that had nothing to do with its crash and the loss of 34 of the 48 persons aboard.

At the same time, Civil Aeronautics Board Inspector James Peyton said pilot Roy G. White was 1900 feet below the officially prescribed altitude when the Curtiss Commando plane plowed into the Santa Susana Mountains, did a cartwheel down the slope and burned.

Miss Grenander identified one of the participants in the fight as Frank Conway of Albany, N. Y., killed in the crash, but said she wasn't sure of the identity of his opponent.

"There wasn't a fight, especially," she said. "These two passengers had been sitting together all the way from New York. Suddenly one of them took a poke at the other. Frank Conway was the one who did the slugging.

"They were sitting in the second seat from the back. After he swung, Conway got up and moved to the rear of the plane and I put him in a seat. That was about an hour before the crash. I went up and told Captain White, the pilot. About 15 minutes later he came back and talked to both men."

Miss Grenander said there was no warning of the crash.

CAB inspector Peyton said he thought he knew why Captain White was so far below the prescribed altitude, but he declined to give his theory until a formal hearing is held.

"Everything else about his approach was normal," Peyton said.

Ventura County eputy Coroner John Bragg said 33 of the bodies had been recovered, 14 injured were identified and one passenger was unaccounted for and presumed dead.

Virginia Asks Bids on Span At Yorktown

Richmond, Va., July 13 (AP).—The State Highway Department today advertised for bids on the giant Yorktown Bridge, which will link the Virginia peninsula with the upper tidewater area.

Bids will be opened September 1 and the bridge is expected to be completed in about 2½ years. No estimate of the cost was given.

The largest single structure ever to be built on Virginia's highway system, the massive bridge will span the York River between Yorktown and Gloucester County, reaching from the hillside above U. S. Route 17.

It will be the largest bridge of its type in the world, a department spokesman said. Only a very few of the so called double-leaf, swing span type structures, which provide a wide horizontal clearance, have been constructed anywhere, department bridge engineers said.

Total length of the bridge will be 3750 feet, with 2540 feet over the water. It will have a clear 26-foot roadway with two walkways for pedestrian traffic. When both swing spans are open, the largest vessel afloat could pass through the 450-foot opening between the large center piers.

Col. Parker Nominated For Chief Chaplain Post

President Truman yesterday nominated Col. Roy Hartford Parker for appointment as Chief of Army Chaplains and for promotion to the rank of major general.

Five Newsmen Killed in Crash Are Cremated

Bombay, India, July 13 (U.P.).—Protestant and Catholic clergymen conducted simple funeral services today for five of the 14 American newspapermen killed when their plane crashed in a driving rain yesterday. The bodies were then cremated.

The five were Nat Barrows of the Chicago Daily News, James Branyan of the Houston Post, William Newton of the Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance, Bertram Hulen of the New York Times, and Miss Elsie Dick of the Mutual Broadcasting System.

Funeral services will be held Thursday for H. R. Knickerbocker, radio correspondent. It was hoped that by then the body of Fred Colvig of The Denver Post would be positively identified so joint services could be held. Interment will be in the Bombay cemetery. By late evening, 11 of the 14 Americans had been definitely identified.

Villagers near the scene of the crash a few miles outside Bombay reported that Miss Dick was alive and conscious when the first rescue workers reached her. The other 44 aboard the plane were believed killed instantly.

The villagers said she asked for water and then remarked, "It's no use." She died within 15 minutes.

American Ambassador Loy Henderson and his staff attended the cremation today along with Robert Trumbull of the New York Times. Robert Lubar of Life, Max Desfor of the Associated Press and John Hlavacek of the United Press.

Henderson had entertained 13 of the American group at the embassy in New Delhi Sunday night. He flew here today to help identify the remains.

The remains of four persons still have not been recovered.

The four-engine Constellation was en route to Amsterdam from Batavia where the American newsmen had finished a "fact-finding tour" as guests of the Dutch government. It apparently lost its way in a driving monsoon rain.

J. C. Pigott, control tower operator said he first made contact with the airliner when it was seven minutes from the field at an altitude of 7000 feet.

He said the pilot spoke perfect English and radio reception was excellent.

Pigott said he asked the pilot to report at 500 feet and that he said he was flying contact—could see the ground.

The plane then came over the field at 500 feet and the tower told the pilot to ascend to 800 feet. That was the last the tower heard.

Newsmen's Deaths a Loss To Acheson

By the United Press

Secretary of State Dean Acheson yesterday expressed his sorrow over the death of 13 American correspondents in the plane crash in India.

At his weekly news conference he recalled that Bertram Hulen of the New York Times, Tom Falco of Business Week, and John Werkley of Time magazine were members of the State Department Correspondents Association.

He said in particular he would miss Hulen, who was a friend and neighbor in nearby Georgetown.

"I think all of us in Georgetown will find it very difficult to get used to missing that familiar figure of Bert with his peaked cap, his walking stick, and his huskie dog pulling him along when he took his walk in the morning," Acheson said. "Almost every day on my walk to the department, I used to stop and chat with him and I shall sadly miss the morning talks."

Acheson said Hulen was a true servant of the American people and an outstandingly honorable person.

Woman Who Left Plane Denies Sabotage Story

Hongkong, July 13 (AP).—Mrs. Dorothy Brandon of the New York Herald Tribune said today she wanted to make "very clear that I did not suspect sabotage" of the Dutch airliner that crashed near Bombay yesterday.

Mrs. Brandon said she and Arizona publisher William R. Mathews "made up our mind back in New York before the plane left" not to return with the other correspondents.

"I had a three-month Far East assignment and Mathews wanted to go to Japan," she said.

(Mathews in Manila yesterday quoted Mrs. Brandon as saying the plane would be sabotaged "as sure as your life.")

Recreation Group Draws Up Compact

The District Recreation Board's bylaws committee met behind closed doors last night for more than three and a half hours to work out a solution of the board's disagreement with the Interior Department.

Board Chairman Harry S. Wender revealed following the session that the committee arrived at a unanimous agreement on all recommendations to be made to the full board. These included the communication to be sent the Secretary of Interior, he said.

No statement of the communication's contents will be released, Wender said, until the Secretary has made his reply.

Nature of Discussion

While the recreation head would not disclose the particular items discussed, it was learned that the committee had under consideration its first report to the Recreation Board, the letter from the Secretary of the Interior and the secretary's press release concerning ultimate removal of segregation in play areas.

Committee members present were: Board Vice Chairman James E. Schwab, chairman of the bylaws committee; Mrs. Edward G. Madgeburger, the Board of Education's alternate representative; Walter Fowler, representative of the District Commissioners; Mrs. Alice C. Hunter and Wender. National Capital Parks Supt. Irving C. Root, a member of the full board but not of the bylaws committee, also attended.

Board Meeting Soon

Another full board meeting will be held soon to consider last night's action.

Neither Wender nor Schwab would comment on whether a decision on swimming pool operation was reached.

Earlier, recreation leaders had charged the Interior Department with reversing itself on an original offer to turn over the pools with no strings attached. Interior spokesmen would make no comment on this yesterday.

At Tuesday's full board meeting, the Interior Department's proposal to end the long-time differences between the two agencies was rejected by a 4 to 2 vote. However, both dissenting voters, Mrs. Hunter and Root, were present at last night's meeting at which unanimous agreement was reached on a course of action.

Correction

In Wednesday's story on the Recreation Board meeting of Tuesday, The Washington Post mistakenly said Chairman Wender declared he had heard that one board member and a number of organization representatives had met privately with Interior Secretary J. A. Krug and then sent President Truman a message charging "a sellout of the civil rights program."

Wender made the statement, but did not mention Krug by name. He referred to Interior officials without naming anyone. The Washington Post regrets the error.

24 Hyattsville Police Garner Shooting Medals

Three "expert" awards were among 24 marksmanship medals presented yesterday to Prince Georges County policemen assigned to the Hyattsville substation.

Those designated experts were Detective Earl J. Huber, with a score of 279 out of a possible 300, highest for the entire county force; Superintendant Ralph W. Brown and Private Emmett F. G. Gray, who had 276 each.

Sharpshooter awards went to 11 men, who made scores between 240 and 270. They were: Pvt. David Dudley, Detective Lieut. Charles M. Thomsen, Pvt. Horace King, Lieut. R. C. Sines, Corpl. Roland Sweitzer, Sergt. Boyd A. Hamilton, Pvt. Wallace L. Baker, Corpl. Reginald Austin, Lieut. Louis J. Mackall, Pvt. Joseph R. Hill, Pvt. John L. Tucker.

Marksman medals, for scores between 195 and 240, were won by Corpl. Lee Pumphrey, Pvt. James H. Burtess, Sergt. E. R. Thompson, Pvt. William F. Little, Detective Richard A. Pearson, Pvt. J. P. Kearn, Pvt. Adam Lindsey, Pvt. William Wiseman, Pvt. Joseph W. Vincent and Identifications Officer Edwin Cissel.

twice. The man sat on a strut and talked about getting "protection for my family from some released convicts." He did not identify the convicts.

As the afternoon dragged on, with a small but constantly shifting crowd of onlookers, Jutila walked along the catwalk at the base of the tower. His sleeves were rolled up, his collar was open.

Guards brought up three 2000-candlepower searchlights, and Dr. Bushong assigned guards to watch the tower throughout the night.

These guards bore no arms. There is a hospital rule against it. And, that meant a number of guards had to be assigned. Jutila is a large man and reported to be extremely strong.

He escaped from a small courtyard at 9 a. m. by scaling a wall, crossing a roof and descending a wall on the other side.

Guards closed in. It was then Jutila ran to the ladder leading to the top of the tower. He climbed the 130 feet in less than two minutes.

Police Widow Delays Telling Suspicions and Yeggs Escape

A policeman's widow who hated "to bother" police "with calls that aren't going to amount to anything" witnessed a safe robbery Tuesday night but was late with the alarm. The yeggs escaped a police net with the safe and $178 contents.

The safe, weighing 300 pounds and 16" by 18" by 24" in size, was found shortly after 8 a. m. yesterday off Defense Highway near Bladensburg. The bottom had been chiseled off and the contents removed.

The witness, Mrs. Elsie Nussbaum, 69, of 119 Massachusetts ave. nw., widow of Frank L. Nussbaum, former Metropolitan policeman who died in 1936, said she saw the safe being removed from the Western Union office at 121 Massachusetts av.

"I was in bed at about 9:30 p. m.," Mrs. Nussbaum told reporters.

"I had difficulty sleeping and I heard a lot of noise. I went to the window . . . I saw a bunch of men fooling around a car across the street. I thought they were up to no good and I went back to bed.

"A short while later I heard the crash of glass. I got out of bed and went to the window again. I saw them pulling this safe out of the window.

"I got very nervous and excited and called the police. I guess I should have called the police at first but I just hate to bother them with calls that aren't going to amount to anything."

A police cordon was thrown around the building but the thieves had fled. The authorities are seeking five men and a woman operating a black sedan thought to be a 1941 Ford. Horace L. Hutt, night manager of the office, reported the robbers aapparently entered through a basement window.

LUCKIES ARE A FINER CIGARETTE!

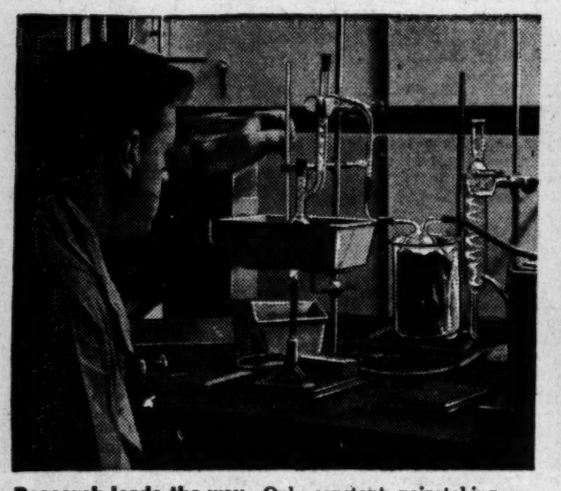
Constant research at Lucky Strike's famous cigarette laboratory—America's largest and most completely equipped—is devoted to giving you a finer cigarette!

THERE is no finer cigarette in the world today than Lucky Strike. Here's why: Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. And every step in the making of Luckies—from before this fine tobacco is bought until the finished cigarette reaches you—comes under the watchful eye of the largest and most completely equipped cigarette research laboratory in America.

For many years, the famous Lucky Strike laboratory in Richmond, Virginia, has been a center of cigarette science and technology. In this remarkable building you can see a fascinating collection of scientific instruments—microscopes, spectrophotometers, balances, projectors, humidification chambers, and many other complicated and costly machines.

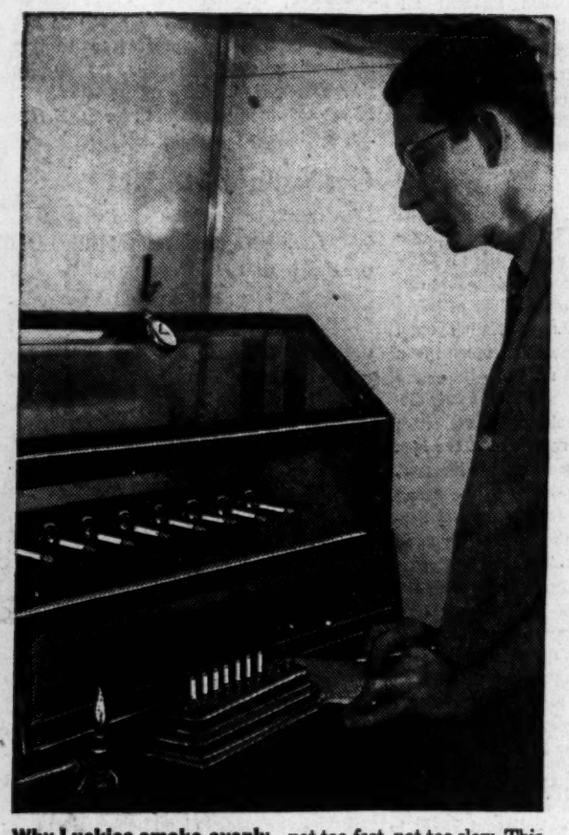
Working with this array of scientific equipment are more than 60 highly trained specialists—chemists, biologists, engineers, physicists. They work on tobacco, on finished cigarettes, on paper, foil, cellophane and even printing inks. For Lucky Strike scientists have for years delved into cigarette research on an extensive scale—to make sure Luckies are a smoother, milder smoke.

Today, because of the miracle of modern science, Lucky Strike is a finer cigarette. Yes, in all the world there is no finer cigarette than Lucky Strike.

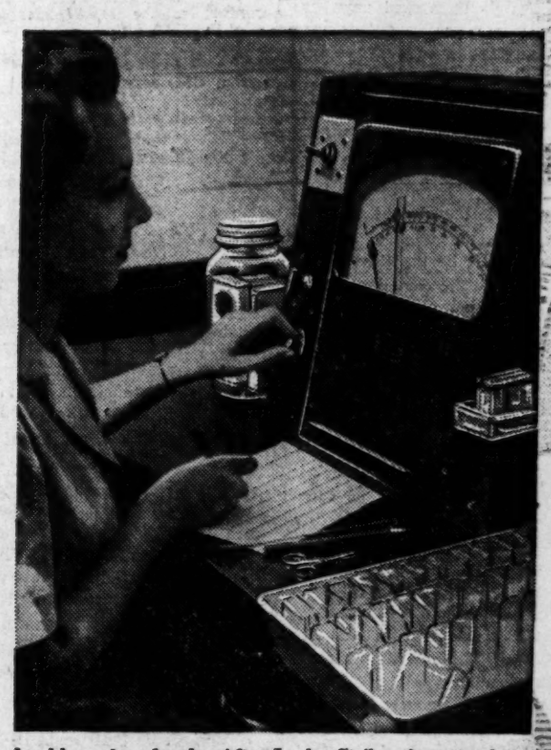


Research leads the way. Only constant, painstaking, exhaustive research—as conducted on a large scale through the years by The American Tobacco Company—could produce the scientific knowledge that results in the quality of Luckies.

Testing tobacco. Samples from every tobacco-growing area are analyzed before and after purchase. These extensive scientific analyses, along with the expert judgment of Lucky Strike buyers, assure you that the tobacco in Luckies is fine, light and mild.



Why Luckies smoke evenly—not too fast, not too slow. This apparatus, together with many other technical devices, evaluates the smoking qualities of a cigarette—guarantees that your Lucky Strike smokes properly—smoothly and evenly.



Luckies stay fresh. After Lucky Strike cigarettes have been made and then packaged, they must be tightly sealed to remain fresh. Here you see the cellophane seal being tested for air-tightness. Such instruments are in use at every plant, under laboratory supervision.

We know:

LUCKIES PAY MORE for fine tobacco

(millions of dollars more than official parity prices)

We are convinced:

LUCKIES PAY MORE for cigarette research

It seems pretty clear who put the overhaul on Fire Chief Murphy's job. It was the same group in the District Building that a short 18 months ago assiduously defended Mr. Murphy during a trial board hearing on inefficiency and unfitness. Apparently the winds of favor have changed direction. We do not vouch for Mr. Murphy's charges of railroading and intrigue against Commissioner John Russell Young and associates—though we respect the former chief's competence as a firefighter. However, two points in Mr. Murphy's story, as recounted by Reporter Sam Zagoria in this newspaper last Sunday, are extremely interesting commentaries on the processes of government in Washington.

First, a public announcement was made that Chief Murphy would be retired for disability, and a successor was selected, even before Mr. Murphy appeared before the Board of Police and Fire Surgeons and the Retiring and Relief Board. This was prejudgment that, to say the least, was unfortunate. It implies that the retirement system can be used as a personal vehicle for the Commissioners' whim. The second is Chief Murphy's statement that Commissioner Young had not been in Fire Department headquarters—though the Fire Department is his personal responsibility—for more than three years before the visit that led to Murphy's ouster. Could such irregularities go unchecked anywhere but in a city whose government is responsible to nobody?

Action On Genocide

Although a month has gone by since President Truman sent to the Senate the United Nations Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide, no action of any sort has been taken on it by the Committee on Foreign Relations. The committee has undoubtedly had more pressing problems. And perhaps it is too much to hope for final acceptance of the treaty during the crowded conclusion of the present session. It would be a grave misfortune, however, if the convention should be indefinitely pigeonholed. A subcommittee should be named to give it appropriate consideration; hearings, if they are necessary, could well be conducted while the Senate is adjourned for the summer so that action can be taken promptly upon its reconvening. The United States assumed leadership in having this convention adopted by the United Nations and is among the 25 signatory countries. Australia, Norway and Ethiopia have already ratified it. This country should not now lag behind in the effort to embody in international law a prohibition against the mass murder of human beings on racial or ethnic grounds.

To End Confusion

Both the House and the Senate have now approved bills designed to remove doubts as to the legality per se of noncollusive delivered price systems and absorption of freight charges. As amended from the floor, the House bill is similar to that recently passed by the Senate. If enacted, this declaratory legislation should put an end to the confusion resulting from different interpretations of court decisions outlawing basing-point systems and allay the fears of businessmen that the practice of absorbing freight charges in good faith to meet competition might subject them to prosecution for violation of the antitrust laws.

However, both the House and Senate have insisted on certain protective restrictions limiting businessmen's freedom of action to meet competitors' prices by absorption of freight charges. The Senate inserted an amendment proposed by Senator Kefauver to the O'Mahoney bill providing that freight absorption to meet a competitor's price could not be used as a defense in any suit charging that such absorption would substantially injure competition. The House bill, as reported out of committee, omitted this amendment, but it was subsequently modified to include a provision (considered by Senator Kefauver to be better than his own amendment) intended to protect small-business men against discriminatory kinds of pricing banned by the Robinson-Patman Act. In other words, the House amendment would make it illegal to absorb freight charges, in any case, if such action violated the provisions of the Robinson-Patman Act. In our opinion, this qualification was essential to avoid weakening the Robinson-Patman Act. That certainly was not the purpose of the House in approving a clarifying measure. In trying to clear up the confusion about the legality of delivered pricing systems and freight absorption neither the House nor the Senate has any intention of removing safeguards against monopolistic or discriminatory practices banned by existing laws.

We Must Buy Peace

It is a pity to see so much debate on the Atlantic Pact consumed by talk on the negative side of the obligation. Senator Dulles said there was no more reason for the United States to arm France than for France to arm the United States. Nor is there any prior commitment to supply arms to a particular country or any prior commitment to support a particular arms program. All this is incontestable. The pact is an "all-for-one and one-for-all" treaty providing for a common defense in organized form. The emphasis is on organization. Article 9 sets up a council, which, after ratification of the pact, shall "consider matters concerning the implementation of this treaty," particularly the appointment of a defense committee which in turn shall recommend mutual-aid measures.

A military mutual-aid program and the pact are thus two halves of the same walnut. Senator Taft scored a point when he said that if none of the parties understood that any arms obligation was implied in the treaty, then none of the parties could object to a reservation to that effect. His point has been taken up by Senator Wherry. The Nebraskan proposes a declaration of intent that no legal or moral obligation exists to send arms to Europe till the attack actually occurs which Article 5 recognizes as an attack on all the signatories. This would be a crippling amendment. It would deny to the defense organization the preparedness and the training with which to defend Europe, for neither preparedness nor training is possible without arms. A declaration of intent had much better be pinned on Article 9, and read that only a collective military establishment will be munitioned under the Atlantic Pact. That would needle the Europeans to continentalize their defense—a step in the development of a real unity of the Atlantic community.

Let us think on the eve of a vote in terms of affirmations. Toward the end of Tuesday's debate, under pressure from straight thinkers like Senator Morse and oppositionists like Senator Donnell, Senator Dulles appeared to admit there is an obligation to a defense organization, or the collectivity—to be determined later. Surely this is, inter alia, to ship arms! The Atlantic Pact is the military corollary of the Marshall Plan. Through ECA the United States is supplying the major portion of the sinews in return for a pledge of self-help. The interest of this country would not be served by insisting that the other parties in the defense group should find their own paraphernalia. They cannot afford it. Their economic recovery would be imperiled. What has been stressed all along is that there shall not be too much diversion of western European energies into the making of munitions. Undoubtedly the signatories expected America to be the main arsenal, if only to standardize weapons.

We regret Senator Taft's decision to vote against the treaty because he does not want to commit himself to the obligation implied in it. He would subscribe, evidently, to the unnecessary piece of paper that the Atlantic Pact would become under the Wherry amendment. Surely these are days that call for affirmations. The "craven fear of being great" is unbecoming to a Nation upon whose shores there is banked so much world power—power that will not keep the peace unless accompanied by a policy firmly declared beforehand and bolstered by collective preparedness. History records that the lack of such a policy by America's predecessor, Britain, condemned humanity to the agony of two world wars. What a statesman Senator Taft would be if the bent of his mind were affirmative! These are dangerous times when, with an aggressor walking the earth, the United States needs to say a resounding yes to the responsibilities of power. But Senator Taft's public cerebrations on foreign affairs, winding up as they do in votes which lack the interconnection of a principle or a policy, leave a trail of uncertainty which diminishes his leadership.

"Coplon Verdict"

Mr. Hamburger in an adjacent letter to the editor has distorted the import of the editorial on the Coplon verdict which was written, of course, after the verdict had been announced. Thus the allusion to the relative unimportance of Miss Coplon's personal fate had to do with the degree of punishment the court might visit upon her for the offense of which she had been convicted. The evidence on which she had been convicted seemed to us about as conclusive as it is ever possible for circumstanial evidence to be. The trial judge in his rulings had gone to extraordinary lengths to protect her rights as a defendant, giving her the benefit of every technicality. Had she been acquitted, or had the jury, in the face of such evidence, and after such a prolonged and expensive trial, been unable to agree, the Government might well have decided that prosecutions in similar cases before juries would be futile. We agree, in short, with the Attorney General, Mr. Clark, that if the Government had been shown impotent to prosecute such cases, it would have been tantamount to an open invitation to the intelligence services of foreign powers to infiltrate their agents into confidential civil service jobs.

Our correspondent's question whether we seriously believe that "the people of this country have at any time contemplated destroying or tinkering with an institution [the jury system] that has been the pride of free men for 700 years" ignores the modifications which this institution has undergone and the numerous occasions on which it has been suspended on pretext of crisis or national danger. He also seems to ignore all the recent criticisms of the jury system as far too slow and erratic for the complex structure of modern society, and the fact that in some jurisdictions the principle of unanimity has already been abolished for certain types of civil and criminal cases. Finally, it is because we think the principle of trial by jury vital to preservation of civil liberty that we rejoiced at the intelligence shown by the jury that tried Miss Coplon.

Perverting ECA

The Senate Appropriations Committee's vote to cut ECA appropriations below the four billion dollars that Administrator Hoffman considers essential is bad enough. But what happened before the vote was atrocious. An amendment to the Senate appropriations bill sponsored by Senator McClellan and accepted by the committee would require the ECA to set aside funds to finance the purchase of surplus agricultural products of the kinds and in the quantities set out in the ECA budget justification submitted to Congress.

In effect this means that an estimated 1.5 billion dollars of ECA funds would be earmarked for purchases of our surplus agricultural products in accordance with a tentative schedule of requirements presented to the committee three months ago. If, for example, one of the participating countries decided that it did not need or wish to buy cotton, wheat or some other agricultural product in surplus supply, as previously scheduled, funds allocated for the use of that country would have to be reduced accordingly. ECA would have no option to authorize purchases of other materials or capital equipment that might be regarded as more essential. A provision of this kind would probably retard the pace of recovery much more seriously than a cut of several hundred million dollars in total ECA appropriations.

Moreover, apart from the adverse economic consequences of depriving the ECA of the flexibility needed to adjust the buying program to the changing requirements of the various participants, the political effect of using the ECA as a dumping ground for surplus American products would be appalling. It would give the lie to our profession that ECA's primary purpose is to hasten the recovery of western Europe, not to insure market outlets for our own products. It would also provide the Russians and their Communist sympathizers with just the kind of evidence required to support their hitherto unsubstantiated charge that the ECA program is a cunning capitalist device designed to combat the effects of a depression just around the corner.

The adoption of any such policy as that laid down by the McClellan amendment would deprive ECA officials of both the power and the prestige essential to effective functioning of the recovery program. It is not surprising, therefore, to hear that top-ranking officials are prepared to hand in their resignations if the agricultural surplus rider remains in the ECA appropriations bill. It was a shameful day's work for the Senate Appropriations Committee.

California Crash

There will be a temptation to connect the fatal crash of a nonscheduled airliner in California with the difficulties between Standard Airlines and the Civil Aeronautics Board. Unless the Federal Court of Appeals stays a CAB order, Standard must cease operations by July 20. The CAB decision was based on its finding that Standard persistently had violated its letter of registration by operating regular, scheduled flights. But the violations of which Standard was accused on this score had nothing to do with safety. From the circumstances disclosed so far, there is no reason to blame the death of 34 persons on any deficiency in safety precautions on the part of the airline.

Whether the fight between two passengers aboard the plane was in any way responsible for the smashup is something that must be determined by investigation. Likewise the investigation ought to bring out whether Civil Aeronautics Administration officials at the Burbank Airport were at fault in not allowing the plane to land immediately after the pilot had radioed for police assistance. The pilot had requested permission to land at Burbank rather than Long Beach because of the fight. The landing was delayed by the control tower, and it was during a circling operation that the plane crashed into a mountainside.

Some of the scheduled airlines have cited the safety factor in their fight against the cut-rate flights of the irregular carriers. It is true that although the irregulars have for the most part met legal safety requirements, they have not always observed the same standards of maintenance, communications and route competency for pilots as have the scheduled lines. There is compelling reason, we believe, why standards should be the same for all passenger carriers. This is a possible outgrowth of the CAB crackdown on the irregulars—though we should like to see the nonscheduled companies which actually have generated new traffic be given a chance to obtain certificates. It is altogether unlikely, however, that such considerations enter the present case. Standard has never been cited for safety violations, and this was the first major accident to a Standard plane. The crackup must be put down as a tragedy—in the same category with most other commercial plane crashes.

"Coplon Verdict"

Your editorial of July 1 on the Coplon verdict applauded the jurors for having rendered a momentous service to the cause of civil liberty. You allege that a great deal more had been at stake in this case than—to quote your own words—"the personal fate of Miss Coplon, which is perhaps no great matter." Had she been acquitted, you contend, or had the jury failed to agree, a clamor might have arisen for a modification of the principle of trial by jury in political cases—"perhaps to a demand for special tribunals, perhaps merely to proposals for a rule that the majority vote of the jurors suffice for convictions."

I beg to take exception to your comment. Judith Coplon and nothing else was on trial. You underestimate the sense and the sanity of the American people. One question only moved the hundreds of persons whom I have heard and overheard discussing the case: was the defendant guilty or not of the charges brought against her? Had the jury found her innocent, or had they split, the vast majority of the people would have concluded that the Government had not had in fact as good a case as it seemed, and all citizens, save possibly a few crackpots, would have accepted it.

Capitulation to hysterical fear of communism and of spies seems to have swept away your sense of proportion: do you really believe that, because of one Miss Judith Coplon, the people of this country have at any time contemplated destroying or tinkering with an institution that has been the pride of free men for 700 years?

Your expressed disregard for the personal fate of Judith Coplon, and your attempt to inject in the trial, albeit retrospectively, an issue other than the guilt or innocence of the defendant, is most alarming. Underlying your comment is the view, if not the suggestion that, whether or not Judith Coplon's guilt had been established beyond any reasonable doubt of all those lawfully appointed to judge her, society's interest required that she should be convicted. This philosophy is alien to the bill of rights.

LUDWIG HAMBURGER.

Juvenile Court Judge

The District of Columbia Chapter of the American Association of Social Workers is concerned that the pending appointment of a judge in the District of Columbia Juvenile Court be made of a person qualified for this position. The interest of the chapter is in having appointed to the court a person both experienced and skilled in the law as well as having an experience that would give him an understanding of the guidance and treatment of problem children, and methods of prevention and control of juvenile delinquency.

Qualifications for the judge are mentioned in the Juvenile Court Law in general terms. These are in accord with a proposed revision of the Standard Juvenile Court Act, on which a committee of the National Probation and Parole Association is working, to the effect that Juvenile Court judges should have been admitted to the practice of law and selected "with reference to their experience in and understanding of problems of family and child welfare, juvenile delinquency and community organization."

The selection of a person qualified to assume the tremendous responsibility of a Juvenile Court judge in the Nation's Capital is a matter of public concern and of primary importance to the families and children of this community. In view of the variety of problems that come before the court involving adults as well as children, we believe that the qualifications of the individual persons should be the determining factor. Whether the person selected is a man or a woman is incidental.

We believe that the selection of this Juvenile Court judge to this position is of far-reaching importance to all the people of this community.

VIVIAN SPRIGGS,
Secretary, D. C. Chapter, American Association of Social Workers.

Segregated Swimming

Regarding the letter of Theodore Shell of July 9 in which is advocated education to eradicate "emotional repugnance" toward unsegregated swimming in public pools in the District: What is so "democratic" in having all races bathe, eat, etc., together when so many of the citizenery who also vote, pay taxes, etc., do not wish such "enjoyment of public facilities with any and all other citizens?" It would be more in keeping with democratic principles should every race, therefore, have its own swimming pools, restaurants, etc.

Transit Radio

Compulsory radio, which is spreading in the streetcars and buses of Washington, is very offensive to people who wish quiet. The compulsion puts it in the nature of a crime.

Now isn't it strictly logical to conclude that those who would use such an unfair method of advertising might use similar methods in their business transactions? The use of force in American business is so contrary to fair play that it should not be allowed to gain a foothold in this country. IRATE PASSENGER.

Women Faddists

Most women now wear longer skirts. This is in obedience to the commands of their masters, the fashion "experts," whom they obey without question.

Most men know that women are unutterably stupid when it comes to buying clothes, and will go against all good taste and sense of proportion in dress, even their own personal desires, just to follow some idiotic fashion. These designers appear to know nothing of what constitutes youthful and feminine symmetry, attractiveness and grace.

Women are ever the same. Just sheep; no individuality. Aping each other until they become as similar as peas in a pod. When some ruthless and irresponsible "expert" cracks the whip they obediently spring into line, for all the world like well-trained circus horses.

Some would shave themselves bald and go around on crutches if it was "the fashion."

Federal Funds For Nonpublic Schools

Holton R. Small's letter of July 8 warrants several comments. As he states, the Barden proposal for aid to education limits expenditure of Federal funds to what he terms "educational" purposes, that is, to capital outlays, salaries of teachers, etc., as contrasted with "welfare" purposes, generally health, transportation and textbook services.

The effect of this proposal is to bar nonpublic and parochial school children from sharing in any of the benefits of Federal assistance; it is this feature and that which includes these children while computing the various grants but leaves them out in the expenditure thereof, which have drawn criticism from so many quarters.

Mr. Small's attempt to classify the services which might be provided by Federal funds as either "educational" or "welfare," thus to determine the legality of the use of funds for such purposes, avoids the true principle of determination: Does the grant of Federal funds for a particular purpose constitute an "establishment of religion," or aid directly in the furtherance thereof, giving one religious sect an advantage over others as a result?

It is true, of course, that the services characterized by Mr. Small as "educational" are of such a nature as to permit the fair conclusion that Federal funds, if used to furnish them, would be furthering the purposes of the religious sect conducting the school. This is so, not because of the "educational" factor, but because of the degree and directness of the assistance. When the services of the "welfare" category are considered, it is seen that they are personal to each child, not a contribution to an organized group, religious or otherwise.

As a matter of fact, the argument made as a result of this distinction by Mr. Small as well as his statement that it is doubtful whether health, transportation and textbook services are "welfare" services appear somewhat illogical in view of the fact that Congress has made Federal funds available for related activities for some time. Despite the views of Pinckney, Madison and Morris at the convention, no provisions for Federal control of, or aid to, education were written into our Constitution. Consequently, such services as well as "educational" services are all "welfare" in nature, the very legality of appropriation of Federal funds for them resting upon the power granted Congress in Article I, Section 8, "to provide for the general welfare."

The principle of "separation" and its interpretation has been the subject of a considerable difference of opinion, varying views as to the intent of the constitutional fathers being conscientiously held by many individuals. What Mr. Small really means when he accuses the Catholic hierarchy of "unscrupulous propaganda" is simply that their views differ a great deal from his own.

JOSEPH J. SAUNDERS.
Washington, D. C.

I was greatly impressed by the "peculiar two-fold genius" of the Barden bill, as explained in the letter of Holton R. Small of Hyattsville.

First genius is avoiding the sin of discrimination. So, it follows, to eliminate discrimination in Washington playgrounds, we close all playgrounds.

Second genius is protecting America's most fundamental safeguard—the complete separation of church and State. If there is "complete" separation, why must the State inquire into the religious character of the school which a particular child attends?

Parents Versus Circus Living

By Malvina Lindsay

Teen-Agers' Didoes

SNOOKSY, the sexy, 15-year-old teen-ager whom we read about in nearly every newspaper and magazine, hear discussed at every gathering, has made her debut paradoxically at a time when American interest in good parenthood is running at high tide.

The Children's Bureau can scarcely supply material on this subject fast enough. Magazines, books, pamphlets on how to bring up children are read as never before. Parents are flocking to courses and discussion groups, going to institutes—as the Vassar College Institute on Family Life now in session. Cooperative nursery schools are springing up on all sides, aimed at getting children off on the right track in the years that really count—those under 6.

Hence there is the constant question: Who on earth are Snooksy's parents? If a census were taken of them they probably would be found to vary widely. Nevertheless all sorts of generalizations concerning them are being advanced.

ONE IS that they were Snooksy's earlier counterpart, the flaming youth of the 1920s. Snooksy was born around 1934. Her parents could have belonged to the gin-carrying, auto-necking set that once so greatly aroused the Nation. Heretofore it had been assumed that these jazz decade cut-ups had all settled down into ultra-conservative citizens. But possibly their capers left on them some leopard spots.

Another theory is that Snooksy's parents had a tough time in the 1930s depression, that her mother had to go out of the home to work—and is probably still working and that she didn't get enough supervision, understanding, security.

One pessimistic view is that Snooksy's parents are good people who have done their best, but who are helpless against a social trend that is carrying the Nation to paganism. What can such parents do, it is asked, when their children tell them that "everybody's doing it," and when on all sides is seen widespread expression of lax morals and vulgar taste in published photographs, in moving pictures, words of popular songs, seminude women in public places, and a social dating system that starts virtually in the cradle?

A somewhat more subtle theory is that Snooksy's parents cannot compete with the complex, three-ring circus life that this age offers their children. There's too much going on; life is too filled with stimuli of the moment. Few parents can afford to buy for their children the simple life they need—which may be found in certain expensive private schools and camps. As a result, children don't develop their own resources; also there is confusion and lack of authority in the home.

THIS VIEW was recently expressed by Dean Millicent McIntosh of Barnard College, speaking in the affirmative on a Town Hall debate: "Are We Spoiling Our Children?" But Mrs. Clara Savage Littledale, editor of Parents Magazine, maintained that the tremendous interest of parents in improving themselves was bearing fruit. The delinquency of children and young people that was once hushed up, she said, now received greater publicity. Hence public judgment was based on the antics of a spectacular few.

There is much to indicate that parents will stiffen their backbones and win out in the end over the present complexities of life, and that Snooksy and other teen-agers on the loose will not carry the country toward a Sodom and Gomorrah fate. In the rearing of children there is a general trend now toward moderation. The pendulum, which swung too far in child self-expression as a reaction from patriarchal tyrants and silver cord mothers, now seems to be near the center.

The great increase in education for parenthood is bound to have some results. Another hopeful sign is the remarkable rise in the reproduction rate of college educated women, which the Population Reference Bureau recently reported as going up 81 per cent between 1940 and 1947. Women who are high school graduates also are having more children.

While degrees do not automatically make good mothers, yet women who finish high school and college have generally been exposed to more knowledge of how to be good parents. There is a rapidly growing tendency now among colleges to stress in their curriculums preparation for family life. Also there are fewer broken homes among the college educated and fewer child delinquents.

Pay Logrolling

Commentators on the radio have reported that Senator Tydings threatens to block action on the armed forces pay bill, already passed by the House of Representatives, if the House fails to act on the unification bill already passed by the Senate.

This must surely be a new low in politics! The members of the armed forces have on the whole been patient and long-suffering while their long-overdue and desperately needed pay adjustment has been bandied about. Now they must see it snatched from them to pay for the Senator's logrolling!

Presumably the Representatives, against whom this exhibition of spleen is directed, will bear up reasonably well.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Taft And The Atlantic Pact

SENATOR TAFT'S decision to vote against the Pact rests on his belief that it is "inextricably" involved with an American obligation to supply arms. That the Pact and the arms bill are connected no one denies. But whether they are "inextricably" involved the one with the other is a question which has not yet been answered clearly and satisfactorily.

LIPPMANN

THE ANSWER depends on whether the Pact is construed strictly from the words of the text or, historically, as it was negotiated with the other nations and as they actually understand it.

Senator Taft believes that as it was negotiated the Pact has become so scrambled with the military aid bill that each and every one of the other signatories now believes it has acquired a treaty right to receive arms and that we have a treaty obligation to supply arms to each and every one of them.

Mr. Taft would vote for the Pact, though with some misgivings, if it carried with it no obligation by treaty to supply arms for at least 10 years. He would also vote to supply arms if the case could be considered on its military and political merits. But he objects to the idea that a nation acquires a treaty right to American arms because it adheres to the Pact.

HAS Senator Taft construed the Pact correctly? Secretary Acheson says that "There is an obligation to help, but the extent, the manner, and the timing is up to the honest judgment of the parties," that is to say the honest judgment of the signatory governments. Senator Vandenberg told the Senate that "the timing and the nature and the extent of implementing legislation, in this or any other year, are, in my opinion, wide open to the free decision of all Senators as to what they believe the objectives of the Pact and the national security require."

There is a substantial difference in principle, which could become very troublesome in practice, between these two authoritative interpretations. Mr. Vandenberg's version makes the timing, the nature, and the extent of American military assistance a purely American decision which may be made freely during the life of the treaty. Mr. Acheson's version holds that the decision must be the honest judgment, not only of the United States but of "the parties." That means that the decision must be negotiated. Now there could be no obligation to negotiate if somewhere or other all the other nations had not acquired some treaty rights to receive arms and the United States some treaty obligation to supply them.

Of the two interpretations Senator Vandenberg's is, of course, the one which would meet Senator Taft's objections. But Secretary Acheson's is the one which expresses correctly the understanding which developed when the Pact was negotiated.

THIS NEED not have happened. It should not have happened. But it did happen. In January the State Department went publicly on record with a statement which was addressed to the Scandinavian countries and had a decisive effect on their policies, saying that the United States would supply arms only to "countries associated with us in collective defense arrangements." After that Norway and Denmark adhered to the Pact. Are they not entitled now to believe that they have acquired a right to receive arms? If Norway and Denmark, then what about all the others? Could it now be said that Congress is wholly to decide for itself what their treaty rights are?

That is how the Pact and the arms bill became scrambled. The question then is whether this diplomatic blunder is irreparable. I do not think it is, and that the Pact can be ratified without reservation and an arms bill passed which will in entire good faith correct the impression that there is a treaty right to receive American arms.

THE CRUX of the trouble, created by the Scandinavian episode, lies in the notion that each separate country which adheres to the Pact acquires a treaty right as against the United States. That could lead to endless trouble over a period of 10 or 20 years—to have to negotiate with Norway, and with Denmark, and with Portugal, and with France and with Britain over whether we are allocating the right kind and the right amount of equipment to each and every one of them. The way out of that quagmire is to reestablish at once the original principle, which has become obscured, that our obligation is to the Atlantic Nations collectively, not to each nation separately. Then the arms we supply will be to reinforce a European strategical system and not a series of separate national and imperial military establishments.

What we must take care to prevent at the outset is the creation for the next 10 or 20 years of some 11 separate pressure pumps operated by each general staff abroad upon the Administration and the Congress here. The Greek experiment is one which we cannot wish to multiply. A refusal at the outset to regard our obligation as bilateral with each member of the Pact will prevent that in principle.

In practice the strongest insurance against it will be to make the European arms bill a part of the American military budget. The Congress should authorize the Pentagon to furnish arms to the European defense system up to a specified amount. But it should instruct the Administration to find the money by economy within the existing military appropriation. This will not only save money which would otherwise be wasted but it will keep the whole military aid program within manageable limits over the years.

THE PROGRAM of European rearmament must be kept small if European recovery is to proceed. To keep it small does not increase the military risk. For within the coming years Europe cannot be made powerful enough to fight Russia. The purpose of the Pact, as Senator Vandenburg made so very plain, is to convince Russia finally that it cannot wage war against Europe because it must also fight America, which it has no way of defeating. If that will not deter the Russians, the arms we can supply will certainly not deter them.

State Department Fumbling Held Cause of Crisis in Ruhr

By Robert S. Allen

Effective Allied control of the Ruhr has been in a state of suspended animation for months due to State Department fumbling.

Operation of the great industrial center is of key importance to both German and European reconstruction. The full significance of the problem has been blanketed by the Berlin strife and the recent Foreign Ministers Conference in Paris.

But behind the scenes, the State Department's dawdling on the establishment of the Allied Ruhr Authority has resulted in a highly critical and explosive situation.

Creation of the authority was decided at a London conference last year. The agreement was the outcome of protracted differences and bickering between Britain, France and the United States. The accord was widely acclaimed as a great achievement. Britain and France appointed their authority members months ago.

The United States member has still to be named.

Failure to appoint the American representative has completely stymied the functioning of this crucial economic agency.

The State Department is solely responsible for this.

Three reasons are behind its inaction:

1. Question of rank. Whether the rank of the United States member on the authority should be equal or superior to that of John McCloy, new civilian occupation chief in Germany.

2. Sharp divergence of view in the State Department over the question of nationalizing Ruhr coal and steel properties. A powerful group in the department wants to return the mines and plants to private German ownership.

3. Inability to decide on the Unted States appointee. Three possibilities have been under consideration. They are former Brig.-Gen. Henry Parkman of Boston, Paul R. Porter, economist now with the U. N. Emergency Economic Committee, and David Ginsburg, former OPA general counsel and an expert on German-Austrian reparations.

None of the three men has been offered the job. In fact, other than inner department discussions, nothing has been done to date about a choice.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Throwing Away The Chance

IN THE PREDICTING business the safest course is to stick to the obvious probabilities. Hence the following:

Prediction No. 1: Congress at this session will not approve an appropriation for arms to help western Europe. The Truman Administration will, in fact, be lucky to get approval for continuation of the present program of assistance to Greece and Turkey, which is now tied into an aid-to-Europe package, with perhaps a limited authorization to send surplus war materiel to Europe.

Childs

Prediction No. 2: As a result of this failure, the enthusiasm in western Europe for the North Atlantic Pact will continue to dwindle and the chances of the pact becoming a true bulwark of peace and security will have been reduced by half at a conservative estimate.

The members of the American delegation to the recent Foreign Ministers' Conference in Paris were all agreed that as the result of a firm and positive American policy the Soviet Union was for the first time on the defensive. What is happening in Congress now may reverse that condition and once again give the initiative to the bosses of Soviet communism who have never abandoned for a moment their determination to master the world.

They prefer, of course, to master it through ideological penetration and infiltration by fifth columns. But failing that, and they have been slipping in recent months, they are prepared to take over a defenseless European continent by force of arms. At their convenience, and in the face of the confusion and the sense of being alone and deserted by the democratic forces in western Europe, they will combine the two techniques.

THE TENDENCY of those who have planned and worked and hoped for a decisive, constructive policy in Europe must be a kind of angry despair. The natural impulse would be to strike out at an obvious villain who can be shown to have pulled the props out from under those carefully laid plans.

Senator Robert A. Taft offers himself as an obvious candidate. But he is not well cast as a villain.

Instead of anger his extraordinary speech on the pact must produce, even in those who have given so much to preparing a plan and a policy, an infinite sadness. With all his integrity, his earnestness, his capacity for hard work, he comes out with a complete and cheerful refusal to face the meaning of the present-day world. In one sentence at the beginning of his speech he said it:

"We are, of course, interested in the welfare of the rest of the world because we are a humane Nation."

In this view everything that we have done is a generous gesture for the welfare of alien peoples whose sad plight touches us. It wholly ignores the tremendous self-interest of the United States in preserving all that can be preserved of the Western world.

BUT IT is too late to look for villains. It is a futile exercise. The time has come to say that under our Government of divided powers rapid and responsible action through the recurring phases of a prolonged crisis may be impossible.

Think back to that moment now three and a half months ago when the Foreign Ministers of western Europe stood under the fierce lights of the television cameras to sign the pact. Each minister had come to that decision after a long and painful travail, realizing the grave risk he was taking for his country. Each minister as a member of his government and a leader in the majority party in that government had worked out the essential political agreement and understanding.

The exception was our own Secretary of State, Dean Acheson. As a functionary of the executive branch of the Government he had directed the preparatory steps leading up to that scene. When he was asked by the foreign ministers, as he was asked, if it was certain to be approved —and implemented—he could not give a definite answer.

While Acheson might have taken Senate and House Foreign Relations Committees more nearly into his confidence, there are definite limits on that kind of cooperation. The Secretary of State was in the role of the timid bride whose cake baked in secret may be rejected by the petulant bridegroom.

It is a well nigh intolerable condition. If it continues, and it shows every likelihood of continuing, then the chances are that the opportunity and the responsibility confronting this country will be thrown away as they were thrown away after World War I.

O'Dwyer Says He Will Run; Hogan Withdraws His Name

New York, July 13 (AP).—Mayor William O'Dwyer today announced he will run for a second term after all. For two months he has been saying he wouldn't.

The announcement, no surprise after several days of unprecedented backing and filling in one of New York's worst political tangles, came less than 24 hours after O'Dwyer had conferred with President Truman in Washington.

O'Dwyer's decision to seek reelection thus was widely interpreted as a part of Democratic strategy to present the strongest possible ticket this fall, with a United States Senate seat as well as control of City Hall at stake.

Former Governor Herbert H. Lehman, 71, who has been asked by the party leadership to run for the United States Senate, has been reported willing if O'Dwyer heads the ticket in the city.

The mayor apparently has a clear path for nomination at the September primary. District Attorney Frank S. Hogan was designated by three of the five Democratic county leaders in the city as their choice for mayor on Monday.

But he withdrew after O'Dwyer's announcement today and said he would run for reelection as county attorney.

Pinball, Slot Machine Operators Take 80-90 Pct. of Play as Clear Profit which indicates a winning combination.

But don't expect to hear that fifth click very often, for the machines are "fixed" by the operators who plug the notches on certain winning symbols. The plug is often smeared with vaseline so that the wheel slips over the winning symbol. This "near miss" excites the player.

It is possible to plug all three wheel sprockets so that no winning combination will ever turn up, and greedy racketeers have been known to do this. However, most proprietors "fix" machines to return about 20 per cent of the money wagered.

Three bars in a line mean the jackpot. There are two such bars on the first wheel and one bar on each of the other two wheels. If there are 20 symbols on each wheel, the probability of getting three bars in a row even with an "honest" machine is one chance in 4000.

Lose $10 in 28 Minutes

A study by Professor Philip G. Fox of the University of Wisconsin based on student experimentation with a dime machine showed that the average player could lose $10 in 8 minutes. If you were "lucky," you could play for an hour before losing your $10, but if you were "unlucky" you could throw $10 away in 7 minutes.

At the average time of 28 minutes, the cost of playing amounts to $21.60 an hour—which is pretty expensive exercise.

Every machine I have ever examined has been "fixed" to pay off only a small percentage of the money taken in. Usually the machine is adjusted to give back from 10 to 20 per cent of the money put into the slot. Sometimes fraternal organizations and clubs have special machines which pay as high as 40 per cent on deposits.

In some cities small cigarette slot machines are popular. For a penny you may spin the wheels for a chance of winning one, two or three packs of cigarettes. After watching this type of machine over a long period of time, I have observed that the average amount paid for a pack of cigarettes is 45 cents!

Contrary to popular impression, slot machines are quite complicated mechanically and only an experienced person can set or repair the mechanism inside. Their cost is rather high, running from $40 for a miniature type to $500 for the big flashy version.

Twin Jackpot Holds Suckers

Recent developments in slot machines include many novel methods for enticing people to play. The twin jackpot was introduced to keep the rate of play constant. Previously the play decreased considerably after a jackpot had registered because patrons knew that another sizable payout could not be scored immediately thereafter.

The machine manufacturers then inserted the second jackpot as a come-on. One manufacturer claims his twin machine "actually makes more money than many larger machines," but he tells this only to machine operators.

The extreme in slot machines is the device fitted as a horse race. This machine is equipped with seven slots, each waiting for coins. Thus, one player can play one, two or all seven horses, or seven players can play at the same time.

In the latter case, seven nickels go into the machine for a single spin. One horse is determined to be the winner by the spin, and the winner is paid odds ranging from two coins to 30 coins. Most of the payouts are of the two-coin and four-coin variety, thus giving the proprietor a heavy profit.

The manufacturers of the horse-racing machine claim it is the only console type game that will consistently equal the earning power of the standard slot machines.

Pinball Machine Changed

The other notorious one-armed bandit, the pinball machine, was originally a game of skill and not of chance. Constant practice over a long period of time will enable a player to beat an "honest" pinball machine. But pinball machine owners maintain a system by which a machine remains in the same place for only a limited period of time.

In many cases this period is cut short if the receipts start to go down or a large number of winners is reported. If the owner does not care to transfer the machine, he can make adjustments or insert devices to make the possibility of high scoring remote.

Pinball machines consist of wheels and cogs, springs and wires, metal and wood, glass and lights. They are so constructed that even the "honest" device operates on a 60-40 basis—that is, 60 per cent for the house, 40 per cent for the player.

However, most machines are "gimmicked," as they say in the trade. Such "gimmicking" is a very simple procedure. Generally, printed instructions for "gimmicking" are furnished with every pinball machine, telling how to put proper socket and point plugs in their correct "gimmicking" places.

If the operator wants an 80-20 setup, he installs the respective plugs in a certain manner.

Takes Between $50 and $350

The average take on a straight and "liberal" 60-40 machine over a one-week period ranges anywhere from $50 to $350, depending on the volume of play. If the profit is not enough, further manipulation of the plugs will guarantee a greater take.

Most operators discount the belief that a skilled pinball player can beat a machine. It can't be done; human skill can be "out-gimmicked" any day in the week.

Some operators take delight in upsetting the pinball machine experts. "The plunger you snap to shoot the ball is easy to gimmick," one said. "There's a spring behind that plunger. A player learns its tension. Maybe he can place the ball pretty good. So we just put in an extra spring. After he gets used to that extra tension—we take it out. Simple."

Dr. Clarence G. Clark of New York University, who conducted experiments on pinball machines, declares that the possibility of exercising skill is 10 per cent at most.

Pinball machines are a menace to school children in that they stimulate the gambling instinct and somehow tend to encourage conditions that lead to delinquency.

Some idea of the magnitude of the pinball business can be obtained from an examination of the report entitled, "Operation of Pinball Machines in New York City," prepared in 1941 by New York's Department of Investigation, headed by William B. Herlands.

According to this report, the city had 11,080 pinball machines at that time. Only 304 of these machines were rented outright to storekeepers; the remainder were placed in shops by owners and operators who split the take with the shopkeeper.

New York officials estimated that between 20 and 23 million dollars were being fed into the city's pinball machines annually. Incidentally, over 15,000 pinball machines were sold in New York City in 1940 at a total cost of almost one and a half million dollars. The Herlands report concluded that the pinball machines presented the same social problems as did the slot machines which were prohibited in 1934.

Of the many official reports on the evils of the slot machine racket, the most startling was that recently drawn up by the California Commission on Organized Crime. This commission reported nationwide slot machine interests are organized in an elaborate "criminal conspiracy" to buy off Government officials and that the racketeers are spending 20 per cent of their two billion dollars annual take—about 400 million—for bribery and corrupion of such officials.

Other States ought to benefit by California's findings.

trial failed and the Supreme Court refused to review the case.

Their letters to the President described what they said was their insanity and begged for mercy.

George offered to go into the Army "for 20 years" if he was freed. His letter said in part:

"I am a little off and need help, need the doctor . . . I want to marry Thelma. She agreed last Friday. That's all I care for in the world, that's the only friend I got. I am a good Catholic, belong to the Holy Name and the Knights of St. John. I know the commandments of my church.

"If somebody would open their hearts once in my life and fix me up by a doctor, if there is anything wrong with me, I would appreciate it if they would let me do 20 years in the Army. I will represent this country or any other country just so long as I get in the Army.

"If they give me this first break in my 27 years I will gladly serve just for meals and a place to sleep, and let them give my pay to the victims' wives. Insanity runs all through my family and it seems to take effect on those that look like them.

"I am only pleading, I am begging for my life because I have never done anyone any harm. Only one in my life ever treated me like a human being and that's Thelma."

Lawrence's letter admitted the killing. He stated:

"Some people say I am craze. I don't know whether I am or not, but I do know that I act sorta of craze when I am drinking or so people tell me. Mary Anne thinks so . . . On the night in question I was drinking. There must be a dozen people who can testify I was craze drunk that day.

"I am convinced that I killed the two men the police said I killed. My brother, George, however, had nothing to do with the killing . . . I didn't kill the men because I wanted their money.

"Something Came Over Me"

"Each time something came over me. I have had this feeling many times before, like in fight, or like in jail when the guards bang on the bars it is like anger but different and I can't help what I do then.

"I don't think this petition is going to do me any good, and I am sure they will kill me July 15. But I want to say any way that my trial was not fair, that the police did beat me, and beat the hell out of me and then got up on the witness stand and swore they never laid a finger on me. I have done some bad things but I have never done a thing like that."

Alexandria Gazette Wins 2 Top Awards

Richmond, Va., July 13 (AP).—The Alexandria Gazette won two first place awards in the Virginia Press Association's 1949 Better Newspaper Contest, results of which were announced today.

The Alexandria daily was judged to have the best front page among the class A Virginia dailies, and also got the top award in its class for excellence of press work.

The Arlington Sun won second place in general makeup for class B weeklies, nosing out the Fauquier Democrat of Warrenton. The Sun also received honorable mention for excellence of press work.

Certificates will be awarded to first place winners and honorable mention will be made of the runners-up at the awards banquet which will take place at the closing session of the 67th annual meeting of the Association Saturday night in Old Point Comfort, Va.

Oakland High Student Governs Md. 'Girls State'

Annapolis, Md., July 13 (AP).—Maryland's fourth annual "Girls State" opened today with 80 picked high school juniors participating in the model government.

Fifteen-year-old Mona Lou Evans of Mount Lake Park and Oakland High School was named governor pro tem after delegates drew lots for the post. She will head the "State" until a governor is elected on Friday.

Governor Lane is among dignitries who will address the model legislature during its four-day meeting. The "Girls State" is sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion.

Nominations for various state officers will be made tomorrow, with elections Friday. Meanwhile the girls will split up into two political parties—Federalists and Natonalists—for their sessions in the House and Senate chambers at the historic Annapolis State House.

Gen. Meyers Petitions Court for Freedom

Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers yesterday sought release from the Lorton Reformatory where he is serving from 20 months to 5 years for inducing a witness to lie to a Senate committee.

His attorneys asked the Federal Court in Alexandria to free the former Air Forces officer on the grounds a quorum of the committee was not present when the alleged perjury occurred. They cited the case of Harold Christoffel, former labor leader, who was freed last month by the Supreme Court.

But Meyers' chances of winning freedom on the basis of the Christoffel decision appear to be problematical. In the Christoffel decision the Myers case was discussed in footnotes by both the court's majority and its minority.

Christoffel was freed because the House Committee before which he told a lie did not have a quorum present at the moment he did so. At least the Government did not prove a quorum was present, and the justices assumed a majority of the members were absent.

Justice Robert H. Jackson for the minority declared that "Meyers' conviction rests on a basis which this court says is 'unthinkable' as to Christoffel."

But Justice Frank Murphy in the majority opinion also included a footnote on the Meyers case. He pointed out that Meyers was convicted of subornation of perjury before the Senate committee on two separate days—October 4 and 6, 1947.

Only two Senators were present on October 6 and the Court of Appeals ruled testimony on that day could not be used against Meyers. But the lower court affirmed the trial court's conviction, said Murphy, "on the grounds that the perjurious statements alleged in the indictment were made on October 4, when a quorum was present." The Supreme Court then refused to review the case.

Meyers began serving his term in March, 1948. He was the secret owner of a Dayton (Ohio) war plant with Bleriot Lamarre as dummy president of the firm. Meyers induced Lamarre to lie about his connection with the firm. Lamarre later turned State's evidence.

Acting for Meyers in filing yesterday's habeas corpus proceedings were attorneys Harold L. Schilz of Arlington, Russell Hardy of Washington and Robert T. Bushnell of New York.

British Navy Switches To Smaller Warships

London, July 13 (AP).—Britain's navy broke with centuries-old tradition tonight. It announced a decision to replace battleships on operational duty with smaller vessels, because the big men o'war are not "the essential need of the present time."

An Admiralty statement said capital ships will be withdrawn from sea duty and more destroyers, mine sweepers and frigates put into service.

The Admiralty noted that "very few large surface ships are being kept operational anywhere in the world."

You can use Colgate's with confidence. Colgate's is safe—and using it as directed is a safe, proved way to avoid needless cavities—actually help stop tooth decay at home!

To The Dental Profession

The research described here was conducted in leading dental clinics under the over-all supervision of some of America's foremost dental research authorities.

A detailed report of the tests is now in preparation and will be available for your use and study in the near future. If you wish a copy, send your request on your own professional letterhead to Colgate, Jersey City 2, N. J.

These studies represent the most exhaustive evidence ever offered to the dental profession of actual reduction of cavities. They present scientific proof that always brushing teeth right after eating is one of the most effective ways yet known to help stop tooth decay before it starts. And Colgate Dental Cream is the only dentifrice that can prove the statements reported here.

NO CHANGE IN FLAVOR, FOAM, OR CLEANSING ACTION!

Millions know that Colgate Dental Cream cleans their breath while it cleans their teeth. That its wonderful wake-up flavor is preferred over all other dentifrices tested. That no other toothpaste does a better job of cleaning teeth. And there has been no change in Colgate's famous flavor—its marvelous foaming quality—or its safe and thorough cleansing action!

Mothers! Children Love Colgate's Flavor! It's Easy to Start Them On The Colgate Way To Reduce Tooth Decay!

9 out of 10 children have one or more decayed teeth by the time they enter school. So don't wait another day to start your children on Colgate Dental Cream. Teach them the importance of always brushing their teeth right after meals or snacks. They'll love Colgate's flavor—so it's easy to get them to use Colgate's correctly, give them all the benefits of this safe, proved way to reduce tooth decay!

THERE IS ONLY ONE COLGATE DENTAL CREAM. YOUR DEALER HAS IT NOW—IN THE SAME FAMILIAR PACKAGE

250 Patients Saved At Hospital Fire

Evansville, Ind., July 13 (U.P.).—Nearly 250 patients walked or were carried to safety within 15 minutes from Deaconess Hospital today when fire and an explosion swept a fourth-floor storage room.

Officials credited an evacuation plan worked out after the Effingham, Ill., hospital disaster for the rapid and orderly removal of patients. The Effingham blaze earlier in the year killed 75 persons.

Patients at Deaconess, Evansville's largest hospital, moved through smoke-filled corridors to the street. They were returned to their rooms shortly when it was learwned the fire was not serious.

The early morning blaze was believed caused by spontaneous sombustion in the storage room. Officials attributed the explosion to cyclopropane gas stored there.

Evacuees included 39 expectant or new mothers, some of whom got up from their beds and removed their own babies from the nursery. They descended to the street floor in an elevator with the infants in their arms.

Nurses and orderlies removed other patients on surgery carts and in wheel chairs. In some cases they picked up mattresses and carried them out with the patients lying on top.

Poe's Gory Classic Rivaled by Statement in 'Lonely Hearts' Killer Trial

New York, July 13 (AP).—A statement in which Raymond Fernandez, 34, alleged lonely hearts killer, told of using "a lot of strength" to strangle Mrs. Janet Fay, Albany, N. Y., widow, was read to a Bronx supreme court jury today.

Fernandez and Mrs. Martha Beck, 29, are on trial on first degree murder charges in the bludgeon-strangulation slaying of Mrs. Fay.

The statement made by Mrs. Beck was read yesterday.

In words that sounded like something from Poe's gory classic, "The Tell-Tale Heart," the statement related that Mrs. Beck approached the victim as she kneeled over a suitcase.

"Next thing I knew I had the hammer in my hand and hit her," the statement said. "I hit her, and she kind of fell sideways and was still moaning. I said 'Ray,' and I hit her again."

Fernandez appeared from another room, and "took her by the throat and tried to choke her," the statement said, adding:

"I am the one who got the scarf. Then I put the scarf around her neck, and he turned her over because at that time—I can still hear it—the blood was dripping, dripping, dripping.

"The sound of it just sounded like it could be heard all over the house."

Fernandez was quoted as saying that after Mrs. Beck placed the scarf around Mrs. Fay's neck, he inserted the hammer handle and twisted it as one would a tourniquet.

First Nisei Enters Naval Academy

Annapolis, Md., July 13 (AP).—Swearing to defent the Constitution against foreign and domestic enemies, Takeshi Yoshihara today become the first Nisei midshipman at the Naval Academy.

Yoshihara, 18-year-old Japanese-American, from Renton, Wash., was sworn in with a group of 72 new plebes.

He spent the war in the Windondoka relocation center at Hunt, Idaho. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Buichi Yoshihara, who were born in Japan and came to the United States more than 30 years ago. His father is a landscape gardener.

Arlingtonian Held for Jury On Rape Count

Charles H. Tapp, 19, of 1302 Lee Highway, Arlington, yesterday was held in $2000 bond for the grand jury in Arlington County Court on charges of raping a Washington waitress, 25, to the strains of hill-billy music.

Tapp, who is in sales promotion work, pleaded innocent.

Bond was set by Judge Hugh Reid after the young woman testified Tapp lured her to his apartment last July 2 under the pretext of introducing her to his mother, and then raped her.

She said she met Tapp at the Washington drug store where she was employed.

They made a date to go to a Falls Church movie, she said, but on the way Tapp pointed out that they were late for the complete show and suggested coming to his apartment to meet his mother.

Once there, she testified, Tapp turned the radio to a hill-billy program and seized her. The alleged rape followed, she said.

The young woman said Tapp held his hand over her mouth and prevented her from crying out.

There was no medical testimony yesterday, but police said at the time of the incident that a hospital examination showed the woman's underclothing was torn.

Old Classmate Visits President At White House

President Truman and Miss Mary B. Womack of St. Louis, an old classmate, had a "reunion" yesterday in his White House office.

Miss Womack, a teacher of first-grade pupils in Dewey School, St. Louis, told of the experience afterward.

"And that's the George Dewey School, not Tom," she explained.

Miss Womack, the President and Mrs. Truman, and Charles G. Ross, the President's press secretary, all graduated from the Independence, (Mo.) High School in 1901.

"It's the first time that I've really had a chance to sit down and talk to the President since our graduation," Miss Womack said.

"He invited me to the White House tonight to hear his radio speech to the country on the economic situation. I was very pleased over the invitation."

Market Controls On '50 Wheat Crop Due to Be Lifted

The Agriculture Department has sent word to its field offices that acreage controls will be the only limitation placed on the 1950 wheat crop.

However, the department asserted that definite decision on the matter will not be made until today. The law requires that final decision be made by Secretary Charles F. Brannan.

The message to agriculture feld forces stated that marketing controls for wheat will not be applied, because of "deterioration of the 1949 crop."

East Europe's Harvest Biggest Since War

Prague, July 13 (U.P.).—Eastern Europe, from the Black Sea to the Baltic, has begun harvesting bumper crops, the largest since the war, a United Press survey showed today.

Prospects in Czecholovakia, Romania, Hungary, Yugoslavia and Poland are for huge crops of wheat and rye if the hot, dry weather continues, reports from their capitals said.

Bulgaria was hard hit by an early spring drought, but it was hoped late rains would save some crops.

Maryland Film Ban Held Power Misuse

Baltimore, July 13 (AP).—Attorney General Hall Hammond ruled today that the State Board of Motion Picture Censors exceeded its authority in banning the film "On Polish Land."

The board's action was "essentially a censorship of propaganda basis," Hammond said in a formal opinion to Governor Lane.

He said the Maryland statute empowers the board to ban only those films which are "obscene, indecent, immoral, inhuman, sacrilegious or debase or corrupt morals or incite to crime."

The attorney general ruled the State does not give the censors the legal power to extend their authority "to the field of ideas."

"It is clear to me," he wrote, "that the statute under which the board operates does not confer upon the board that wide scope which was assumed in this case."

The Board of Censors, in banning the film two months ago, said:

"We feel quite strongly that it is a moral breach to present to the public a film based upon deceit and misrepresentation of fact."

The foreign-made film purports to portray present-day conditions in Poland.

Governor Lane had asked Hammond for a formal ruling after various groups had protested the ban.

Hammond cited the Supreme Court decision in the case of Winters vs. New York to support his ruling.

In that case (333 U. S. 507, 92 L. Ed. 840) the Supreme Court held unconstitutional a New York statute banning publications composed principally of crime news, pictures and "accounts of criminal deeds."

"Though we can see nothing of any possible value to society in these magazines, they are as much entitled to the protection of free speech as the rest of literature," the Supreme Court ruled in that case.

Hammond wrote that "I have no doubt in my mind that if the issue is flatly raised, moving pictures will be held within the guarantees and protections of the First Amendment."

At Hudson's Bay

Group to Test Intensity of Cosmic Rays

A battery of free balloons equipped with Geiger counters will be set loose over Canada's Hudson's Bay next month by an American expedition to find out what cosmic rays are like at 100,000 feet, the National Geographic Society announced yesterday.

The expedition, by finding out how intense cosmic rays are near the edge of the earth's atmosphere in the northern latitudes, is expected to settle the controversy over whether the sun has a constant magnetic field as has the earth.

Cosmic particles are known to diminish in intensity near the earth's equator, and normally are expected to increase farther north. However, scientists think that if the sun has its own magnetic field acting up there, the rays won't increase in the northern latitudes.

The expedition will be headed by Dr. Martin A. Pomerantz of the Bartol Research Foundation of the Franklin Institute, Swarthmore, Pa. The Bartol Foundation is cosponsoring the experiment along with the National Geographic Society.

The group is expected to start out August 1, and will be based at Churchill, Canada.

Carlock Elected

Royal H. Carlock, Cabin John, has been elected Maryland State president of the Izaak Walton League, it was announced yesterday.

Shanghai, July 13 (U.P.).—The rampaging Yangtze River flooded two large towns in the Nanking-Shanghai area today and the rising Yellow River threatened to engulf Tsinan, capital of Shantung province, the Communist news agency reported.

Alumni Council Told to Back Proposals of Hoover Board

Williamsburg, Va., July 13 (Spl). Americans "who are really interested in efficient management of Government" were advised today by a member of the Hoover Commission to protest to the House Armed Services Committee its postponement of action yesterday on recommendations by the commission.

Dr. Arthur Sherwood Flemmin, president of Ohio Wesleyan University, and one of the 12 members of the Hoover Commission, told the National Conference of the American Alumni Council how methods of efficient management could be applied to colleges as well as the Federal Government. The conference is being held at the College of William and Mary.

"In the Federal Government we must fix responsibility for various Government functions in a far more definite and clear-cut manner than we have up to now," stated Flemmin.

"We must give those who are assigned responsibility sufficient authority to act, so that they can carry on their work in an effective and efficient manner.

"We must establish controls so as to make sure that those who are given authority to act do so within the framework of standards set by Congress and the President."

Prayers Unanswered, Man Loots Churches

Hackensack, N. J., July 13 (NYHT).—A 25-year-old laborer, who said that his prayers to save his ailing mother went unanswered, today confessed he had sought revenge robbing the rectories of 55 Roman Catholic Churches of more than $15,000, police reported.

Police said the man is Joseph de Poala of Hackensack.

New Religion Dean Named at Howard

Dr. Frank Theodore Wilson, dean of students and professor of psychology at Lincoln University, Lincoln University, Pa., has been appointed dean of the School of Religion at Howard University.

Dr. Wilson, 49, succeeds Dr. William Stuart Nelson, who has served as dean of both the school of religion and the university since last summer.

P-TA Studies Use of Films

Parents lose interest in parent-teacher activities when their children reach high school because children at this age tend to break away from parental control.

That was one of the conclusions reached yesterday at the training conference of the Maryland Conference of Parents and Teachers at Maryland University. Delegates discussed ways of building more effective associations at the secondary school level during the day's program.

Other matters brought before the conference were the use of films in parent-teacher programs and methods of publicizing P-TA activities.

Entry Blanks Ready

Would-be contestants in Arlington County's second annual coaster-car race, scheduled for August 13, will find entry blanks at Arlington Police headquarters or any county playground, Sergt. Frank Palmer, race director announced yesterday.

The coaster-car competition is open to boys 11 through 15 years of age, and deadline for entries is August 3. All cars must be inspected on August 10 at the Jefferson Firehouse, S. 23d and Jefferson Davis Highway.

Man, 85, Faces Charges Of Mulcting VA Care

Chicago, June 13 (AP).—An 85-year-old man was ordered today to stand trial in Denver on charges of obtaining Veterans' Hospital care by misrepresentation.

He is Walter E. Urweiler. VA doctors say he obtained bed and board in Veterans' Hospitals at Denver and Fort Logan, Colo., by claiming service in the Spanish American War and by rare ability to slow his heart action voluntarily.

Officials said although Urweiler enlisted in the Army twice, he was not entitled to VA care because of desertion records in both enlistments. Urweiler's unusual control over his heart action was reported by Dr. Wallis Craddock of the hospital at Fort Logan.

Nats Open 6th Place Battle With White Sox Tonight

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

NEW YORK, JULY 13.—You'll notice, perhaps, that all of a sudden it's a different sort of contest for the American League pennant. Not at first glance does it appear changed from the situation that has found the Yankees leading the league since opening day, but the fact is things have been happening.

Both the Indians and the Red Sox are beginning to move on the Yankees. Those two clubs, lightly brushed off as pennant contenders a fortnight ago, have worked up a furious head of steam, and you'll notice now that Cleveland is in second place.

POVICH

The Yankees still have a 5½-game lead—their widest margin was never more than 6—but even the excitement of the All-Star game could hardly conceal from Manager Casey Stengel that the road may be getting rocky for the Yanks.

THE INDIANS have won 9 of their last 11 games. The Red Sox had an eight-game streak going for them. The two clubs Stengel has to fear are getting hot. The Red Sox came from even farther behind last season to tie for the flag. Stengel has been free to admit that his own Yanks are not a solid club. Joe DiMaggio's return to the Yanks was heaven sent, and with him they will be tougher to lick. But there are growing doubts about that Yankee pitching staff. Vic Raschi is riding high with his 13-3 record, but it is recalled that last year he was a frequent loser after midseason.

There is evidence that Raschi already has begun to tail off. He couldn't hold a three-run lead with two out in the ninth against the Nats last weekend, and they were swatting him hard all day. He pitched three scoreless innings against the National League All-Stars, but it was plain he wasn't sharp. He was plenty wild and looked stale. There's no assurance, either, that DiMaggio is in the Yankee line-up to stay. Plainly evident is the fact that he's still favoring his sore heel. Running is still anguish for him. Stengel may not yet be delivered from the fast juggling with his line-up that was so successful early in the year.

THE INDIANS are beginning to look like a far better club than the helpless figures they were in the first three months of the season. Lou Boudreau, all of a sudden, has started to hit, after benching himself for nonhitting three weeks ago. His average is now booming toward the .300 figure again. The inspirational Boudreau is taking some of the other Cleveland laggards up with him.

There's doubt that Ken Keltner will ever regain his job at third base for the Indians. Boudreau is holding forth there now, and had made the transition from shortstop so easily that he's close to being the league's best fielding third sacker. He has injected both power and fielding smoothness in the Indians' line-up.

A year ago at this time, the Indians were looking like no pennant team and Boudreau bluntly declared "we can win it if Bob Feller comes through for us." That could be their situation today. Feller, now in a come-back that has seen him win four of his last five starts, may be taking the Indians either way.

THAT 5½-GAME lead of the Yankees does not look nearly as imposing as their similar margin a month ago. There were no signs then that the Indians or Red Sox would be pressing them. In fact, as late as 10 days ago, the Red Sox were looking hopeless with a seven-game losing streak. The Yankees, themselves, apparently had brushed aside the Boston club by knocking 'em off in five straight games.

But the Sox have bounced back with what is now an eight-game winning streak. They cooled off the Athletics in four straight. They are beginning to act for the first time, like the best-hitting club in the league. With six .300 hitters in their regular line-up, they may be rising above the handicap of what has been gosh-awful pitching.

It's pretty clear now that the Tigers, 10 games out of it, have shot their bolt. They never were the solid club, anyway. But in Virgil Trucks they had a pitcher apparently nearer to being invincible than any other, with his whistling fast ball. Trucks hasn't won lately. Hurt his ankle in Washington, hasn't been able to run, and has gotten fat. "If I don't run him every day and keep his weight down, he's not a great pitcher," moans Manager Red Rolfe.

Ralph Weigel Released to Chattanooga

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Enroute to Chicago, July 13.—Out West, where they've found the pickings softest, sped the Nats tonight, hoping and needing to strike it rich again.

Winners of 14 out of 21 games on their two previous jaunts west of the Potomac, the Nats open their semifinal excursion in the West tomorrow night, meeting the White Sox in the first of a three-game series.

To the first division clubs, the series between the league's tenement house dwellers means practically nothing, but to the Nats and Chicago it's mighty important.

The Nats are currently in sixth place (they were in third the last time they were seen in these parts), but are being crowded by the Chicagoans who are in 7th, only 2½ games in arrears.

To fortify his club's grip on sixth, Manager Joe Kuhel will send Sid Hudson after the Hose with Billy Pierce, young southpaw obtained from Detroit last winter, opposing him.

Hudson, who along with Mickey Harris has been the only pitcher to go the distance for the Nats in three weeks, owns a 5-7 record while Pierce boasts a not too boastful 3-7 record.

Idle since last Sunday when they scored five runs in the ninth inning to unseat the league-leading Yankees in New York, the Nats held a lengthy workout at Griffith Stadium this afternoon before entraining for Chicago.

Weigel Goes to 'Nooga

All hands, except Catcher Ralph Weigel, enjoyed the two-hour session. Weigel was called away in the middle of the rehearsal and told he had been released outright to Chattanooga.

The Nats' Southern Association farm club was hurting for catching when the Nats recalled Jake Early last week and Weigel was dispatched to the Lookouts. Weigel was obtained from the White Sox on opening day when Early was shipped to Chattanooga.

Since Early's return—last Friday—the Nats have perked up considerably. With the holler guy behind the plate, the Griffs went 12 innings before losing, 2-1, to the Yankees Friday, but came back the next day with that five-run binge in the ninth to conk the pace-setters.

IN SHORT — Allen Gettel, bought from the White Sox on waivers yesterday, joins the club in Chicago tomorrow . . . Gettel's indifferent performance against the Nats in Griffith Stadium last month undoubtedly influenced Manager Jack Onslow's decision to peddle Gettel, at one time considered a bright prospect by the Yankees . . . With Weigel, who appeared in 57 games and batted .246 gone, Early and Al Evans will share the catching burden. In the event of injury to either, Rookie Len Orkrie can be recalled from Buffalo in 24 hours

Kusserow on Stars

Chicago, July 13 (AP).—Lou Kusserow, Columbia University's high scoring halfback, was named today to the College Football All Stars who will meet the Philadelphia Eagles in Soldier Field here August 12.

Joe McCarthy Sounds Battle Cry

East Amherst, N. Y., July 13 (AP).—Joe McCarthy rates his Boston Red Sox "from here in the team to beat" in the American League pennant race.

"We're due to get some of the better breaks to balance for the overabundance of disaster that visited us," the Boston manager said today.

Jack Wins Unanimous Decision Over Giosa

By Arthur Ellis—The Washington Post

LOW BLOW BY BEAU—Writhing in pain, Eddie Giosa slips to the canvas in the first round of his fight with Beau Jack last night at Griffith Stadium after Jack, standing over him, had fouled the young Philadelphian. Jack was also penalized in two other rounds for fouling.

Eddie Hurt By Foul in 1st Round

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Using every trick of the trade, Beau Jack polished off Philadelphia's Eddie Giosa with a unanimous 10-round decision before 2911 paying fans at Griffith Stadium last night.

The bull-shouldered Jack incapacitated Giosa with a stinging right to the groin in the first round, and it was all that stocky Eddie could do to survive three legitimate knockdowns.

Jack's low punch in the first round draped Giosa over the rope and he slipped writhing to the canvas. Referee Marty Gallagher decreed a five-minute rest for Giosa. Swinging from his heels and landing anywhere above Giosa's knee, Jack was also penalized two points in the fifth and seventh rounds for fouling.

Jack Scores Legitimately

Before Giosa had fully recovered from the ill effects of that first low punch, Beau felled Eddie twice, cleanly. In the second round, three steaming lefts to the body and a bolo right to the jaw decked Giosa at the bell. In the third, it was a short left to the head which put Giosa down for no count.

Giosa, stepped gingerly away from Jack from then until the tenth. Jack, who lost the lightweight title to Ike Williams in Philadelphia exactly a year and a day ago, clearly carried all the guns.

He put Giosa down again in the ninth with a sweeping side-arm right to the very top of the head. Eddie slid to his knees and got right up, but Referee Gallagher counted the mandatory eight.

In a desperate attempt to sway the decision, Giosa stood toe to toe with the Beau in the tenth and came out fairly even, but it was too late then as Beau was safely home.

Giosa's six-fight winning streak had come to an end. And the 28-year-old Jack had kept his local undefeated record intact. He's won seven straight here. Each weighed 139½.

Managers Clash (Orally)

The fans got a clear shot of an interesting verbal battle during the fight, between the rival managers, Chick Wergeles of Jack and Garry Barrett of Giosa. Barrett was claiming fouls, and Wergeles was denying all. While the fight was on in the tenth, both pilots abandoned their corners, banging Boxing Commissioner Heiner Miller's ear with their versions.

After the fight, Barrett called Jack "the dirtiest fighter Giosa has ever fought." He pointed to two huge red welts on Eddie's left thigh. "And look at those welts on Eddie's side," Barrett added.

"The first-round punch took half of Giosa's strength away from him. We want to fight Jack again, preferably here."

Gross gate was $6752.25, and the net $4,917.75.

In a four-round preliminary which followed the main scrap, Julian Keene, 166, Washington, outpointed John Holt, 163½, Washington, and in a five-rounder Bob Copeland, 153, New York, won a decision over Holly Mims, 152, Washington.

Joe Girardella, 154½, Philadelphia, gave the early comers, and Leroy Fleming, 159, Washington, a big bang. With a clean right to the jaw, Girardella knocked out Fleming at exactly 2:30 of the first round.

In other preliminaries, Johnny Pratt, 158, Washington, outpointed Fred Bailey, 161½, also of D. C., in a four-rounder, and Leon Daughtry, 148, won a TKO over Miles Jones, 144, Washington, in 2:23 of the third round.

Cerdan a Movie Hero

Rome, July 13 (AP).—Mardel Cerdan of France, former middleweight boxing champion, arrived today to become a movie actor. He will take the leading role in an Italian film entitled "Al Diavolo La Celebrita" (To the Devil With the Celebrity).

Rickey Blames NL's Poor Showing On Fans' Voting

Brooklyn, July 13 (AP).—Branch Rickey, among many National Leaguers writhing under the humiliation of his circuit's latest setback by American League All Stars, 11-7, today laid the blame on the fans' doorstep.

Rickey, head of the Brooklyn Dodgers, in whose Ebbets Field the latest nightmare for the National League took place, said 'it seems to me that the Nation-wide fans' voting idea is not the best one.

"I may be wrong in that," he added, "but I am sure of this, however. The manager should not be forced to start with the fans' top selections—and play them for three innings. He should be privileged to start anybody he sees fit and use him as long as he desires.

Rickey said after the first three amateurish innings, the game was played in a smoother fashion because the managers were running things.

Leo Hanover Wins Feature At Laurel

Laurel Raceway, Md., July 13.—Leo Hanover, owned by M. J. Duer of Exmore, Va., came with a tremendous burst of speed in the stretch last night at Laurel Raceway to win the feature $1000 mile trot.

The 5-year-old by Dean Hanover gave the crowd of some 5500 a real thrill as he sped past Kerr Scott, the longest shot in the field, and Miss Lawrence Tip Hanover, the early pace setter, to return $15.20, $8 and $5.60.

Kerr Scott wound up second to pay $13.80 and $7, while Miss Lawrence Tip Hanover paid $5.

Driven by Billy Myer, the leading driver last year at Laurel, Leo Hanover kept close with the leaders during the early going, but Myer found the black horse had plenty in reserve and let it loose to win by one length.

The winner was clocked in 2.09 2/5.

Kay McElwyn, a long shot, driven by Charlie Baker, took the fifth race, a six-furlong pace, to return $17.20 and Candy Jean, another long shot, the sixth, a mile pace for a $34.30 mutuel.

The daily double returned $100.60.

Brian Hanover, a 9-year-old owned by Mrs. Len M. Applegate of St. Stephens Church, Va., and driven by her hubby, pounded home the winner of the opening race, a mile trot, to return $16.40, $7.80 and $5.

In the second event, another mile trot, Lawde Me, with Joe Hylan of Pinehurst, N. C., in the sulky, came with thunderous stretch speed rounding the first turn to win by seven lengths for a $6.50, $4.80 and $4.20 mutuel payoff.

Tipvolo, 4-year-old Volomite gelding, was everything his name implied as he sped home the winner in the third, a mile pace, to pay $5.40 to win. Fox Blackstone was second and Coale Bay third.

In the fourth, a 6-furlong pace, Chief Modoc, driven by Lloyd James of Cambridge, Md., scored his first victory of the season.

Women's Golf Semifinals Slated Today

By Leila Edwards

Two of the top players from the Washington area will be pitted against two of Baltimore's finest linkswomen today in the semifinal round of the Women's Maryland State championship at Manor Country Club.

In yesterday's matches, Mrs. J. P. Trouchaud, Kenwood, carded a 76, two over women's par, to defeat her clubmate, Mrs. Betty Meckley, 5 and 4. The winner's score of 39 on the out nine put her only two up over her opponent, but she forged ahead on the back by shooting five pars and three birdies. Only a one-over-par on the sixteenth hole marred her card, which totaled 36—two under women's regulation figures.

Mrs. Maurice Glick, Woodholme, continued her advance toward another title by disposing of Mrs. Charles Egenroad, Washington, 5 and 4. The defending champion took an early lead of 5 up, and closed out the contest on 14.

Both favorites in the lower bracket of the pairings survived their matches. Ms. A. B. Bower, Manor, eliminated Mrs. George Martin, also of Manor, 3 and 2, and Miss Mary Ann Downey, C. C. of Md., won from Mrs. Rex Howard, Kenwood, 4 and 3.

Mrs. Glick will play Mrs. Trouchaud, and Mrs. Bower will meet Miss Downey in today's semifinals.

Results of first flight consolation: Mrs. Roderick Watson, Manor, defeated Mrs. T. E. Schluderberg, Baltimore C. C., by default; Miss Elizabeth Bonthron, bye; Miss Elinor Finckel, Columbia, defeated Mrs. Theodore Peyser, Woodmont, 4 and 3; Miss Ann York, Army and Navy, defeated Mrs. Patsy Smith, C. C. of Md., 1 up.

Results in the second flight: Mrs. John Ives, Columbia, defeated Mrs. R. E. Zuber, Manor, 4 and 3; Mrs. Paul Costello, Indian Spring, defeated Mrs. Adelaide Lewis, Annapolis Roads, 6 and 5; Mrs. E. C. Widmayer, Kenwood, defeated Mrs. Herman Goodman, Woodmont, 3 and 2; Mrs. H. L. Lacey, Manor, defeated Mrs. M. Kraft, Woodmont, 2 and 1.

Second flight consolation: Mrs. J. R. Daily, Manor, defeated Mrs. Jules Friedenson, Woodmont, 5 and 4; Mrs. Sam Brown, Woodmont, defeated Mrs. Harold Freeman, Woodmont, 6 and 4.

Times and pairings for first flight: Mrs. Glick vs. Mrs. Trouchaud at 10. Mrs. A. B. Bower vs. Miss Downey at 10:05.

First flight consolation: Mrs. Watson vs. Miss Bonthron at 10:10, Miss Finckel vs. Miss York at 10:15.

Second flight: Mrs. Ives vs. Mrs. Costello at 10:20, Mrs. Lacey vs. Mrs. Widmayer at 10:25.

Second flight consolation: Mrs. Daily vs. Mrs. Brown at 9:40, Mrs. Cohen vs. Mrs. Lockett at 9:45.

'Skins Allow 3 Rookies in All-Star Game

Owner George Preston Marshall of the Washington Redskins yesterday approved the participation of three of his first-year players in the sixteenth annual Chicago Tribune All-Star football game.

The Tribune has thus far named Redskin Halfback Bob Goode, who starred at Texas A and M last year, to play in the game.

It was learned from other sources that the other two are tackles Lauri Neimi from Washington State and Len Szafaryn of North Carolina.

Last year Marshall objected to having his players appear in the game, on the grounds, he said, that they were not adequately covered by insurance. Sufficient insurance now has been provided, Marshall said.

The All-Stars meet the National League Champion Philadelphia Eagles on August 12 in Chicago.

Black Hurls For Tribe And Loses, 1-0

Cleveland, July 13 (AP).—Pitcher Don Black attempted to show the Cleveland Indians tonight he still belongs in the big leagues and dropped a 1-0 decision to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Hurling his first regular game since he was felled by a strange brain injury last September during a game with St. Louis, Black worked in the first two innings of the exhibition contest.

A crowd of 33,470 watched him walk four men, allow two doubles and a single. Stan Rojek scored the one Pittsburgh run on Pete Castiglione's single in the second. Double plays saved further worry in both innings.

Rain Postpones Stock Car Races

The regular weekly stock car racing program at the West Lanham Speedway, which was to have featured twin 20-lap main events, was postponed last night because of the unfavorable weather.

The program will be held over until next Wednesday night.

Hope's Not Too Mad, Invites New Crosby Fan to Series

Hollywood, July 13 (AP).—Bob Hope got up enough mock indignation today to reply to an Akron, Ohio, jeweler who led a large delegation of Ohio fans to see the Pittsburgh Pirates play baseball in a boycott of Owner Bill Veeck and the World Champion Cleveland Indians.

Hope, a stockholder in the Cleveland club, was particularly irate — he said — because the delegation threatened to carry banners on its train to Pittsburgh reading: "To hell with Bob Hope; hooray for Bing Crosby."

Hope pointed out, in Hope fashion, that while Crosby is a stockholder of the Pirates, every time someone yells "Hooray for Crosby," the Pirates lose another game.

He said he was writing an open postcard to the Akron businessman, Leo Santilli, who got sore at Veeck because he couldn't buy a batch of season tickets for the Cleveland games.

"I am surprised at Mr. Santilli," Hope went on, 'I have played Akron many times and found most appreciative audiences. Not one single used tire was ever thrown at me."

To placate Santilli, Hope said, he is sending him an autographed picture — posed in a Cleveland uniform. "And furthermore, I am inviting him to be my personal guest at the World Series—which, of course, Cleveland will win."

SMU's Johnson Plans to Quit for Pro Grid Career

Dallas, Tex., July 13 (AP).—Gilbert Johnson said today that he would sign a professional football contract "as soon as possible."

Southern Methodist's game-saving forward passer made his decision shortly after talking by long distance telephone with Coach Matty Bell, who is on vacation at Cloudcroft, N. M.

Though he planned to give the Philadelphia Eagles of the National League one more chance to raise their financial offer, Johnson said he fully expected to ink a New York Yankees contract.

"Coach Bell was sure nice about it," Johnson said. "That was what I was worried about—that he would think I was running out

Gonzales, Parker, Seixas Gain In Clay Courts Tournament

Chicago, July 13 (AP).—Veteran Frank Parker, gunning for his sixth title, advanced to the quarter-final round of the National Clay Courts tennis championship tourney today and Pancho Gonzales, a fellow Californian, moved ahead with him.

Parker, the steady man of 20-years of tournament tennis, blasted Clark Taylor, Chapel Hill, N. C., 6—1, 6—3, 6—1, in a third round match at River Forest Tennis Club. The Los Angeles ace, who won the Spring Lake, N. J., international singles title on Monday for the tenth time, played under wraps today and let Taylor make the errors.

Gonzales, the defending champion, also from Los Angeles, eliminated Keston Deimling, jr., of the host club, 6—1, 6—0, 6—2. Gonzales, seeded No. 1, had too much speed for his less experienced foe and forced him into many errors.

Parker is seeded No. 2. He was absent a year ago when Gonzales won the title.

Magda Rurac Wins

Magda Rurac, defending women's singles champion from Los Angeles had little trouble advancing to the quarter-finals as she ousted Dorothy Watman, Chicago, 6—1, 6—2.

Other third round winners in the men's singles included Vic Seixas, Philadelphia, who defeated Jack Sunderland, Indianapolis, 6—3, 6—2, 6—1; Herbert Flam, Beverly Hills, Calif., who downed Dixon Osburn, Dallas, Tex., 6—1, 6—2, 6—3, and Hugh Stewart, Pasadena, Calif., who eliminated Herb Behrens, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., 6—3, 6—2, 8—6.

Frank Kovaleski, Detroit, Mich., joined the quarter-finalists with a 6—8, 6—4, 6—4, 6—2 decision over Sam Match, San Francisco, Calif.

Mela Ramirez, the visiting star from Mexico City, had little difficulty in winning her second round match from Shirley Arth, St. Paul, Minn., 6—0, 6—1.

65 Attend Two Junior Publinx Clinics Today

Sixty-five or more youngsters are expected to swing into the third week of instructions this morning at two of the three public golf courses which are holding the junior clinics.

Al Treder, pro at East Potomac, expects around 50 to be on hand for instruction in swing and wrist action on the woods while one of the two classes at Fort Dupont is scheduled for today and another set for tomorrow. Rock Creek's clinic is scheduled for tomorrow also.

DiMag Fan Fined $20 for Eagerness

New York, July 12 (AP).—Frank Hanrahan, 29-year-old grocery store owner, was fined $20 today for going on the field at the New York Yankee-Washington baseball game Friday night in an attempt to get Joe DiMaggio's autograph.

Hippenstiel Gains Air Corps Tennis Semifinals

Capt. Robin Hippenstiel, defending champion, advanced to the semifinals in the United States Air Forces world-wide tennis tournament at the Army-Navy Country Club yesterday by defeating Col. Nicholas Powel, 6—4, 6—4.

Lieut. Charles Oliver and Lieut. Col. Andrew Evans also reached the semifinals with victories. Lieutenant Oliver, former West Point star, eliminated Col. Ramsey Potts, 6—3, 6—3. Lieut. Colonel Evans reached the semifinals by beating Lieut. William Shivar, 6—4, 6—3.

Capt. Arthur Dreyer, runner-up to Hippenstiel in last year's tourney, climbed to the quarterfinals in winning over Capt. John Beatty, 4—6, 6—0, 6—2. Dreyer will play Maj. Tom Bonner today with the winner advancing to the semifinals.

Ol' Bobo Has That Itchy Foot Again

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 13 (AP).—Bobo Newsom, baseball's traveling salesman, is getting an itchy foot again.

Bobo, who confounded the Southern Association's leading home run hitters in last night's All-Star game, said later "I don't believe I should continue in baseball now unless it's in the major leagues."

Bobo, now with the Chattanooga Lookouts, has been in and out of the majors since 1929. He has pitched for eight major league teams, winning a total of 214 games. His age is listed as 41.

In recent years it has been his wont to show up at a spring training camp and convince the manager of his possibilities. He failed in his efforts to catch on with the Washington Senators this spring and finally joined the lookouts.

"I Don't Know" About Bobo, Griffith Says

"I don't know," Clark Griffith, Nat prexy, said last night when asked if Bobo Newsom might rejoin the Nats this year.

"A lot of things happen in baseball, you know," Griff added. "I just don't know about that fellow right now, though."

I wouldn't want to leave the Lookouts now if they were in the first division or in the thick of the fight," says Newsom. "But unless I can get back to the majors now, I don't think I should remain in the minors as a player."

He has a record of 10 victories and seven losses for the seventh-place Lookouts.

Lookout President Joe Engel says he will back up Newsom's efforts to catch on in the majors.

Bobo tickled an All-Star game audience at Nashville last night by throwing "blooper" pitches to Carl Sawatski, who leads the Association with 29 homers, and Babe Barna, who has 28.

Barna popped to the infield and Sawatski grounded to Bobo on the third consecutive "blooper."

Newsom gave one hit and one walk in pitching the last inning. The All-Stars won 18 to 6.

Weary War Champ Holds on for Victory

3-Year Old Goes Lame After Win

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., July 13.—George S. Gladney's War Champ was a weary champion at the finish of today's featured Essex Purse, but he was in front by a length and a half. Operating in a field of seven fair 3-year-olds going a mile and a sixteenth, War Champ was kept going by Jockey Johnny Tammaro's urging, but was found lame when he was pulled up after the event.

In the second position and coming from far back in the field was C. B. Carter's Speaker. Two lengths farther back came W. J. Hughes' Tyndareus to be third and five lengths ahead of Justin Funkhouser's Potato Cake, the last named the favorite.

War Champ, in winning his third race of the year and his second straight here, paid a $7.40 mutuel and was clocked over this fast drying track, labeled "good," in 1.51.

War Champ led from flag fall to finish. Tammaro sprinted him into the lead and then settled down to do a nice rating job. Platoon Leader and Tyndareus made attempts to dislodge the front runner in the early stages. Along the backstretch Potato Cake moved up menacingly, but her threat was shortlived. War Champ shook her off, as well as Tyndareus. At this point it appeared the pacemaker would have easy sailing. However, Speaker rallied and began closing ground.

Nearing the finish it was a question of how much War Champ would stand and how strong was the drive of Speaker. At the end War Champ was staggering and Speaker was moving but distance ended the show. Tyndareus was a tiring third.

McKenney and Hickman's Free Valley won the day's secondary feature and just about clinched the short sprint title here. The Dr. Freeland gelding bounded home three lengths in front of Marvin and Moore's Sun Call with Mrs. R. E. Benton's Bungalese third in a field of six.

The daily double on the lucky 7 and 7 combination paid $48.20 to 195 ticket holders. G. W. Casileaf's Olga S., won the first race under Jockey Ray Arduini's handling at a $10.20 mutuel and A. T. Taylor's Thalia Lad annexed the second at $8.60 with Jockey Jimmy Ulmer up.

O'Neill Mentioned For Seattle Post

Seattle, July 13 (AP).—Joyner "Jo Jo" White resigned as manager of the Seattle Rainiers of the Pacific Coast League today.

His declaration "I quit" was followed by these developments:

1. The Rainiers are seeking Steve O'Neill, coach of the Cleveland Indians and a former Detroit manager, as White's replacement.

2. Bill "Highpockets" Lawrence, team coach and former outfielder who patrolled center alongside left-field Jo Jo during three pennant-winning years in 1939-41, will take over the club as temporary manager

AT CHARLES TOWN

Dear Folks:

Many sons of jockeys have carried on in their fathers' profession. However, often as not the youngsters are too big for saddle duty. For instance, Jockey Webb Snyder who tips the scales at 103 pounds, has a youngster, Edgar, age 9, who already outweighs his dad by 2 pounds. The other Snyder boy, Floyd, is 11 and registers 95. Jockey Butsy Hernandez's son, Norman, is far out of the jockey class now. Jockey Buddy Root's boy, Reggie, is crazy about fishing and riding. He is on the small side and could be a saddle performer.

Among yesterday's visitors here was Art (Hanover) Brown who has been living lately at Laurel raceway. Seems the trotters got him pacing the floor at night, if you know what I mean. BILL.

Metro Grid League Holds Meeting Tonight

The Washington area's 1949 football season gets under way in parlors C and D of the Willard Hotel tonight when the Metropolitan Amateur Football League holds a buffet dinner and early organization meeting.

The midsummer kickoff is scheduled for 8 p. m.

President Bill Strickler will attempt to get a line on entries and playing fields for the league's third year of organization, and asks representatives of all teams entered to be present.

Croakers Are Moving Up Chesapeake

By Ralph Murdock

Murdock

SINCE THE croakers first made their appearance in the Chesapeake they have been moving up the bay at a fair rate and have lingered for short intervals at their favorite feeding grounds. They practically skipped Solomon's Island and lingered for only a few days at the Gooses. For years the latter spot has furnished some of the finest hardhead fishing that an angler could ask.

The hardheads then changed to Sharp's Light where the best catches of the current season were made. Some boats docked with as many as 300, but most of the boats averaged normal catches. Most surprising was the fact that they were caught in daytime.

For reasons of their own the fish then shifted to the Poplar Island Light. What they would feed on in this area is beyond the writer. The bottom is just plain mud and the fishing is done in 60 feet of water. It requires 8 ounces of lead to keep the lines on the bottom because the current is very rapid at this point.

Meanwhile the small boat fishermen have been taking 10 to 25 while fishing on oyster beds and bars. Seldom do they come in empty handed. If shrimp fail to entice the hardheads, they switch to worms and usually end up with a string of spot and perch. Our heart goes out to these sturdy anglers but we do believe that they take a lot of unnecessary chances when the water is rough.

Bob Manders, while fishing at Poplar Island Light, sighted a school of 25 porpoises. Bob believes the porpoises in their playful moods have scared the hardheads from their feeding grounds. Bob could be right. As proof he said he went fishless the day he saw the school.

Mrs. Andria B. Lynham, director of the Washington School for Secretaries, hit the jackpot in the ladies fishing league while vacationing at Old Point Comfort by hauling in a 62-pound cobia after a terrific struggle. The fighting gamester measured 58 inches in length and was captured at Fox Hill. She was fishing with a hand line when the cobia struck. She said, "I didn't know what I had hooked, but I knew it had to be a large fish for it almost pulled the line from my hands. My husband offered to help land it but I was determined to finish the job." She further added, "It almost finished me. My hands felt like they were on fire."

Your scribe was a guest of J. Stewart Bolton at the weekly luncheon of the Civitan Club of Washington on Tuesday at the Mayflower Hotel. A motion picture entitled "Maine Sardines" was shown by the Fish and Wildlife Service of the Department of the Interior after the tasty "feed." The film gave a vivid birdseye view of a purse seiner picking up tons of surface fish on the ocean in a jiffy and was produced by Eliot A. Macklow. A previous luncheon featured an authority on salmon hatcheries.

Weekend Fishing Suggestions

Where they are biting:

ROCKFISH—Mouth of the Chester River. Chumming with grass shrimp best procedure.

HARDHEADS — Upper bay near Poplar Island Buoy should be best. Nominal catches in 15 to 25 feet of water from Breezy Point to Shady Side is our second best bet. Frozen shrimp will do it.

TROUT—Point Lookout area. Use peelers for best results.

BLUEFISH—Lower Potomac River near Cornfield Harbor. Use peeler crab.

SPOT—Chesapeake Bay from Holland Point to Shady Side. Use bloodworms. You can catch them until you run out of bait.

Pittman's Hit Features 4-Run 9th

Cameo took over first place in The Washington Post Industrial League yesterday by coming up with four ninth-inning runs to beat Sunnybrook, 5-3.

Pedro Pittman's single with the bases loaded sent the winning runs across the plate. Cameo now has a 6-2 record.

D. C. Firemen, With .307 Bat Mark, Ready for New York

Nearest thing to the old slugging Yankees on the District sandlots is the Fire Department team which faces the New York firefighters in a benefit game Friday night at Griffith Stadium. A crowd of 25,000 is expected.

The local firemen have won 13 out of 16 Recreation League games and boast a team batting average of .307. Ten members of the 17-man squad are hitting over .300.

Leading hitter is Bill Vaughn, rightfielder, who has 26 safeties in 60 times at bat for a .430 average. Right behind him is Catcher George Shoemaker, who has a .411 average.

Probable Washington starting pitcher will be veteral Earl Jennings, who received a tryout with the wartime Nats. He has appeared in 10 games and has a 7-1 record. Ready for relief duty will be Claude (Buddy) Wickers, a former basketball star at McKinley Tech.

9-Year-Old Local Skater Wins 2d Trophy in Championships

Gary Gardner, 9-year-old local skater, finished second in the juvenile boys' one-sixth mile race yesterday in the American Amateur Roller championships at Riverside.

It was the second trophy for little Gary and he still has a chance for another award when he skates with partner Barbara Baum in a pair event.

Claude Whitehurst, Norfolk, annexed the juvenile boys' free style yesterday to become the first double winner in the figure and speed skating.

One of the big surprises of the meet was sprung by Rita Conseiller, who traveled 4000 miles from New Westminster, British Columbia, to win the senior ladies' 880-yard speed test.

WEDNESDAY SUMMARIES

Juvenile boys' figure skating—Won by Claude Whitehurst, Norfolk, Va.; Gary Schulman, Brooklyn, N. Y., second; Franklin Talbott of Peoria, Ill., third.

Girl Feared Dead As Floods Subside

Sutton, W. Va., July 13 (AP).—One death was reported tonight as flash floods subsided after inflicting heavy property losses in this rich agricultural area.

Carl Morris, a miner, near Erbacon, Webster County, said his daughter still was missing 14 hours after the flood rose. He felt certain she was drowned. Search parties continued to look for her body.

Morris said his daughter, Corrina, 13, was pulled from his grasp about 4 a. m. today as the waters of Laurel Creek rose. He said he and his daughter had been living in a shack while he built a new concrete-block home nearby. The girl's mother is dead.

The Elk River here crested at 26.2 feet at 3 p. m., about 2 feet above flood stage. It had been expected earlier to go as high as 28 feet.

The water poured from the Elk, Laurel Creek and Big and Little Birch Rivers over the rolling countryside, inundating large areas, flooding homes and causing damage estimated unofficially as high as $1,000,000, principally to crops.

Relief operations were being directed by Sutton Fire Chief Kent Duffield.

Earlier in the day, State Police had alerted residents of homes lying along or near the banks of the Elk and Gauley Rivers.

The State Road Commission reported that State Route 4 was under 7 feet of water at Sutton and that the level still was rising at 4 p. m. Traffic to Weston was being rerouted via Gassaway to State Route 33.

The Baltimore & Ohio reported a bridge had been washed out at Centralia, where Laurel Creek enters the Elk, and had caused suspension of daily passenger service between Burnsville Junction and Richwood.

Five persons were removed by rescue workers from a house in the hamlet of Big Birch on Big Birch Creek and two more from another home along Laurel Creek.

An undetermined number of homes along Laurel Creek and Big and Little Birch Rivers were reported swept from their foundations.

Between 5 and 7½ inches of rain fell in the Braxton-Nicholas-Webster County area in a 5½-hour stretch early this morning.

Negroes Ordered Placed on Jury Lists in Georgia

Atlanta, July 13 (AP).—For the first time since reconstruction days, Negroes today were given places on Georgia's jury lists.

The State Supreme Court ruled that a Negro, John Crumb, is entitled to a new trial because Negroes were barred from the jury panel.

Probe of Ship Subsidies Ordered by Senate Group

A Senate investigation of government subsidies for building a new 2000-passenger luxury liner was ordered yesterday.

Chairman Hoey (D., N. C.) of the Senate's special investigating subcommittee directed William P. Rogers, chief counsel for the investigating group, to look into complaints by Comptroller General Lindsay Warren that excessive subsidies had been grated by the Maritime Commission.

A special report by Warren to Congress said that the United States Lines, which will operate the superliner, was investing only 28 million dollars in the vessel while the Maritime Commission had allowed 42 million dollars of Government funds for construction.

Warren told Congress that Maritime Commission agreements for construction of six-passenger vessels, including the superliner, may involve excessive government outlay of $25,000,000.

Warran said that "two large passenger vessels" are being built for American Export Lines, Inc., three combination passenger-cargo vessels for American President Lines, Inc., and the luxury liner for United States Lines.

"The three transactions," Warren told Congress, "involve construction of six vessels at a cost to the commission of approximately $150,000,000 and a sale of the vessels to private interests for approximately $70,000,000.

"Of the resulting construction of approximately $80,000,000 toward the cost of these vessels, not less than $25,000,000 must be considered as excessive due to various irregular procedures, inaccurate calculations, and unjustifiably liberal interpretations of statutory language."

4 Americans Want to Seek Noah's Ark

Istanbul, Turkey, July 13 (AP).—The hunt for Noah's Ark is on in earnest, now that the snow is melting in Turkish highlands. Scores of Turks are engaged in the search, and foreigners are seeking permission to join it.

Official Ankara is showing more than usual interest.

Attention centers on Mount Ararat, on the Turkish-Soviet frontier, traditionally the ark's resting place. Remains of the ark are reported to have been seen there, and two other places in Turkey.

Four Americans went to Ankara today to seek the Turkish general staff's permission to cross military zones to climb Ararat. They asked Ambassador George Wadsworth to intercede for them.

They are Dr. A. J. Smith of Greensboro, N. C.; E. J. Newton of Colfax, N. C.; Walter I. Wood of Sea Cliff, N. Y., and W. G. Ogg of Knoxville, Tenn.

Russia has contended persons wanting to climb Ararat are spies because the peak looks down on Soviet territory.

Two Indicted In Slaying of Georgia Negro

Milledgeville, Ga., July 13 (AP). Three cases of white men's violence against Negroes were spotlighted in Georgia yesterday.

Two were new. The other was the indictment of two white men in the March 7 murder of one Negro woman and the shooting of another.

Each of the incidents occurred within 20 miles of Irwinton, where a Negro was taken from jail May 30 and lynched.

At Milledgeville, the Baldwin County coroner and a grocer were indicted in the shootings of two Negro women. The grocer, Marion Stembridge, was indicted for murder in the death of Emma Johnekin. Coroner Sam Terry, an employe of Stembridge's, was indicted for assault with intent to murder in the shooting of Emma Jane Harrison.

A coroner's jury at Milledgeville late last night ordered a white man held for the grand jury in the fatal beating of a 65-year-old Negro.

The man, Warrenton Crooms, 24, is being held on a charge of suspicion of murder in the death of Sam Devereaux Monday.

At nearby Irwinton, another coroner's jury cleared a white man who shot a Negro Saturday night as he ran from the scene of a fight. The jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide in the shooting of Thomas E. Porter, 28, a Negro student at Macon.

Interior May Get Money for Hiring 9000 New Workers

INTERIOR now seems reasonably sure to be the one old-line department that will have money for a widespread expansion of its work. It is slated to get funds to hire upward of 9000 new employes.

In March the House voted an Interior budget that would allow about 8000 new employes. After beating down its economy bloc, the Senate Appropriations Committee confirmed the House-approved increase, and then some. It added $54,224,000 to the department's budget, plus about 10 millions in contract authorizations. The increase would provide a minimum of 1000 additional people. Only between 200 and 300 of the jobs would be in this city.

Reclamation would get most of the new jobs, nearly 7000. Actually, the jobs wouldn't be new, but merely restored to the agency, since it was forced by the Eightieth Congress to drop about 5000 employes.

Smaller staff increases would be made by the Bureau of Indian Affairs, Geological Survey, Bonneville Power, Bureau of Land Management, Secretary's Office, National Park Service, Bureau of Mines, and the Fish and Wildlife Service.

The Senate committee recommended these increases over the House: Reclamation, 37 million dollars; Bureau of Land Management, $460,000; Bonneville Power, $357,000; Indian Affairs, $6,500,000; Territories, nine million dollars; Geological Survey, $770,000; Mines, $265,000; Park Service, $1,263,450, and Fish and Wildlife, $981,000.

Even so, Interior officials were unhappy over the committee action in denying House-approved funds to build transmission lines to sell its public power. The committee suggested the department negotiate with private utilities to transport its power.

SEC: It's getting ready to give 30-day lay-off notices to 50 of its employes here. The cut is made necessary by a reduction in its budget by Congress. All layoffs will be among the staff here: none in the field offices.

The cutback will bring the Securities & Exchange Commission down to about 1075 employes, of whom 740 are here. The agency had 1680 people in 1940.

JOBS: The Bureau of Standards has openings for: CAF-4 stenos, $2724 to $3175 to start; electronic scientists with radar experience, P-2 and P-3, $3727 to $4479, and a P-3 design draftsman with electronic experience, $4479. For details call Miss Burke, at ORdway 4040, Branch 218.

LEAVE: The possibility of a reduction in annual leave for classified workers from 26 to 20 days a year was brought up yesterday at the pay-reclassification hearings of a House Civil Service subcommittee.

Representative Biemiller (D., Wis.) was testifying for his bill to give postal employes 26 days annual and 15 days sick leave like all other Federal workers. Postal workers now receive 15 and 10 days, respectively.

Chairman Murray said suggestions have been made that annual leave be equalized by giving both classified and postal employes 20 days a year. Biemiller said he was sure that classified employes would object to any plan to reduce their leave.

The matter was dropped. However, it is known that such a plan has been discussed informally by members of both the House and the Senate Civil Service Committees. The Postoffice Department estimates it would cost $71,000,000 a year to give its employes 26 days annual and 15 days sick leave. It opposes the bill unless funds are raised through rate increases to offset the cost.

At yesterday's hearing, bills to benefit both postal and classified workers were indorsed by Herlong (D., Fla.), Ribicoff (D., Conn.), Corbett (R., Pa.), Battle (D., Ala.) and Kennedy (D., Mass.).

Murray repeated that he was for equal treatment of both postal and classified employes. He observed that most members of Congress had come before the committee to plead for bills to benefit postal workers, but very few urge pay raises and other benefits for classified people.

'Needed It,' GI Wife Says In Admitting $1300 Thefts

Pregnant Woman Linked to Series Of Mailbox Crimes On Lanier Place

The dazed wife of an Army private admitted yesterday at a preliminary hearing that she had stolen from mail boxes and cashed more than $1300 in checks because "I just needed the money."

She identified herself as Mrs. Marie S. Fortenberry, 23, of 1339 15th st. nw., wife of a Fort Myer private, and was held for grand jury action under $1000 bond by United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence.

She was charged only with stealing a letter from a mail box but authorities said they were preparing evidence linking her to a series of thefts of commercial and Government checks since February in the neighborhood where she was arrested, the 1700 block of Lanier pl. nw.

Observed by Postal Officials

Postal Inspector Joseph A. Verant said he and C. L. Myers, City Post Office foreman, were cruising in the area when they spotted Mrs. Fortenberry as answering the description of a woman wanted for checks thefts.

"We saw her walk to a hallway mailbox at 1754 Lanier pl. nw.," Verant said at the preliminary hearing. "Then she passed our car, opening a letter, and crossed the street and walked to another house."

Verant said he questioned the woman and she said she did not live at 1754 Lanier pl. nw. She quickly admitted stealing a letter addressed to a Mrs. Audrey Kusenberg. It was in a brown envelope which resembled those Government pay checks are mailed in, but was actually from the City Postoffice and did not contain a check, Verant said.

Confesses Many Thefts

Verant stated that the woman wrote on the back of the envelope, after questioning by him: "I stole this letter from the addressee's mail box."

He said she confessed stealing more checks than she could recall and cashing them in banks and grocery stores and "different other places" with the aid only of identification cards which she bought in drug stores and filled out with the name of each payee and her own description. This technique even proved successful with a $1000 check, he stated.

This prompted Commissioner Lawrence to urge reporters present to warn the public against accepting such "ridiculously dangerous identification."

Commissioner Lawrence first set her bond at $1500. When Verane pointed out she had been cooperative in identifying photostats of some $1300 worth of forged checks, and said she thought she was three months pregnant, he reduced the bond to $1000. She meekly protested, she could not even make that bond.

Metropolitan police said they had linked the woman to forgery of some $1200 in checks, including one for $1000.

Real Estate Board Sets Hearing in Royce Parks Case

The District Real Estate Commission will hold a hearing Wednesday at 10 a. m. on four complaints against Royce L. Parks, 3217 12th st. ne., licensed real estate broker.

The complaints declare that Parks made "substantial misrepresentation" in offering to sell a dwelling at 2408 30th st. ne. as a two-family residence although the zoning code restricts use to one-family homes.

According to the specifications, Parks offered to sell the house to Henry B. Wilmer, 3049 Clinton st. ne., and said Wilmer could obtain $85 a month rent by renting out the upstairs. The complaints also declare that Parks authorized M. O. Jarvis of Chillum, Md., to act as a salesman for him although Jarvis was unlicensed.

Court's Aid On Patterson Estate Asked

The executors of the estate of the late Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, who died July 24, 1948, yesterday asked District Court for instructions in distributing personal property of the publisher.

The executors petitioned the court to appoint a special master to determine the proper distribution among Felicia Gizycka, Mrs. Patterson's daughter; Mrs. Ann Bowie Smith of Melwood, Marlboro, Md.; and the American Red Cross.

The property involved and the appraised values are Dower House in Prince Georges County, $37,587.40; the residence at 15 Dupont Circle $87,334.05; and goods at the Security Storage Co., $35,292.

According to the executors, William C. Shelton, Frank C. Waldrop and Joseph Brooks, the beneficiaries have been unable to agree on distribution of the property.

It includes such varied items as a side chair valued at 40 cents, a tennis racket press worth $2, a $1200 chandelier, an antique Chinese Kang Shi rug valued at $1400, a Louis XV suite valued at $2550, and 421 square yards of carpeting worth $1589.

The inventory also includes three automobiles, four horses and numerous horse blankets.

In one section of her will, Mrs. Patterson bequeathed to her daughter all her household furniture and furnishings, autos, musical instruments, books, pictures, jewelry, silverware, wearing apparel, family stores, family portraits and all other articles of personal use or adornment, except such property as is otherwise specifically disposed of in the will.

In another section, it was ordered that Mrs. Ann Bowie Smith receive Dower House, including all real property and improvements, house furnishings, houses, as well as all farm and other improvements, equipment and livestock in and on the premises.

In another provision, Mrs. Patterson left the Red Cross her town house at Dupont Circle, including all of its furnishings except "my family portraits and silverware."

Cowles Firm Gives Low Bid for School Work in Arlington

A low bid of $172,071 for construction of an addition and remodeling of the Peyton Randolph Elementary School has been received from the Cowles Construction Co. of Alexandria, Arlington County school officials said yesterday.

The bid, which must still be approved by the State Board of Education, includes construction of a modern brick wing with six primary classrooms, a teacher's room and additional lavatory facilities, according to Dr. E. J. Braun, assistant school superintendent.

Work is scheduled for completion February 1, 1950.

11 Scheduled To Testify on Home Rule

House Hearings To Resume Today; Session Slated on Liquor Sale Bill

Eleven witnesses are slated to testify today in the resumption of House hearings on the Washington home rule bill.

If all are heard in the morning session from 10 a. m. to noon, the list of waiting witnesses on the Senate-approved home rule legislation would be reduced to between 35 and 40.

Meanwhile the House District Judiciary subcommittee handling the home rule hearings scheduled an afternoon hearing for 2 p. m. today on a different bill, sponsored by Representative A. G. Klein (D., N. Y.), to permit sale of liquor in restaurants and hotels between midnight and 2 a. m. Sundays. Such sales are now banned after midnight Saturdays.

A further hearing on home rule has been scheduled for Friday by House District Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.) but Judiciary Subcommittee Chairman Oren Harris (D., Ark.) would make no prediction on chances for completing the home rule hearings then.

First witness today will be Edward F. Colladay, general counsel for the Washington Board of Trade, who is to present results of a membership poll on home rule. A similar poll last year ran about two to one against home rule, based on responses of about one third of the members.

Other witnesses scheduled for today are:

Harry S. Wender, chairman of the District Recreation Board and representative of the Southwest Citizens Association; Mrs. Milton Dunn, of the District League of Women Voters; Culver B. Chamberlain, president of the Central Suffrage Conference; Gerhard Van Arkel, of the Washington Chapter, Americans for Democratic Action; Dr. Hobart M. Corning, superintendent of District public schools; Mrs. Gertrude Evans, of the District Progressive Party; Harry N. Peterson, District Public Librarian; Bernard C. Chapman, of the Federation of Civic Associations; Mrs. Samuel B. Brown, of the Washington Section, National Council of Jewish Women; and Joseph A. Beavers, business agent for Local 209, Cooks, Pastry Cooks, and Kitchen Employes Union, AFL.

Trolley Hits Man Standing On Platform

A 71-year-old pedestrian was seriously injured yesterday at 11:30 a. m. when, police said, he approached too closely to the edge of a streetcar loading platform in the 700 block of 14th st. nw. and was struck by a northbound trolley.

The man was Harry M. Cross, 1835 3d st. ne., a broker for a Chicago meat packing company. He was taken to Emergency Hospital with a fractured hip. The streetcar was operated by Fred W. Ricketts, 66, of 1317 East Capitol st.

Nine-year-old Marjorie Dickerson, 2133 Newport pl. nw., suffered a broken arm when struck by an auto in front of 2125 Newport pl. nw. at 2:30 p. m. She was treated at George Washington University Hospital. Police said the auto was driven by Eugene W. Kalain, 27, of 516 Domer ave., Takoma Park, Md.

In Arlington, a 14-year-old boy suffered broken ribs when he fell from a dump truck operated by his father, and was run over by the left rear wheel. The lad, Harold Bass, 524 N. Pitt st., Alexandria, was perched atop a load of crates in the rear of the moving truck on the Arlington County dump, when he toppled off. His father, Douglas Bass, had him taken to Alexandria Hospital, where his condition was reported as fair.

Three persons were injured and two cars demolished in a collision last night at Alabama ave. and Suitland Parkway se.

George Burdette, 22, of Clinton, Md., and his two passengers, Louis Greenway, 17, of Camp Springs, Md., and Joe Lowe, 17, of Clinton, were thrown 25 feet while their car was knocked 100 yards into a grassy plot along the road, according to Park Police Pvt. Wilbert Grishkot.

Burdette was admitted to Gallinger Hospital with severe arm cuts. The other two were treated for cuts and bruises.

Uninjured driver of the other car was Bruce Harbaugh, 24, of 115 12th st. se. He told police his brakes failed just as he was entering Suitland Parkway from the Alabama ave. ramp.

When he saw Burdette's car approaching in the same direction on the parkway, Harbaugh told police, he "gunned" his car in an attempt to get ahead of Burdette. Harbaugh was charged with failure to yield right of way.

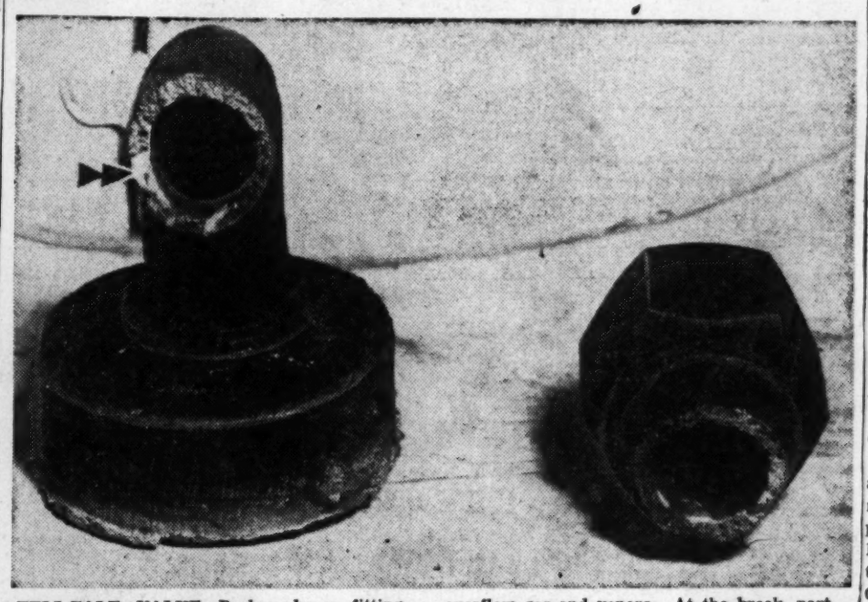
Broken Tank-Fitting in Wreckage of Boat Points to Gas Leak as Cause of Fatal Blast



TELL-TALE VALVE—Broken brass fitting was found yesterday by Acting Fire Marshal Roy A. Warfield aboard the sunken Halycon after she was raised. The fitting connected a gas tank with a vent tube for carrying off overflow gas and vapors. At the break, part of the crack (arrow) is old, the other new. Warfield believes gasoline leaked through the old part of the crack when the tank was fueled and sent gas up the vent

The Washington Post

INSPECTORS LOOK OVER RAISED HULK OF HALYCON, WHICH BLEW UP SUNDAY

Acting Fire Marshal Roy A. Warfield found a broken brass fitting in the splintered stern of the Halcyon yesterday, which he believes may have caused the Sunday afternoon tragedy in which two persons were killed.

The fitting was an angled link between the corner of the left gas tank and a vent tube that carried away vapors and overflow gas.

Matching up the two pieces of the linkage, Warfield found an old crack, which he said would have leaked gas into the bilges after the tank was filled.

The fire marshal's theory was bolstered by the fact that the boat ran satisfactorily just before the tanks were fueled when there was not enough gas to reach up into the overflow tube.

The fatal blast occurred just after the boat took on fuel at the Corinthian Yacht Club, 2d and V sts. se., and was about to start a cruise down the Potomac.

Homicide squad detective Clarence Weinmiller, after inspecting the broken fitting, agreed with Warfield that it appeared to be the key to the 4-day-old mystery. Weinmiller said he would present the findings to Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald.

Killed in the explosion were Maj. Gen. Vernon E. Prichard, Army public relations head, and Wilfred L. Painter, Navy reserve commodore who had just returned from Greece.

The mishap also seriously injured two others. Johannes Johannesen, steward of the club, was still in critical condition yesterday, while Naval Medical Center doctors said Capt. Sergius N. F. Luboshez, USN, a passenger was making slow but definite progress.

Also in the hospital in fair condition is Thomas L. Miller, 23, Johannesen's brother-in-law, who was to act as pilot for the trip.

A pile driver rig yesterday inched the crumbling 38-foot Halcyon around to the club's marine railway, upon which it was drawn ashore for the inspection. The creaking wreck was hauled the few yards to the railway in three hours.

Only the white, blue-trimmed bow in which Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, and two other guests were waiting to start on the luncheon cruise Sunday was still intact.

Aft of the forward cabin, where General Prichard, Captain Luboshez and Painter were sitting, where Skipper Miller was at the wheel, and where Johannesen was inspecting the starter when the boat blew up, the boat was a pile of waterlogged debris.

Twisted pipes were intertwined with cracked freeboard planking and naked ribs. Salvaged on a dock nearby lay two weather-beaten record players, a pocket book and ice cube trays.

Final $75,000 On Woodlawn Price Sought

A move to obtain funds for the final $75,000 payment on the Woodlawn estate, which George Washington once deeded to his adopted daughter, Nellie Custis, is now under way, the Woodlawn Public Foundation, Inc., announced yesterday.

The foundation, which through public subscription has already paid off $95,000 of the $170,000 purchase price of the property to make it a national shrine, has set October 1 as the deadline for complete ownership.

The original drive to purchase the estate from its private owners was given impetus by the Old Dominion Foundation, of which Paul Mellon, retired industrialist and philanthropist, is founder and president.

Mellon had announced that all public donations would be matched on a 2-1 basis up to $100,000 by his foundation. The foundation has earmarked $100,000 for such use and contributes $2 for every $1 donated by the public.

Subscriptions to the Woodlawn program are being received at the offices of Woodlawn Public Foundation, 511 10th st. nw.

Proposal Made To Name Street Here Ohio Avenue

Ohio, the only State of the Union without a District street named after it, will make a third try for the honor.

The District Commissioners will hold a hearing on July 25 at 10 a. m. in the District Building on a proposal to rename M st and Canal rd. nw. from 35th st. to the District line to Ohio ave.

The most recent attempt made by Buckeye legislators was two months ago when Representative Thomas A. Jenkins (R., Ohio) recommended the renaming of Eastern ave. He previously suggested changing Bladensburg rd. to Ohio ave.

Lieut. Comdr. Milton C. White, present commanding officer of Division W-7, will be succeeded by Lieut. Comdr. Samuel S. Hollingsworth. White will assume command of recruit Division X, replacing Lieut. Comdr. Tom Paul Emerich.

Coast Guard Clerk Reported Missing On Fishing Trip

Otha Bryan Beale, 53, of 11 R st. nw., a civilian clerk with the Coast Guard, has been reported missing since leaving last Saturday for a fishing trip at Colonial Beach, Va.

The missing man, his brother said, was last seen purchasing fishing bait at the Maryland end of the Morgantown bridge early Saturday morning. He had with him fishing equipment and an outboard motor valued at about $400, according to Private Beale.

U. S. Will Sell War Trailers And Houses

Sixteen vacated war housing trailers at Green Valley Trailer Camp, Seminary and S. Glebe rds., Arlington, will be sold on an "as is" basis at 10:30 a. m. July 27, the Public Housing Administration announced yesterday.

While the sale will be at the housing manager's office, 13th and S. Queen sts., Arlington, the trailers may be inspected at the camp from July 18 through July 26. Their condition was described as poor by the PHA. Prices range from $25 to $100.

A sale of 18 vacated mobile collapsible houses, all located in the District, will be held on an "as is" basis at 10:30 a. m. July 29 at Langston Terrace housing project, it was also announced. They will cost from $200 to $490.

The houses, all two-bedroom units with one exception, may be inspected from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. July 25 through 28 at their sites. They are located at 1801, 1817, 1827 and 2015 Fenwick st. ne.; 1707, 1711, 1716, 1720, 1728, 1731 and 1733 T st. ne.; 1725 14th st. ne.; 1709 15th st. ne.; 1903 17th st. ne., 115 T st. sw.; 116 Potomac ave. sw., 910 Half st. se., and 14 L st. se.

Sale of the trailers and houses will be by drawing numbers to determine order in which the purchaser may choose the unit he wishes to purchase.

The houses must be removed at the purchaser's expense within 30 days of date of sale. Trailers must be removed within 15 days at the buyer's expense. None of the trailers is equipped with undercarriage or wheels.

Man Fatally Shot

David F. Stevens, 32, was fatally shot in the chest during an argument in his first floor bedroom at 618 8th st. ne., about 10:30 p. m. last night, police reported. A lookout was broadcast for a woman acquaintance.

Miss Cockrill Selected as New Juvenile Court Judge

Bentley Successor In Private Practice; Senate Likely to Get Nomination Today

The nomination of Miss Edith H. Cockrill as the District's new Juvenile Court judge will probably go to the Senate today. She has been definitely selected for the job.

Miss Cockrill, 35, who casts an absentee Democratic ballot in Tennessee, has been in the private practice of law here since 1943. For about a year and a half prior to that she was an attorney in the OPA lumber division.

The post she will fill for a 10-year term at $10,000 a year, if confirmed by the Senate, is a new "emergency" judgeship recently created by Congress because of the illness of Judge Fay Bentley.

Miss Bentley to Draw Pay

Miss Bentley entered St. Elizabeth's hospital last fall as a voluntary patient and Municipal Court judges have been filling in. She will continue to draw her pay but the post will be abolished when her term ends in August, 1952.

Miss Cockrill took special studies in sociology and psychology at the University of Tennessee and later received her law degree there. She has done case work with the Red Cross. Her law practice has included cases involving juveniles although she has not practiced befcre the Juvenile Court.

The new judge also has worked on student problems at George Washington University. In Tennessee, she took part in young people's church work.

To Make It a 24-Hour Job

Miss Cockrill said yesterday she considers the post a "24-hour job." She lives at 2141 I st. nw.

Her parents live at the family home in Covington, Tenn. Miss Cockrill said she had the indorsements of Tennessee's two Democratic Senators, Kenneth McKellar and Estes Kefauver.

Miss Cockrill is a member of the District Tennessee and Supreme Court bars. She is not a member of the local Women's Bar Association. She was one of 21 women whose names were submitted to Attorney General Tom Clark to fill the judgeship.

A second bill is now before Congress to set up a second permanent Juvenile Court judgeship. The bill has been approved by the Senate District Committee.

2 Art Pupils Held to Jury In FSA Thefts

Two commercial art students, one a Government messenger, were held for the grand jury yesterday in connection with the theft of $7000 worth of checks from the Federal Security Agency.

United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence ordered Robert M. Mayhew, 25, of 921 New Jersey ave. nw., held in $1000 bond, and Harry Lee Green, 23, Dunbar Hotel, in $1500 bond, on charges of forging and uttering a Government check.

The Secret Service charged that Green, an FSA messenger, stole 48 payroll checks he was given to deliver from Tempo R Building to the FSA mailroom, 3d and C sts. sw., on June 20.

Mayhew has admitted forging indorsements on two checks he cashed at a liquor store at 13th and U sts. nw. and at a grocery store in the 1400 block of N. Capitol st., a Secret Service source said. Green, however, denied any part in the crime.

Both were charged with forging and uttering the $318.62 check cashed at the liquor store June 21. Whether any other of the 48 checks have been cashed was not known, the Secret Service said. None of the other checks has been located.

The checks were to have been delivered to the mailroom to be mailed to banks for the accounts of FSA employes on field projects.

Vinci

When the late Raymond Conners was tried for first-degree murder here in January, 1946, Vinci was the prosecution's star witness.

Vinci, Connor's confederate, put the "finger" on Connors, said it was Connors who had fatally shot Edward F. Barker, wealthy used-car dealer, and Pany Casbarian in an auto trailer on a used-car lot.

Vinci's testimony backfired. Connors was acquitted and "Little Joe" was tried for first-degree murder and robbery. He beat the murder rap but was convicted of robbery and sentenced to 5 to 15 years.

Now, from his abode in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., Vinci says the story he told at Connor's trial was so much mush and was forced on him by Washington detectives who beat and starved him.

Through Attorney James J. Laughlin, Vinci yesterday petitioned District Court for a hearing at which he hopes his conviction and sentence will be set aside.

In his petition, he alleges that in addition to being beaten and starved, he was told by an aid society official that if he did not cooperate fully with police his children would be taken from him and placed in a home for adoption.

It was Laughlin, now representing Vinci, who grilled Little Joe so relentlessly during the Connors trial. Laughlin then was Connors' attorney.

Area News in Brief

Too Many Animals Condemns House

Dogs and cats mingled with chickens and rats in a home at 1441 Girard st. ne., the District Board for Condemnation of Insanitary Buildings declared yesterday in condemning the structure.

Lieut. Col. Thomas J. Hayes, 3d, board chairman, said the two-story frame home is owned and occupied by Mrs. Cornelia Suikerbuik, 81-year-old retired Veterans Administration charwoman, and two elderly boarders, also retired government workers. Hayes said her only living relative is in the Netherlands.

Hayes said District officials who checked the home on June 8 and again last Friday found dogs, cats, chickens and rats running through accumulations of refuse, trash and combustible materials in the house and on a front porch.

As the first step in condemnation, the board issued a notice to vacate which gives the owner 10 days to show cause why the building should not be condemned or to ask for a hearing on the matter.

Overcome by Gas

Edward Thompson, 37, of 1605 S. st. nw., was overcome by gas about 6 p. m. yesterday while dismantling an old refrigerator in the back yard of his residence.

Thompson, a sign painter, was treated at Freedmen's Hospital and released. His father, Hiram Thompson, 73, of the same address, said his son was unaware the refrigerator contained gas. He was overcome when it escaped, the father reported.

Stolen Car Recovered

A car which was stolen from Washington National Airport late Tuesday was recovered by Alexandria police before the owner knew it was missing.

Police Pvt. John W. Varney stopped a car for speeding on Powhatan st. shortly after midnight. The driver, identified as Albert S. Bragg, of 919 B. st. ne., couldn't produce any papers and, according to Varney, admitted stealing the car.

Bragg was ordered held under $1000 bond by action of the United States District Court by U. S. Commissioner Stanley King in Alexandria. Police said the owner of the car was Robert E. Mauck of Manassas, Va., who is employed at the airport.

Injured Woman Rushed Here by Plane, Ambulance

Mrs. Hildegarde L. Bushman, 33, of Laurel, was reported recuperating at Mt. Alto Hospital yesterday following an exciting plane-ambulance ride from Mansfield, Ohio, where she had been hurt in an auto crash.

The plane carrying Mrs. Bushman from the Ohio City, piloted by W. H. Sharpe of Mansfield, was forced down by bad weather Tuesday night on a farm 4 miles from Laytonsville, Md.

The woman, who had suffered back injuries in the auto mishap, was carried the remainder of the way by ambulance.

Area Survey

Transport Unit Headed By Harrison

Deputy Director of Highways Samuel R. Harrison, the District's representative on the Washington Area Transportation Survey Committee, was elected chairman of the group at an organization meeting yesterday.

Harrison

Harrison will head a seven-man committee that will direct preparation of a new master plan for the future development of transportation facilities in Greater Washington. The group will base its study on the recent comprehensive "origin and destination" surveys made here last year.

The committee, meeting in the District Building, named A. C. Taylor, senior highway engineer in the Federal Bureau of Public Roads, as the technical adviser for the study. Taylor will select a staff to assist him.

The project, which is expected to take a year to a year and a half to complete, is financed by the highway departments of the District, Maryland and Virginia and the Public Roads Administration.

Flood Adjourns Larceny Case in N. Y. Courtroom

New York, July 13 (U.P.).—A flood in a courtroom caused a 30-minute adjournment of a grand larceny case today.

Judge Ambrose Haddock was hearing a defense attorney for Richard Marchenne, accused by a woman of refusing to return $500 she had given him for safe-keeping.

Assistant District Attorney Paul Reilly watched the water approach.

"Shall we adjourn, Your Honor?" he asked.

"I'm safe," the judge said from his high bench. "Proceed with the case."

The defense attorney and Reilly retreated across the room slowly as the water continued to gush under the door. Finally, Reilly complained:

"You may be safe, Your Honor, but we're not."

Haddock adjourned the case for 30 minutes while repairs were made.

Telephone Union To Give New Bus To Barney House

A new Dodge 24-passenger bus will be presented to the Barney Neighborhood House tonight—a gift from division 50, Communications Workers of America—at 7 p. m. ceremonies.

The vehicle was paid for through voluntary donations by members of the division, other telephone union groups in Washington, individuals, and company management personnel.

Katherine Artrip, divisional recreation director, will officiate at the ceremonies at the Barney House, 470 N st. sw.

The program will be opened by the Rev. Harry V. Porter, pastor of the Westminster Memorial Church, 434 7th st. sw. The bus will be presented by the union's international president, Joseph A. Beirne. It will be christened by Mary A. Gannon, division president.

Mrs. Kathleen F. Brown

Funeral services for Mrs. Kathleen Flemming Brown, 80, who died Tuesday at her home, 8418 Cunningham dr., Berwyn Heights, Md., will be held Saturday at 9:30 a. m. in the Holy Redeemer Church, Berwyn. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mrs. Brown, a native of Washington and a graduate of St. Dominic's Parochial School, had been ill since she broke her arm and hip in a fall last May.

She was the widow of Capt. Timothy J. Brown, District fireman killed in 1911 in the fire which demolished the old Washington Tobacco Co., then located at 618 Pennsylvania ave. nw. Since his death, Mrs. Brown had been living in Berwyn.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Mary E. Taylor, and a son, James F. Brown, both of the Cunningham dr. address; 10 grandsons and 13 great-grandchildren.

In Memoriam

A booklet of 101 "In Memoriam" tributes suitable for publication is now available without charge. Remembrances for all members of the family and for friends are included. The booklet may be obtained at the front counter in the Post building, by telephoning your request, or by writing to the Washington Post Classified Advertising Department, Washington 4, D. C.

Lieut. Dial's Reburial Rites Set Friday

Lieut. Nathaniel Minter Dial, USN, son of the late Senator Nathaniel Barksdale Dial (D., S. C.) and Mrs. Dial, who was killed in an American bombing raid while a captive aboard a Japanese transport in Subic Bay on December 14, will be reburied at 2 p. m. Friday at Arlington Cemetery.

Lieut. Dial

Lieutenant Dial, a graduate of the United States Naval Academy in 1932, won the Navy Cross for heroism in combat during the defense of Bataan and Corregidor. He commanded the tug USS Napa there.

Born March 21, 1911 at Laurens, S. C., he graduated from Western High School here in 1928 and entered the Naval Academy. He served aboard the USS Arizona, the USS Gilmer, USS Brooks, and the USS Medusa.

When American forces in the Philippines capitulated to the Japanese, Lieutenant Dial was reported to be a prisoner of war. He was imprisoned in Cabatuan prison camps 1, 2 and 3 in central Luzon until transferred in October, 1944, to Bilibad prison in Manila.

He was one of a group of 1600 captives placed aboard a Japanese transport on December 13, 1944, for passage to Japan. The transport was sunk by American bombers in Subic Bay the following day.

Lieutenant Dial is survived by his mother, Mrs. Josephine Minter Dial, 1852 Kalorama rd. nw.; two sisters, Mrs. Matthew W. Perry, 2607 31st st. nw., and Mrs. Harold O. Smith, jr., 4000 Cathedral ave. nw.; and a brother, Joseph H. Dial, 1816 Queens lane, Arlington.

Three half-sisters also survive: Miss Rebecca Dial, of the Kalorama rd. address; Mrs. M. G. Williams, Columbia, S. C.; and Mrs. James L. Brownless, Birmingham, Ala.

John Eric Franklin

John Eric Franklin, 69, former railroad man more recently employed in the claims and transportation division of the General Accounting Office died of a heart ailment at his residence, 3700 Massachusetts ave. nw., on Tuesday.

Mr. Franklin, a native of Osawatomie, Kans., came to the District about five years ago.

Prominent in Masonic circles, he was a member of the Warren G. Harding lodge No. 39 here and of the Almas Temple of the Shrine.

Funeral services will be held at Gawler's Funeral chapel, 1756 Penna. ave. nw., today at 4 p.m.

A Masonic burial will follow in Kansas City on Saturday.

Besides his wife, Helen N. Franklin, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Arthur L. Virts of 3700 Massachusetts ave. n.w. and two sisters, Mrs. J. J. Ryan and Miss Anna Franklin of National City.

Lewie L. Lane

Funeral services for Lewie L. Lane, retired Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. employe, will be held at 1 p. m. Friday at the S. H. Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Lane, who was 66, died suddenly Tuesday. His residence was at 305 Hamilton st. nw.

He was a member of Washington Centennial Lodge No. 14, F.A.A.M. A native of Newberry, S. C., Mr. Lane had lived in the District for the past 40 years. He had been retired for the last 10 years.

He is survived by two sons, William L. Lane and Frank M. Lane.

Morgan Butler

New Bedford, Mass., July 13 (U.P.). Morgan Butler, 60, widely known cotton manufacturer and yachtsman, died today.

He recently competed in the Newport, R. I., to Annapolis, Md., race.

Butler, son of the late United States Senator William Butler, was president and treasurer of the Hoosac Mills with plants at North Adams and New Bedford.

He was a former president of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers.

Chest Aides Named

Lawrence Michael, Arlington County Community Chest Chairman, yesterday announced appointment of the following chairmen for the 1950 Chest campaign: General Business Unit, State Senator Charles R. Fenwick; Special Gifts, J. Harold Stehman; Publicity, Mrs. Emily Moore; Speakers Bureau, Edmund C. Campbell.

McGavack Funeral Set For Friday

Purcellville, Va., July 13. (Spl.). Mrs. Esther Claphan McGavack, 88, member of a widely-known Loudoun County family and widow of John Thomas McGavack, died at 11 a. m. today in her home, after a long illness.

Prior to moving here in 1925, the McGavacks lived at their farm Edgegrove, near Waterford, Va.

Mrs. McGavack was a member of Catoctin Presbyterian Church in Waterford, a former member of the Purcellville Garden Club and of the Home Interest Club.

She is survived by a daughter, Miss Alice McGavack of Washington, and four sons, Henry C. McGavack, New York; Dr. John McGavack, Leonia, N. J., Dr. Thomas McGavack, New York City and Lewis McGavack, Waterford.

Funeral services will be held Friday from the home in Purcellville with burial in Lovettsville Union Cemetery.

Gerald Nozick

Seoul, Korea, July 13 (U.P.).—Gerald Nozick, United Press staff correspondent in Seoul, died at the Seventh-Day Adventist Hospital here today after a brief illness.

Frank Dorsey, Labor Aide, Dies at 58

Frank J. G. Dorsey, 58, former member of Congress from Pennsylvania's Fifth District, died yesterday in Philadelphia Naval Hospital. He had been ill since April.

Mr. Dorsey when he was elected to Congress in 1934.

Mr. Dorsey, a Democrat, broke a 25-year tradition that a Republican should be elected to the House of Representatives from Pennsylvania's Fifth District.

He was reelected two years later, but was defeated in the 1938 campaign. While in the House he specialized in monetary affairs. He had been financial executive of Henry Disston Sons, saw manufacturers.

Since August, 1939, Mr. Dorsey had been regional director of the Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Division of the Department of Labor. His headquarters were in Philadelphia, where he made his home with his wife and daughter, who survive him.

Colors of Every Hue Make Dramatic Fashions Of Velvets, Woolens

By Peggy Preston

NEW YORK, July 13.—Colors and fabrics are spinning a wonderful web of fashion. It isn't the dress but the cloth it is made of that tells the season's story.

Threads of extraordinary fibers and hues run through every collection, lending drama and novelty to the most drab design. Intricately ribbed and patterned silks make black cocktail dresses more sophisticated and elegant than ever. Slipper satins and damasks in bold, vibrant tones take ball gowns out of the pastel division; blistered texture on silk creates hostess gowns or lounge pajamas that look as though they were made of lizard skin.

Velvets and woolens vie for favor. There are tweeds with a smooth finish that can be made into everything except an evening dress, and soft imported chiffon velvets that form regal ball gowns by night, turn up as blouses for tweed suits by day. Jersey, in any one of a half-dozen versions, is a candidate to replace the "little black crepe" basic.

MISS PRESTON

For the college crowd there are many novelty fabrics, used either alone or in combinations to create casual, cunning clothes. Plaids, in lightweight woolens and jerseys, are at the head of the list. Following are high-sheen corduroys, suede, and for a real surprise, burlap.

The color gamut runs from muted, quiet tones to dramatic jewel hues. Bright Florentine red crops up again and again for coats, hats and accessories. Against it is placed an intriguing array of subdued shades—gray-browns, gray-blues, "almost blacks," and "almost whites." Shadowy pinks and lavenders are striking notes when seen in tweed suits, coats and beaver hats.

Glossary of Glib Gloss

NEW FASHIONS create new names—much to the general confusion of the public. Because fashion editors have as hard time as anyone trying to figure out the names the designers dream up for their handiwork, the New York Dress Institute has compiled a glossary of terms. For example:

Bunny hug coat: Wrapped oval-shaped coat with deep crushed collar. (Shades of Irene Castle.)

"Black tie" dress: Semiformal, from 14-inch length to just above the heels in back.

Wind funnel godet: Cone-shaped godet shaped like the long, narrow wind funnels at an airport.

MEMOS FROM THE COLLECTIONS: Nettie Rosenstein's spectacular showing, staged with the dash of a Broadway production, at Sherry's, receiving the biggest round of applause of the week from visiting editors . . . "Accessosense," a showing of accessories, put on at Hotel Pierre by Coro and Glentex . . . Joseph Whitehead's ultra-ultra hostess gowns at Herbert Sondheim's . . . and diamonds galore, sending out rays of white fire from their little black velvet beds at the House of Winston. He is the Harry Winston, international jewel merchant, who recently purchased the Hope Diamond, Star of the East, and other gems from the Evalyn Walsh McLean estate.

TAFFETA AND SHEER wool are paired for fall and winter, 1949-50, in this black cocktail dress with taffeta tubular godets in back swinging away from the narrow underskirt. Front has taffeta band high across bodice and across hips. Designed by Hansen Bang, and shown at New York fashion previews yesterday

About Moving To Middle West

I am contemplating a van move to the Middle West and have many questions, such as: Can I, or should I, pack linen in drawers? Should I personally pack perfume bottles or let the moving company do this, etc.? If any of your readers have had any experience along these lines as far as "dos" and "don'ts" are concerned, I should be very happy to hear from them.

D. T. S.

Any tips for D. T. S. from readers who have been on the move?

Your problems, D. T. S. are probably going to vary with the company that does the moving, so a full consulation with them is also important.

How can I "home clean" my cotton shag rugs? I have two 4 by 6 feet in size and light green. They are too large for my washer even if this method of cleaning could be used.

R. M. B.

Cotton shag rugs are most satisfactorily cleaned by immersing in soapy water and washing. Some of the self-service laundries have equipment which will wash them nicely. They also have tumble driers which will dry them thoroughly and more quickly than is sometimes possible in high humidity weather. To find the self-service laundry nearest you, look under "Laundries—Self Service" in the yellow pages of the telephone book.

Can you tell me of anything on the market that I can put in or near my outdoor garbage can to lessen the odor? There is a strong smell, though the can is always tightly closed.

A. W. V.

Household bleach can be used very effectively to deodorize and disinfect garbage cans. Wash the interior of the can with hot soap suds to which a cup of bleach has been added to each two quarts of suds. Using a stiff long-handled brush (an old broom is excellent), scrub the inside and bottom of the can. When the interior is clean, rinse with a solution of clear water and bleach in proportion of one cup bleach to a gallon of water. End by rinsing with clear water. Let stand in the sun to thoroughly dry and air. After this initial thorough cleaning, it may be necessary only to rinse the can with the bleach and water once a week followed by complete drying to keep it odor-free and sanitary.

Until flies have been completely exonerated as carriers of polio, it is particularly important at this season of the year that all householders take care to eliminate possible fly breeding places such as garbage cans.

A rug, supposed to be a Beluchi, bought at auction, has developed an unpleasant odor in humid weather. We have tried sunning it, but that did not help. Would dry cleaning or shampooing take away this odor? Someone told me that many Oriental rugs have this characteristic.

According to the proprietor of an establishment which cleans and restores Oriental rugs, your make of rug is usually made by nomads who use wool made from old goat hair in the warp. As you have found, this wool sometimes has an unpleasant odor. Cleaning may remove part and possibly all of the odor. To find out how much can be removed, I suggest you call a firm which specializes in cleaning Oriental rugs. One firm doing this work can be reached by calling REpublic 4883.

PETUNIA!

I'm weary of shining
My brass every day
...But the answer's a cinch:
I just put it away!

Colorless nail-polish would protect it, Petunia! But if you MUST store it, wrap it in newspaper with small camphor bags attached. Then it will stay untarnished.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Unhappily Aware That Formerly Demonstrative Husband Prefers Sports Page to Her Presence Lately, Wife Asks How to Regain His Interest

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: John and I have been married 11 years and they have been years of real happiness, full of the joys and sorrows that make life and love worthwhile. But I am afraid that I have spoiled this with my sour disposition—which did not come on me overnight, however.

We have two wonderful children, aged 7 and 9, and I haven't been too strong since the birth of the second child. I would tire easily and find myself irritable and maybe this accounts for the way I've acted.

John is a grand husband, considerate in all things, and always has been helpful in the kitchen as well as on washdays, but the problem is that he always has been more demonstrative than I, and always took great pleasure in teasing. He would take me unawares with a big hug, or pick me up and carry me about as if I were a child; and I always protested this horseplay, even though I loved it.

Did Her Protests Quench His Ardor?

NOW I AM AFRAID that I protested too loudly and too long, because lately he has stopped it, and I really do miss the lovable foolishness. I have tried to regain what I lost by being the aggressor—but no luck. He just won't play with me; I think he would rather read the sports page. Yet he plays with the children as much if not more than he ever did, so it isn't that he is tired.

Am I to blame? Was I wrong to make so much fuss about his roughhouse lovemaking? Did my protests change his attitude, so that he no longer cares for that sort of thing? Or has age something to do with it? John is 37; I am 32. Please help me find some way to revive the spirit of fun in our home. The children loved it as much as I; and I am sure they miss it, too.

E. P.

Man Is Accepting 'Rejected' Status

DEAR E. P.: You produced two children—and then no more. After the birth of the second child you weren't too strong, you say; you would tire easily and show irritability,—since when John's demonstrative horseplay has flickered out.

Intuition tells you that your scolding resistance to his caveman cavorting was a mistake; but still, you recall that you'd "always" objected to it—and I gather that your protests didn't diminish his ardor in the earlier years of marriage.

Horseplay, initiated without warning, evokes instinctive struggle in the person taken unawares—who is expected (by the prankster) to put up a fight. That's part of the fun from his viewpoint. Thus John took no offense when you flailed his roughhouse in earlier years, because the spirit of the exchange was intimately gay, even while you denounced his foolishness.

Love Thrives on Shared Interests

THEN WHAT happened? It occurs to me that after the second child's birth, an element of injured reproach and significantly tart rebuff entered your objections to John's fond foolishness. Fagged and irritable from stepped-up child care, you were in a mood to reject all manner of conjugal lovemaking, I daresay, because in your experience it seemed synonymous with begetting, and you'd begun to dread that,—and also to feel that John's "love" was thoughtless and selfish on this score.

Assuming John was exposed to that sourpuss antipathetic attitude for an indefinite time, during which his consistently kind helpfulness failed to cheer you up, it's to be expected that gradually he would abandon attempts at loveplay, and that his interest in such would diminish accordingly—because it's a psychological truism that "emotion follows action." And this is where he stands now, I gather.

For advice: Love doesn't last in any case if lovers are interested only in each other. Their interests must include "a number of things," mutually enjoyed, if they're to retain a spirit of fun and keen delight in companionship. So don't badger John for reassurance of love at this point. Rather, stir yourself to develop a social program of play-interests to share with him. Have dates, so to speak. Go on adult picnics with friends; or go fishing, or golfing, or to the mountains for a weekend—getting out together, away from home and the children, as much as possible. Look your prettiest, be a good scout and gracious to John on these occasions—and he may become your suitor again.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Being dressed or underdressed can be an awful nuisance to a young child. He wants to be moving around and he is forced to keep quiet. Tight sweaters or other articles of clothing are pulled over his face, press on his nose, and otherwise ruffle his dignity. Often when he tries to help he is met with impatience.

Eventually, dressing and undressing should become a routine activity. But while a youngster is in the stage of having to be dressed by parents, there is no reason why the process shouldn't also be one during which he can have a little enjoyment. A song to help him cooperate will sometimes work. Improvised words and tunes such as "Johnny's pulling his arm out, arm out, arm out," or "Here come the stockings one-two-three, one for you and one for me," make him forget the nuisance that dressing is. Nor should a toy be ruled out. If, as he pushes his head through the pullover he knows there is to be a surprise—one of his favorite toys, perhaps—waiting, again he won't mind the inconvenience of dressing so much.

One doesn't want to make a long-drawn-out process of dressing but usually a little diversion of the sort mentioned will speed things up rather than prolong them.

A Birthday Backward Glance

2 Years of 'Hoop-Jumping' Change a Lot of Notions And Leave Many Memories

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

TWO YEARS ago yesterday this department made its Washington Post debut. Two years is a long time and the words of wisdom set down by us would, if placed end to end, undoubtedly circle the sagging globe several times. In strenuous effort to entertain, as well as instruct, such readers as happen on these pages, we have jumped through a lot of hoops—conventions, trials, flights in jet planes, inspections of the newly-hatched Women in the Air Force, side trips to Hollywood, Bermuda, Hawaii, a hop on the first train into post-blockaded Berlin, a delirious round of oh-so-gay-Paree. We soared across the continent twice, zigzagging into Texas, Arizona. We have attended more cocktail parties than anyone could possibly imagine.

As a result of our Herculean travail, our once nut-brown hair is lavishly threaded with tarnished silver, our once svelte shape bulging at inconvenient and decidedly unesthetic spots. Also our right elbow is muscle bound—not from lifting the glass that cheers, but from hefting an insanely tinkling telephone. On the brighter side, we have crammed our skull with a mass of curious facts and experiences which should help tide over the doldrums of old age; we have met an enormous amount of interesting, even fascinating, people and had faith in humanity bolstered because 99 out of 100 proved nice, even kind.

Coming, practically a stranger, from the more cosmopolitan New York horizon, we have discovered some odd things about the Washington pattern: First, the more prominent the person, the simpler and more readily accessible. Second, the much publicized theory that Capital entertaining is entirely business, is three quarters bunk. Despite loud and well-placed protestations, we estimate 90 per cent of Washington's fancier inhabitants simply LOVE to step out—otherwise they'd stay home. Third—a cynical fact, salutarily deflating to any swelling ego—that Capitalites don't care with whom they wine or dine, as long as the food's fairly good, the drinks of passable quality and unquenchable quantity, the surroundings medium agreeable, but with the assurance that they'll rub shoulders with those rated equal or, preferably a teensy bit loftier in the Washington scale. Fourth, that clothes, jewels and such material trappings matter less than in any other capital. It's either position, power of some sort, or just a sharp brain that gets both men and women by. It's the happy hunting ground for those who dare be a character.

Summing up 24 months: The local experience most impressive to us was the Inaugural ceremony for President Truman, the wonderful following parade which made us doubly glad, if possible, to be an American. The out-of-Washington experience most exciting was riding the airlift, realizing the Air Force's extraordinary efficiency responsible for feeding two million people, carried out with such terrific nonchalance by American flyers.

Our "most successful" stories have been the Republican and Democratic convention columns, the recent series from Paris, the North-Atlantic-Pact-signing column, and the story of "Perle Mesta's Day."

Plans for the future, should we survive that long, include a strict adherence to an Ida Jean Kain diet, a restful trip to cool, mossbound Lapland to investigate the habits of reindeer.

July Bride

Hessler Photo

MRS. ADDISON SCHADE
. . . New Hampshire Honeymoon

Miss Mary Duffield Sabine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Sabine of Chevy Chase, Md., was married at high noon on Saturday, to Addison Fenton Schade of Beverly, Mass. The ceremony took place in All Saint's Episcopal Church with the Rev. Charles W. Lowry officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore white satin made with long sleeves and basque top with a band of pearls holding her long tulle veil. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet.

Mrs. Nathan Thomas Beers, jr., of New York, was her sister's matron of honor, and Miss Rosamond Sabine of Groton, Mass., cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Preston Ober Thompson of Beverly, Mass., served as best man and ushers were Robert E. Kilham of Silver Spring, Md., and William Sabine, Jr.

After a wedding trip in the White Mountains of New Hampshire, Mr. and Mrs. Schade will spend the remainder of the summer at Essex, Mass.

Puerto Rican First Lady Says:

Understanding Needed to Dispel Antagonisms in Hemisphere

By Genevieve Reynolds

"There's a growing antagonism between the nations in this hemisphere," warned Senora Luis Munoz-Marin, wife of the Governor of Puerto Rico, when she appeared as guest of honor at a luncheon yesterday given by the Puerto Rican-American Women's League at the Carlton Hotel.

Attributing the increasing antagonism to lack of understanding, she emphasized the need for creating good relations between all the Latin-American countries.

With large, black eyes flashing, the first lady of the islands told the audience that the greatest need between her country and the United States is mutual understanding.

Pointing out that Puerto Ricans are a Spanish-American combination, she expressed the belief that her people could interpret the United States to Latin-American countries.

According to Senora Munoz-Marin, Puerto Rico's problems are (1) its smallness, size 35 by 100 miles (2) overcrowded population with 640 persons per square mile; (3) insufficient jobs.

Assistant Secretary of Commerce Thomas C. Blaisdell, guest speaker, said that people in the United States sometimes forget that the United States is a Caribbean country. "Problems of the Caribbean area are inter-related," he declared.

Discussing the question of Puerto Rican independence, he said: Political independence is not important if we solve the underlying problems." For here is a rapidly growing, expanding people related to us in common interests and common solutions."

Mrs. Virginia Rollwage Collier, league president, presided. Special guests included Mrs. Julius Krug, wife of the Secretary of the Interior; Mrs. Oscar Chapman, wife of the Undersecretary of the Interior; Mrs. Fernos Isern, wife of the Resident Commissioner of Puerto Rico; Mrs. Dennis Chavez, Mrs. E. C. Gathings, Mrs. Fred Crawford, Mrs. Dan Barbey, wife of Rear Admiral Barbey, who was in town from San Juan.

Kidd Brewers Entertain Comedian Dennis Day

MR. AND MRS. KIDD BREWER entertained yesterday afternoon from 4:30 to 6 o'clock in honor of Dennis Day, radio star currently appearing at the Capitol Theater. The host and his guest of honor are old friends dating back to the time when they served together in the South Pacific.

At yesterday's party there were Mr. and Mrs. William J. Primm, Mr. and Mrs. Jack O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. William Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stevenson, Mr. and Mrs. Thad McDaniel, Capt. and Mrs. W. K. Goodney, USN., Col. and Mrs. Samuel F. Clabaugh, USA, Dr. and Mrs. Ralph McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. John Horne, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Troy McKinney, and Miss Betty Tinlin of New Zealand.

AN AFTER-theater party was given by Mrs. Katharine Edgar Byron last evening at "Gay Prospect," her home on Williamsburg la. Estelle Winwood and John Buckmaster, start is "The Importance of Being Earnest," were the guests of honor.

All members of the cast attended the party. Those who came to meet them included the Ambassador of Norway, Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, the Swedish Minister and Mme. de Aminoff, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hagan, Mr. and Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Murphy, Mrs. Erminia Locatelli and Lowell J. Bradford.

Also, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hatch, Mr. and Mrs. W. Royce Powell, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Cafritz, Mr. and Mrs. Roy St. Lewis, the Naval Attache of the Italian Embassy, Capt. Franco Baslini, and Signora Baslini, Mrs. John Patterson, and the Italian Commercial Counselor, Clemente Boniver.

MR. AND MRS. POLAK entertained last evening at a small dinner in honor of the Netherlands Second Secretary and Mrs. J. J. Bijl, who are leaving soon for The Hague and Belgium.

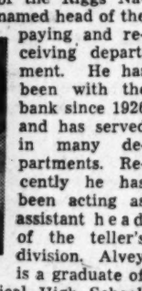
Sales of Autos Totaled 3500 Here in June

June sales of new automobiles totaled 3500, the Washington Automotive Trade Association reported yesterday. This total represented an increase of 672 cars over the May total of 2828.

Sales in the first six months of 1949 amounted to 16,015 units, a gain of 1702 over the corresponding 1948 total of 14,313. Improved deliveries last month helped to make it the best month of the year. The higher priced cars are being delivered in a comparatively short time and long waiting periods are no longer necessary for deliveries of any cars.

BANK PROMOTES: Kenneth Norwood Alvey, has been elected assistant cashier of the Riggs National Bank and named head of the paying and receiving department. He has been with the bank since 1926 and has served in many departments. Recently he has been acting as assistant head of the teller's division. Alvey is a graduate of McKinley Technical High School and the Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking. During World War II he served for 2½ years in the United States Army and was stationed in the India-Burma-China theater of operations.



PEPCO SALES: Kilowatt hours sales of the Potomac Electric Power Co. in June aggregated 167,959,702 compared with 160,698,435 in June last year, an increase of 7,261,267 and 4.52 per cent. Sales to railroads and railways totaled 8,209,870 against 10,011,053, a decrease of 1,801,183 and 17.99 per cent. Sales in all other groups showed increases over last year.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Maj. H. M. Canningham, Washington district sales manager of the Ford Motor Co.'s Lincoln-Mercury Division, has won first place in a Nation-wide sales competition. His district, which consists of dealers in Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina and the District of Columbia, scored 97.1 per cent of its quota, a margin of 6 percentage points over the Chester district, second place winner . . . Morris Cafritz, president of the Cafritz Co., was elected a director of the National Union Insurance Co. at the annual stockholders' meeting . . . Washington Chapter, National Association of Cost Accountants, has appointed William C. Barbee and Eric C. Figerie associate directors.

EXTRA DIVIDEND: National Savings & Trust Co. has declared a regular dividend of $2 a share and an extra dividend of $1 a share, both of which are payable August 1 to stockholders of record July 22.

ODD LOTS: Capital Airlines in June achieved an 85 per cent load passenger factor on its "Nighthawk" flights, an all-time high record . . . District of Columbia families owned $1,697,000,000 of life insurance at the beginning of last year, according to the 1949 Life Insurance Fact Book . . . Primary copper production of United States mines in June totaled 63,321 tons, the Copper Institute reports.

One on the Aisle—

Horton Perfect In Coward Piece

By Richard L. Coe

EDWARD EVERETT HORTON, the man who shows you what you look like when you're alone, is back at the Olney in a new vehicle, Noel Coward's "Present Laughter."

I am one of the earth's few humans who never saw Eddie play "Springtime for Henry," the comedy which he's acted two summers at Olney, but after an example of his likable art I can imagine that it doesn't much matter what he plays. I'm certain he'd be fun just reading the alphabet.

The Horton comic sense is a wonderful thing. It's often remarked by the highbrows that pantomime is a lost art, but pantomime is the essence of Horton's style. You get the feeling that he says his lines simply because he's supposed to, but that he uses his face, his hands and body because he enjoys using them. He knows exactly what his audience will get, which is, after all, the essence of acting. His timing is knowing and if his reliance on the double-take is strong, you can't deny it's amusing.

The fact that Horton chooses to appear in revivals of old and not exactly brilliant comedies shouldn't detract from one's appreciation of this canny style. Were I a playwright, I'd certainly tackle a deaf and dumb character for Horton, a part that would be acted entirely in dumbshow. I'm being perfectly serious when I say that Horton's pantomimic gifts may well be equal to those exhibited by Jean Louis Barrault in "Les Enfants du Paradis," that Gallic film so admired by the intelligensia. Granted, at the Olney his style is broad and his vehicle claptrap, but beneath that bond of sympathy between Horton and his audience lies the essential ability of the true artist. I'm also inclined to reflect that it takes a fine comic artist to make an observer so serious in his musings.

Coward is telling of the private-life complexities of a popular actor, his inner circle and his coterie of crackpot admirers. Though it arrived in America after "Blithe Spirit," it was written earlier (you can easily divine the seeds of that farce about spiritualism) and it is by no means so good a play. It does, however, offer several other roles to amuse you while Horton is out of sight.

Chief among these is filled by that excellent actress, Jane Seymoure. Miss Seymoure is playing one of those acidulous secretaries who've gotten to be a familiar type, but so crisp is her delivery that she's a real pleasure. Katherine Meskill, too, is topflight as the actor's bemused wife and Dean Harens is excellent as the London flat's sharp butler. Dudley Sadler makes of the once prissy Roland Maule a far less embarrassing fellow and altogether I suspect Horton's supporting company must be one of the best tripping the citronella circuit.

From all of which, I hope I've made perfectly clear that the Olney and Horton will afford you a thoroughly enjoyable evening.

"ANNA LUCASTA" finally is to pay Washington a visit, its first in five years global trotting . . . The Philip Yordan drama will open a week's run at the Howard on Friday the 22d, with matinees Saturday and Sunday . . . . Isabelle Cooley, who played the title role two years on Broadway and one in London, will head the company . . . The price scale will be $1.20, $2 and $3 for evenings, $1, $1.50 and $2 for matinees, with mail orders now being received at the District Theaters, 1212 V st.

LAHR'S LION—Bert Lahr's delightful timid beasts is one of "The Wizard of Oz," reissued this morning on the Capitol screen with Judy Garland as the little girl

THIS IS SMALL FRY week at two downtown theaters . . . A Walt Disney double bill, "Dumbo" and "Saludos Amigos," opened yesterday at Keith's and today Metro is reissuing "The Wizard of Oz" on the Capitol screen.

Langton and Shaw a Happy Blend

FOR the rest of this week, you can enjoy the fortuitous blending of two fine theatrical talents on the stage of the Catholic University Theater. Basil Langton is reappearing in G. B. Shaw's "Arms and the Man," ladling out Shavian humor as a zestful anodyne for heat and humidity.

As a wry and satiric commentary on human conduct, especially on love, war, and honor, "Arms" is Shaw at his literate best. In the person of Langton, he has a personal friend who has the luck to know and the ability to direct and produce the play in such a manner that every stratum of comedic import is carried over to the audience.

To refresh your memory, "Arms" is the story of Bluntschli, the professional Swiss soldier who is given refuge by the idealistic Raina, when he is being pursued by the Bulgarian soldiery. Raiina is betrothed to Sergius, the accidentally-heroic leader of the Bulgars. After the hostilities have ceased, Bluntschli returns to thank Raina. This leads to complications in the relations of various members of the Petkoff household, unsettling many prearranged plans, but working out to a romantically happy ending.

Within this framework Shaw, the social critic, operates with his incisive scalpel, giving to Bluntschli, his mouthpiece, the cutting commentary. As the Swiss, Langton, the actor, is fine, utilizing all his experience to time the phrasing and delivery of the Shavian diatribe. And yet, it is in the nature of an inconsistency that Langton, the director, has highly stylized the performances of every other member of the cast but left his own singularly realistic. Although it is valid, in view of the nature of the particular play, it is a disturbing element since it often makes the acting of his supporting cast seem grotesque and overblown.

However, conscious of the stylization of their performances, one can see that the minor players are all exceedingly fine. In fact, as ensemble acting it is a very excellent example of the high caliber possible when a group of gifted people are present in one production. None can be singled out for distinction, they are all so equally good. It is not the diminution of the quality of their performances but rather lack of space that prevents a more extended treatment. For the record, Marilyn Hurley is Raina; Bill Callahan, Sergius; Leo Brady, Petkoff; Jill Leahy, Catharine; Martin Murphy, Nicola; Ionia Zalenka, Louka, and Joseph Lewis, Officer.

The superbly appropriate and imaginative sets of the talented Jim Waring make a tremendous contribution to the realization of this, one of the best shows Catholic U. has ever presented.

JOHN M. COPPINGER.

For tops in early morning listening hear Mark Evans, Claude Mahoney and Eddie Gallaher on WTOP, Washington Post station.

Watergate Crowd Thrills to Maynor

By Paul Hume

The Almighty gave Dorothy Maynor her glorious voice, and we hope, while trusting to avoid any sacrilege, that He is pleased with her use of it.

Miss Maynor

Her singing last night at the Watergate was in every way as beautiful as any we have heard from her. It often seemed even more beautiful. This is especially pertinent at this time, since the celebrated soprano has recently finished reducing her weight by nearly 80 pounds.

There is absolutely no evidence of change in the voice as the result of this striking change in its owner. If anything, there is a certain increased roundness in the medium range in full voice. But we would hesitate to ascribe any difference without knowing more of the circumstances.

Miss Maynor sang songs of Bachelet, Puccini, Nicolai, Dvorak, Flotow, Massenet, and Wintter Watts. This last composer was in the audience to acknowledge the response given his 30-year-old song, Stresa.

It is a beautiful song, superbly written for lyric soprano, and exquisitely sung last night. Equally beautiful singing was heard in Chere Nuit, and in Magda's waltz from Puccini's neglected Rondine.

Nor did any of her singing surpass the sounds of Maynor's voice in the Last Rose of Summer. And with all of these came unfamiliar Gypsy songs of Dvorak, and an aria from the Merry Wives of Windsor, by Nicolai, showing off the soprano's flashing coloratura. Two encores were needed before the program could go on.

Howard Mitchell, in addition to providing the singer with sensitive, balanced accompaniment, gave one of the best programs of the season. Liszt's Les Preludes was played with tonal beauty and lots of good splashy theater.

Anton Arensky's variations on Tschaikowsky's Legend were a welcome change in summer programming. Finally there came Benjamin Britten's Soirees Musicales. These are a set of five vivid bits of dance rhythms taken from Rossini. A bolero, tarantella, and similar items in stunning orchestration, make a cracking suite. We hope to hear these again in the winter. The orchestra played the long, taxing program with spirit and fine style. It was a great evening from start to finish.

Hilder Granted Arlington Permit For Boys' School

The Arlington County Board has granted permission to Leonard O. Hilder for operation of a private school for boys at 6407 Wilson blvd., Arlington.

Also granted at the board's Tuesday night meeting was an application by the Virginia Electric & Power Co., asking to install an electric transformer station at 2405 N. 11th st., Arlington.

Habit of Winning Fellowships Crowned by Girl's Doctorate

Miss Boyd

After graduation from Dunbar High School in 1941, she attended Smith College on scholarships and won two Rosenwald Fellowships to permit graduate work in mathematics at Yale. In June she received a doctor's degree from Yale, having completed her dissertation while an Atomic Energy Commission predoctoral fellow.

A tall, slim young woman of 25, Miss Boyd lives with her mother, Mrs. Julia Boyd, an employe of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, at 2336 Ontario rd. nw.

This fall she will take up a job at the New York University Institute for Mathematics and Mechanics as a methematical research assistant in the fields of hydrodynamics and electrodynamics. Eventually she plans to teach mathematics in a college.

Her doctor's thesis was entitled, "On Leguerre Series in the Complex Domain." Interviewed at her home yesterday, she attempted to clarify the subject, describing it as a discussion of a polynominals of a complex variable.

Miss Boyd won her first scholarship when she was graduated as valedictorian from Dunbar in 1941, receiving a grant from Phi Delta Kappa, sorority of Negro educators.

Smith College scholarships followed while she built up an academic record that brought her a bachelor's degree summa cum laude, a Phi Beta Kappa key and a coveted associate membership in the science fraternity Sigma Xi. She studied for her master's degree under a Yale fellowship and then won the two Rosewald grants.

Why does a young woman go into the field of abstract mathematics? Miss Boyd found that it and theoretical physics, her college minor, were what she liked best.

"I always had difficulty," she said, "writing a composition. I could say what I had to say in one sentence. Then I was through."

Robeson Given Slap as NAACP Opens Session

Los Angeles, July 13 (AP).—The fortieth annual convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People opened here with an indirect slap at Negro singer Paul Robeson.

Roy Wilkins, New York, acting secretary of the group, in asking enactment of a civil rights program, said "we do not cry out bitterly that we love another land better than our own, or another people better than ours."

Wilkins, in his message yesterday, added:

"No, we are Americans, and in the American way, with American weapons and the American determination to be free, we intend to slug it out—to fight right here on this home front, if it takes 40 more summers until victory (for the civil rights program) is ours."

Wilkins read a message from President Truman, who said:

"Your record through four decades in stimulating changes in the field of human relations suggests that your association will redouble its efforts in support of a goal all true Americans seek."

Mules for Greece Kick Hornets' Nest

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

This is the strange tale of how a "diligent" Turk, 7500 mules, ECA, the Greek government, Kansas City, Mo., politics, and hundreds of angry mule drivers have set members of the U. S. Congress by the ears.

As the facts were unfolded yesterday one irate senator remarked that the whole affair gives off a strong odor more commonly associated with a small black and white striped fur-bearing animal than with the lowly mule.

Some months ago ECA authorized the Greek government to write a contract to get mules through its normal business channels, provided the mules were secured from American sources.

The mules were desperately needed for the displaced farmers of Greece and were supposed to reach the rocky slopes of the ancient land in time for fall harvesting and plowing. So far nary a mule has reached an American port, let alone a Greek one more than 5000 miles away.

Price Jacked From $90 to $263

The Greek government gave the contract to a Turkish broker named Mahmout Safyurlu, who shuttles back and forth between Washington and New York, and has highly placed friends in the Greek Government. He subcontracted for all the mules with Parker Jameson of Fort Worth, Tex., who had unsuccessfully bid on the deal in the first place.

Jameson had originally offered to supply the mules at $90 bucks per pair of ears in the United States but the Greek government gave the contract to Safyurlu for $263 per head, payable in United States dollars.

Finally ECA issued a procurement authorization to use ECA funds to pay up to $250.50 per mule, delivered in Greece.

In some manner, which is still Greek to Congress, a Kansas City, Mo., mule dealer was cut in on the deal. The Kansas City dealer, Ferd Owen, had originally offered mules at $85 a head. As it now stands the Turk has split the subcontract equally between Texas and Missouri.

Mule dealers the Nation over began to burn the wires to Washington. "If one mule dealer could get cut into this transaction, why not all," was the substance of colorful mule-skinning complaints.

Accordingly yesterday sweating ECA officials met with a number of Senators and Representatives and mule dealers from a dozen or so States.

The upshot was that ECA has promised to "review" the whole transaction and report back to the group in a week.

Attending the meeting in the dignified offices of the Senate Finance Committee were Senator Walter F. George and Representatives James C. Davis and Henderson Lanham, all Georgia Democrats. (They grow mules, among other things, in Georgia.)

Also in attendance were Representatives Karl M. LeCompte (R., Iowa) and George M. Grant (D., Ala.). Representatives of North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Missouri, and Tennessee congressional offices were also present. Mule dealers from Georgia, Tennessee, Missouri and Alabama also sat in on the lengthy, heated and involved session in which everybody had an idea on every phase of the problem except how the mules were going to get to the poor Greek farmers.

A certain phrase, impugning the distaff side, which was recently publicly popularized by President Truman, was freely employed. (Editor's Note: The usual interpretation of laws governing libel prevents identification of the subject so described.)

Ruled out of order as extraneous to the discussion of the mules were widely voiced fears that if the displaced farmers don't get mules to raise crops to feed their families, they'll all turn bandits. No solution was offered.

There was head-scratching but no answer, also, to the question of how Kansas City, Mo., nosed into the picture.

In any event, the whole deal amounts to some two million dollars in cash from the United States taxpayers' pockets and it's still up to ECA to explain whose mules are going to get to Greece and how.

Justice Douglas Back at Tehran

Tehran, Iran, July 13 (AP).—Justice William O. Douglas of the Supreme Court returned here last last night from a five-day trip to the Bakhtiari Mountains and Isfahan. He was a guest of the Bakhtiari tribe.

Douglas left by plane today for Baghdad, Iraq. Later he plans to visit the Druze and Kurdish tribes in Syria and Lebanon. He is accompanied by his son, William, jr., and Maj. Roger T. Lincoln of Washington.

GEORGE SCHOR,

is a two-gun-totin' patient at George Washington University Hospital, where he is a bright spark in sometimes trying situations. George, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Schor, of 6040 14th st. nw., was stricken with polio in September, 1947. But let George tell the story: "First, I fell down a hole. The doctor came and said I had polio. I went to the hospital and got rid of it, and then to Warm Springs and got rid of some more of it, and what is left we are trying to get out now." George will be 6 years old Sunday

Touchdown Club Gives $300 to 3 Boys Clubs

Carroll D. Bird last night announced that the Touchhdown Club has made $300 contributions each to the summer camp programs of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club, Merrick Boys Club and Boys Club of Washington.

This donation will send 20 boys to each camp, and hikes to approximately $3000 the club's contributions to various good causes this year. "These summer camps are doing a splendid job for boys of the Washington area, and we are glad to lend a helping hand," Bird said.

Puerto Ricans Picket Governor

A group of Puerto Ricans from New York yesterday picketed Luis Munoz Marin, Puerto Rico's first elected Governor, at the Mayflower Hotel.

The pickets were led by Lorenzo P. Rivera, president of the New York committee of the Puerto Rican Independence Party. They patroled the Connecticut ave. entrance to the hotel for two hours.

Gov. Munoz Marin, here the past 10 days to confer with Federal officials, is staying at the Mayflower.

Rivera, in a press release, asserted that Munoz Marin sought to prevent the island from gaining independence. "He is the living symbol of colonialism in the Western Hemisphere and the abjurer of Puerto Rico's independence," the statement said.

TRY IT

USE YOUR HEAD—STAND ON IT

Can you stand on your head? If you are able to, you are well co-ordinated. Coordination simply means that you have trained your body to have balance and control, so that you can do various physical skills with a little practice.

Take a pillow or pad and practice, girls put on a pair of "jeans" and show the boys that you, too, are good at tumbling. Remember, if you place your head and two hands in the position of a triangle as shown, you will have a three-point balance as stable as a three-legged stool.

Try balancing with your knees on your elbows as shown in figures 1 and 2. It seems it is an advantage to practice step 3 with your head placed a few inches from a wall, so that when your feet are in the air your heels will barely touh the wall to help steady you. Use your head!

The Lyons Den By Leonard Lyons

HARPO MARX, who has a penchant for stripping in public—he's been known to reply to the commonplace "How are you?" question by removing his jacket, shirt and undershirt, pounding his bare chest and roaring: "I feel fine. See?"—was invited by a London film producer to appear in the gag-ending of a movie comedy. All he had to do was step through a doorway . . . The scene was rehearsed, then the camera was focused on the closed door, and the filming began. The door was opened, and the camera closed up to the doorway to photograph Harpo. He arrived on cue, and stepped through the doorway, stark naked.

What's the Verdict?

PARTNERS

Q. Two men agreed to become partners in a general contracting business of indefinite duration. One was an experienced engineer and builder; the other was a politician who was also skilled in financing. They made an excellent team, and their partnership proved profitable; so profitable that another man induced the engineer to quit the partnership and go to work for the stranger. This ruined the partnership business, and the politician sued the stranger for interfering with the partnership and causing great loss to the politician. What's the verdict?

A. While third parties may not maliciously interfere with the working relationships of others, there is nothing in this case to enable the politician to successfully sue for damages. The partnership had no specific period of duration. Either partner could have quit at any time without breaking the contract. The same rule applies to the situation where a third party's offer breaks up the partnership. Since the agreement could close at any time and for whatever reason either partner wished, the third party theoretically has caused the politician-partner no injury. F. L. D.

Cases discussed illustrate general principles. They should not be construed as legal advice in particular cases. Take your legal problems to your lawyer.

DEAN ACHESON, resting from his siege at the Big Four Conference, will end his vacation with a three-day stay at the Bohemian Grove in California. He'll be the guest of Secretary Louis Johnson . . . Herbert Hoover, a long-time member of the Bohemian Grove, also expects to go there next week . . . John Steinbeck has been spending the heat wave in a Los Angeles courtroom, defending a suit over the movie rights to his "Wayward Bus" . . . When Bert Stand, the former secretary of Tammany Hall, heard that O'Dwyer had failed to be designated by a majority of the leaders, he said: "Looks like he was outfoxed by a Tiger."

THE first-nighters who have last row seats to "Miss Liberty" Friday night will have a good view of three men in anguish. Bob Sherwood, who wrote the show; Irving Berlin, who wrote the music, and Moss Hart, who directed the musical, all will be sitting in the last row . . . Happy Chandler, who came to New York for the All-Star game, left a bag with valuable documents in a taxi cab. He remembered the driver's name, and the bag was recovered by the police a few hours later . . . Chandler, incidentally, was undressed in his hotel room when a United States Marshal entered and served him with the papers in the Max Lanier suit . . . Brig. Gen. Julius Klein, ex-Commander of the Jewish War Veterans, will speak at the dinner aboard Hitler's yacht Thursday night.

ARTHUR LYONS, the Hollywood agent-producer, was discussing the quality of enterprise which all successful agents must have. He was asked to give the best example. "In my long experience," said Lyons, "the best example of enterprise by an agent was when my brother, Sam, cabled an offer to Kaiser Wilhelm to play the role of Kaiser Wilhelm in the movie version of Vincent Sheehan's "Personal History."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

New China Policy Reported

By Drew Pearson

Six State Department stenographers were kept busy last week retyping and toning down the American white paper on China. Hastily censored out were allegations labeling certain relatives of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek as crooks.

Dr. H. H. KUNG

Reason for these sudden changes was a long and continuing argument between Secretary of State Acheson and Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson. For three months Johnson had been building a bonfire under the State Department urging it to support Chiang Kai-shek's Kuomintang.

Johnson is a personal friend and former attorney for Dr. H. H. Kung, brother-in-law of the generalissimo and reputedly one of the world's wealthiest men. At Cabinet meetings, at super-secret meetings of the National Security Council, Johnson constantly, continually needled Acheson.

For a long time there was no result. In fact, when Acheson returned from the Paris conference the other day he ordered his staff to work out a new blueprint for American-Chinese relations which was to be strongly anti-Chiang.

Acheson Outvoted

That blueprint was placed before the National Security Council last week. After a vigorous debate the vote went against Acheson—about 5 to 1. Those voting no were Johnson, the Treasury Department, and heads of the armed services. They favored continued support for Chiang Kai-shek's regime no matter how graft-ridden.

Swinging the decision against Acheson were two factors:

1. A statement by Mao Tse-tung, leader of Red China, that he was a Moscow-loving Communist;

2. First indications that Chinese Reds planned rough treatment for American personnel, as later proved by the beating up of United States Vice Consul William Olive.

Instead of Acheson's proposed hands-off policy, the joint chiefs of staff recommended a ring of defenses around Red China. This ring will consist of the Japan-Formosa-Philippines Islands chain, plus Siam, Burma, India and one small part of south China where Chiang Kai-shek will be defended to the last ditch.

General MacArthur has cabled his vigorous support of this general idea—which, incidentally, will cost a large and so far unestimated amount of money.

New York Politics

Former Governor Herbert Lehman and New York boss Ed Flynn have been playing cat-and-mouse over who will run for Bob Wagner's Senate seat.

They held two secret huddles last week, during which Flynn tried to get Lehman to announce his candidacy for the Senate immediately. Flynn didn't say so but, if Lehman announced right away, the way would be clear for Flynn's friend, Brooklyn borough president John Cashmore, to be Democratic candidate for mayor of the world's largest city.

Lehman, however, knows he'll have a tough fight to win the Senate seat in November, so he wants a strong candidate on the ticket with him for mayor—and not John Cashmore. That is why he refused to announce until assured who his running mate will be.

Merry-Go-Round

Wonder what's become of Elizabeth Bentley, the buxom, confessed female spy who started all the fuss over Alger Hiss. During the Hiss trial she was strangely absent. Nothing left of her in Washington except a hotel bill for $500, for which conscientious Congressman Wood of the Committee on Un-American Activities wants special authority from Congress in order to settle . . . Chip Robert, ex-Democratic treasurer, and Sam Pryor, ex-Republican treasurer, got together the other day. They admitted that in the old days they sometimes compared notes. If one bigwig gave to the Republicans, Sam tipped off Chip and Chip collected for the Democrats—and vice versa—Chip, incidentally, has a date to go leopard shooting in Ceylon September 15. . . . Ex-Congresswoman Georgia Lusk of New Mexico will soon be appointed to the new War Claims Commission . . . alert Congressman Furcolo of Massachusetts has urged President Truman to revamp future espionage trials. Truman has accepted Furcolo's suggestion.

Capital News Capsules

Senate Office Scramble—John Foster Dulles' arrival in the Senate has started a scramble for offices. Twenty-five Senators are planning to trade offices—just to make room for the new Senator from New York. What happened is that under the seniority system, Dulles is low man on the totem pole and not entitled to the choice office vacated by Senator Wagner. Next in line is Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming. But if he moves into Wagner's office, Senator Chavez of New Mexico is entitled to shift to O'Mahoney's office. And so on down the seniority ladder.

Warning to Americans—Ambassador Leighton Stuart has warned all American diplomats in China to be on their best behavior in dealing with the Communists. Stuart believes the Communists' action in jailing and beating United States Vice Consul Olive in Shanghai is just the first step in a campaign to brand all American diplomats as spies.
